Annual Prognosticator Column

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

We made it home from Texas on Sunday with one heck of a head cold. Other than that the trip was uneventful. Had 156 emails accumulated over the 12 days that we were gone. There were 13 that were identified by the Norton anti-virus as having the W32.KlezH virus. I don't know who the SOB is that is sending this out but it is a real pain. The bad part is that in many cases it is attached to someone's address that I am very familiar with. I have received this virus on emails using the addresses of many of you Gramsters, but when I contact the addressee, they didn't send an email. So this thing is somehow selecting addressees that I normally get mail from and attaching itself to the email. Usually no text, just the attachment. Fortunately Norton quarantines them.

I said in last weeks Thurski that I would come up with my set of predictions for the New Year today. I wore my mystical St. Louis Cardinal baseball hat all the way home from Austin and came up with a couple of ideas. I stuck them in that old mayonnaise jar under my bed until it was time to pull them out this afternoon. So here we go with Professor Thurski's predictions for 2003.

1. I predicted last year, that a great collection was going to go on the market. I missed it by a couple of months, but as you all know, the Marv Mericle award winning collection of MPC will be auctioned at the CPMX show by Lyn Knight in February. This year I'm going to go further out on the limb and predict that another collection will be placed on the market and this collection will a world wide military collection.

2. With more and more great collections going the auction route when they are sold, and the use of the Internet becoming more user friendly, I predict that auction companies will find a way to conduct real time bidding using the Internet so that collectors that are unable to attend still will be able to participate right down to the final hammer.

3. Many great items have been uncovered and bought on ebay in the last couple of years. Sniping has become a way of life for bidding on lots. I predict that ebay will realize that they are leaving money on the table by not extending the bidding until no bids have been placed for five minutes after the closing time and make this change.

4. The Gram has now been around for a number of years and we have seen well over 800 issues have been published. However, we have seen little in the way of format changes. I predict that we will emerge into the 21st century and see major format changes to include such niceties as embedded pictures in the text, etc.

5. BNR Press has long been the Number One producer of books on Military Currency but the publisher has always resisted the use of color in his publications. I predict that there will be a major change with future books printed in living color. At the very least, The Boss is going to need something to do when she retires from her teaching job, so she can requisition a box of crayons from the school and color the pictures.

6. An easy prediction is that Fore-Fest will be an even bigger hit than the last three. There will be new surprises and great thrills for all attendees which will exceed the number of attendees at Tri-Festa.

7. This past year, we found that AAFES was using fiber tokens for small change in Afghanistan because they didn't want to ship heavy coin into the area. I predict that as more troops are shuttled into the mid-east, AAFES will save more weight and the cost of producing these fiber tokens by printing paper small change.

8. And finally, I'm going to go way out on a limb and predict that that Smulczenski guy will get off his dead a.. and get that book that he has been working on ready for publication. Keep your fingers crossed on that one.

I trust that all you Gramsters had a nice holiday season. Prudy and I want to wish y'awl a Happy, healthy and prosperous New Year.

Annual Procrastinator Column

Well, that is hardly true. What this really is is (depending upon your definition of is) the 2000 Procrastinator column. Actually, that would not be so bad--for me. I am going to issue myself a pass on this editorial. It is past midnight (living up to the procrastinator gram billing), and I must get this on its way.

Mail Call

Fred et all,

Looks like someone is sending out spurious emails usually with two attachments using the mpcgram account/mailling address. Has anyone else reported this?

Thanks,
Ray Czahor

Ray,
This is very bad news. If anyone can tell me if there is something that we can/should do, please tell!

editor

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,
The MACV Cards work by Phil Goldstein is absolutely great! I still have my card, or maybe even two cards, because I had two tours over there. One with MACV J2 (Joint Service)and the other with 1st Avn Bde (Army). I still have all of my MBF checks from Viet Nam too, and your saliva is on those I used for transactions that were said not be allowed and/or possible.
Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,
I would love to have one of your MPC checks (buy, trade, beg for) and am sure that others would too. It is time that you loosen up on those!!

Editor

Dear Editor,
OK, where is gram 817? I am now missing four numbers, three of which (812-814) I have asked for twice. Now I notice that the gram that was numbered 811 in the subject line was numbered 812 in the masthead. If it really was 812, then I am missing 811. I am certainly missing 813, 814, and now 817. Would you PLEASE put out something clarifying what grams were actually dispatched (numbers and dates), and send the ones that are missing?

Joe

Dear Joe,
Well, we must have goofed it up more than we thought. We did run your Christmas column, but I do not know the number. I will try to work this out tomorrow.

Iron (Eisen) Coupons of Nazi Occupied Baltic States

By Marcus Turner

Any of you that know me well can stand witness to the fact that I have developed a serious interest in the various notes and rationing coupons used in eastern Europe. In no area is this more true than the notes produced for use in Nazi occupied Ostland or "Eastern Region". While the traditional view of Ostland included only the Baltic States (Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia), the more recent view has been expanded to include portions of northern Russia and Belarus. Unfortunately, when WWII Remembered was published back in 1995, our knowledge of these issues were very limited and the book only managed to scratch the surface of what is known, not to mention that much of what was written is erroneous.

One of my favorite issues of this area are the Iron (Eisen) coupons. The issue is very simple in design, very difficult to find, but quite reasonable in price to purchase. The only listing of these coupons that I have been able to find is the 1999 publication "World War II German Occupation of the Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Belarus and North Russia, First Trial Catalog" by Ants Kulo and Juri Rudich. World War II Remembered makes no mention of these items (however I am sure that Fred can be persuaded to include them in the next edition).

Images of the coupons can be viewed at:
<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/700-799/mtturner.htm>

Kulo/Rudich suggests the notes were prepared for issue in Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Belarus. The coupons are quite small measuring 40x58mm and are uniface printings. The notes are all identical with the exception of color and denomination. Each contains the word EISEN (German for Iron) and the denominations are in kilograms. Denominations identified to date are 1kg (green), 5kg (orange), 10kg (lilac/purple), 25kg (grey), 100kg (brown) and 1000kg (red-violet). Coupons were printed on paper with a wavy watermark. Each note has an eagle overlaid with an I-beam as the central vignette, surrounded by swastikas in each corner. Kulo/Rudich also have listed a 50kg denomination, however they appear to have questioned if it was really produced/issued. No 50kg note has been identified to date.

Over the past couple of years I have noticed a handful of 1kg coupons for sale on ebay, most out of the Baltic States. The other denominations have been difficult to find, however some remainder sets have been available for sale within the last year. The only denomination that I have not been able to acquire is the 1000kg piece. Juri Rudich indicated to me that only one example is known to date.

Since 1999 a couple of minor varieties have been discovered. The first variety is of the 10kg coupon. There are two distinct colors of the coupon available.

The above referenced images show the dramatic difference between the lilac and purple pieces. To be perfectly honest, I have seen just as many lilac pieces as purple. Are any other color variations known? Not yet but I would not rule out the possibility.

The other variety that has been recently discovered is among the 1kg pieces. Rudich pointed out me a 1kg piece with the notation "L/0602" in the lower left corner of the note. What does the notation mean? Your guess is as good as mine. Has this notation been seen on any other denomination? Not yet.

Kulo/Rudich indicates that several examples of uncut pairs and blocks have been observed. This would make sense in that most of the pieces have looked at have been cut very poorly with crooked edges and inconsistent cuts. Just how many pieces are on a block? I do not know yet.

This is an area in WWII numismatics that we westerners are just beginning to take a good hard look at. Hopefully as we start to question these pieces more answers will surface. Your questions, comments and observations are greatly appreciated.

BUSTED

I was not silly enough to make a New Year’s resolution to nit miss a single day/Gram. I did make sort of an informal pledge not to miss two days in a row. So much for good intentions.

Judy (aka the Boss) got sick on New Year’s Day. By noon on the second we took her to the local hospital.

Of course I had my lap top so that I could publish the Gram. Recently I had upgraded to cable modem at headquarters so I anticipated having trouble hooking up via telephone from the hospital. I was correct. I could not make it happen.

On Saturday I was able to steal a few hours away from the hospital to go home (HQ) to put out the Gram (and feed the cats and other approved tasks (the Gram was not on the approved list)).

Well, in trying to get AOL to run from the hospital the settings needed for the cable modem had been changed. After some calling around, I found a tech number to call. Then I had a 40 minute wait. The first tech could not help me, but the second one fixed the problem in about a minute. By this time my pass had expired and I had to return to the hospital.

On Sunday we were dissatisfied with the service at hospital one and took her to a larger hospital in Toledo (we had to sign a statement that we were leaving “against medical advice.”

After getting Judy situated I headed for the lounge to take a nap. I woke up at 1 am this morning (Monday) sick. Really sick. I guess if one must get sick visiting a hospital is a good place to have it happen so I went to the emergency room.

They fixed me up with about a gallon of IV fluids and I was ready to work on the late Gram.

I broke into a nurses’ work room and found a very fast computer hook up. It was heaven. To my surprise the Gram box was not overflowing (full, but not stuffed). I was working on the Gram when the head sister-nurse challenged me. I had visions of her pulling a ruler and wrapping my knuckles so I evacuated the room as soon as possible.

So here we are six days into the year and four Grams behind. In the past when we have missed Grams, we have extended subscriptions to cover the missing issues. I am not sure that we can do that in this case. Such an adjustment might put the Gram out of business. We will attempt to publish some double issues to make up for the missed issues. As the saying goes, we are sorry about the inconvenience.

Editor

Hello Gramsters,

A little off topic, but of possible interest to all email users. This is in response to Ski's column in MPCGram #819, where he talks about email and the viruses that they sometimes carry. What many viruses do is quietly send infected emails from an infected users computer to everyone in that infected users email address or contact book every time they log into their email server. You might want to contact every known sender of infected email so they can clean up their computers with an up to date antivirus program and stop the spread.

Take Care and Happy New Year!

Gavin

AM Lire Stage Money

By Joe Boling

At the 2002 summer seminar, someone (must have been Fred) showed a piece of AMC lire movie or stage money--a note printed for dramatic use, unrelated to the occupation of Italy. It was in an improbable denomination of 25 lire--one we know was never used in either actual AMC lire series. I don't remember whether he had other denominations with it, but I was in love with the 25 lire piece. Imagine my delight when the most recent IBNS auction had a lot described as "Lot of 6 pieces, movie prop money, facsimiles of Italy Pick #s M10b M12b, M13b, M14b, M15b, & one 25 lire 1943, not listed." I knew instantly that the last piece was the one that I had seen last summer. The estimate was $10. I submitted a bid of $76, and won the lot for $17.07.

The notes are in an envelope with a computer-generated label reading "MOVIE MONEY/Authentic Motion Picture Prop/from L.A. Propmaster." The note faces are reasonably good copies of the originals, except that the face underprint on the small notes does not contain any scenery, but is simply a brown screen of dots. The backs of the small notes have a different border than the originals, and the words ALLIED MILITARY CURRENCY in the center are almost invisible and on a different panel than on the originals. The IBNS auction catalog description was incorrect, in that the 50 and 100 lire notes are series 1943A, and thus P-M20 and M21 (as it happens, M20b and M21b). The face frame and central device of the two high denomination notes are good replicas (the Forbes F is visible in the frame), but the rosettes in the underprint at right and left are missing; the backs are again of incorrect design and appear washed out.

The serial numbers are excellent copies of the original font. All four of the small notes have SN A05247104A and both large notes are A26611556B. More interesting is that the colors are not all correct. The 1, 5, 10, and 50 lire notes are close to the original colors, but the 100 lire is also blue (not purple). The 25 lire note, which does not exist in the original series, is purple (a bit brighter than the 2 lire note, which is not represented). The small notes are printed on calendared paper (a watermark of vertical straight lines 12-13mm apart and close fine parallel horizontal lines), with a manufacturer's watermark of fancy script that appears to be "Fox River" to the left of a coat of arms (right side not present). The large notes are printed on dense dull white paper without watermark.

The 100 lire note center numerals are much larger than on the original, and the word "ONE" is omitted in front of "HUNDRED" both in the center and at upper left, but the font of the words is exactly copied from the originals (why the numerals were changed is anybody's guess).

All in all, an interesting study in copying and not copying the original notes, starting with the invention of an otherwise non-existent denomination (I wonder of the 2 lire was left out because of the stigma attached to $2 notes in popular lore).

UPDATE: Larry Lee at the ANA museum reports that the case in the WWII exhibit containing the ration books was opened, and he checked the ration book #1. He found it to be "a single sheet folded in quarters. There are 26 perforated stamps on the inside." Thus, although it appeared to be like books 2-3-4 from outside the case, it in fact is what all other reported #1 books are like.

Editorial

Thank you for the many kind words that many of you sent concerning the epidemic here in PC. I am feeling much better and Judy is giving lots of directions so she is getting back to normal. Thanks again.

After I wrote yesterday's piece, I got to thinking about my shoot out with the ruler toting nun. I have always wondered if nuns are issued holsters for their rulers. When used with nun uniforms (habits), this constitutes carry a concealed weapon. Nonetheless she won. I almost look forward to the next hospitalization so that I can try another approach (late night).

There are not end to the benefits that come from Fest attendance! The stage money described by Joe was distributed at Fest I. Every Fester received a set from Doug Bell. He also has a long (and good) story about obtaining them and distributing them. I hope that this will stimulate him to tell it!

Dear Gram,

Just wanted to send a note wishing your wife a speedy recovery. I also donated a 25 cent MPC (Ser. 481) to the ANA museum which I have received a confirmation and thanks from Chris. So you might include that note to your listing of "donations" from "Gramsters."

PK6

Dear PK,

Thanks, the ANA want list below has been updated. Chris probably had sent me an update and I goofed it up, but in any event, it is posted now and appreciated (the note and the notice)!

Editor

Dear Editor,

Have you had the healing hands on you, so that a trip to Florida may help you recuperate?

David

Dear David,

Traditionally, this is my departure day for FUN. It does not look good for me. I think that I am going to miss all of those treasures on the floor!

Marvelous Marvin Mericle's MPC

By Joel Shafer

I wanted to provide readers with a glimpse of the coming sale of Marvin Mericle's highly impressive and critically important Military Payment Certificates collection.

Marvin Mericle's award-winning MPC collection is certainly among the very finest ever formed. The majority of his pieces were used as illustrations in the Standard Catalog of World Paper Money and Fred Schwan's Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates. Marvin consistently purchased the best possible example of each type.

It is our wonderful privilege to be able to bring this material to collectors. When one has collected a complete type set in essentially the best possible condition (as Marvin has), there are MANY highlights. The vast majority of pieces are Uncirculated; only a scant few have shown any signs of circulation. Clearly, one cannot expect to find better examples for practically all of these items.

A few highlights of Marvin's collection include:

5 dollars Series 471 (#M13/MPC-Schwan 816)
5 dollars Series 481 (#M27/MPC-Schwan 836/1)
5 dollars Series 521 (#M34/MPC-Schwan 846/1)
5 dollars Series 541 (#M41/MPC-Schwan 856)-highest grade known
10 dollars Series 541 (#M42/MPC-Schwan 857)
5 dollars Series 591 (#M48/MPC-Schwan 866)
10 dollars Series 661 (#M70/MPC-Schwan 907)
5 dollars Series 691 (#M88/MPC-Schwan 946/1)-SERIAL NUMBER ONE!

Also, Marvin loved to collect matching serial numbers. Here are a few examples: 5; 10 cents Series 472 (#M15; M16---MPC 821/1; 822/1) Serial numbers of 01703184 and 01977684 have matching last two digits.

5; 10; 25 cents Series 611 (#M50; M51; M52---MPC 871; 872; 873) With serial numbers of 09170665; 03079965; 03741065, all three notes have matching last two digits; the 50 cents of the series, lotted separately, also has the matching last two digits.

5; 10; 25; 50 cents Series 651 (#M72A; M72B; M72C; M72D---MPC 891; 892; 893; 894) With serial numbers of 03947991; 03237591; 02482291; 02010691, the only fractional set known from this series with the last two serial number digits matching.

1; 5; 10; 20 dollars Series 691 (#M87; M88; M89; M90---MPC 945/1; 946/1; 947/1; 948/1) With serial numbers of 03903307; 01519907; 00099907; 00234707, all have the last two digits of the serial number matching. Important to compare this with the next lot-having two such sets with matching last two digits is a phenomenal achievement!

1; 5; 10; 20 dollars Series 691 (#M87; M88; M89; M90---MPC 945/2; 946/2; 947/2; 948/2) With serial numbers of 10322007; 02560007; 02784007; 04723007, a complete set of the second printing with the same matched last two digits as the above first printing.

There are some important surprises that will be unveiled when the catalog comes out.

Those who have had the privilege of viewing this amazing collection know that these pieces can easily "speak for themselves." I would encourage everyone to take this special opportunity to participate and attend this landmark sale. The proximity of MPC Fest IV makes this CPMX even more critical to attend.

Finally, the following is an excerpt of what I read at last year's National Paper Money and Historical Artifacts show in Dallas--Marvin in many of his own words:

Marvin Mericle -- I was born and raised in the small town of Fort Dodge, Iowa, about 95 miles north of Des Moines. I was friends with a boy three doors down from me. His mother collected coins-seated type! She showed them to me and I was hooked. I was selling newspapers on the street and like all new collectors with little funds, I started collecting Lincoln cents. It was easy to find Lincoln cents along with Indian Heads. At this time, I was 10 or 11. My collecting continued on a small scale until I was out of high school. As coins were readily found in circulation, I did not purchase many for my collection during the first ten years or so. My coin collecting continued until I retired from the military. After retirement, I secured a job in Fort Wayne, Indiana. Having been involved in coin clubs wherever I was stationed in the service, I again joined a coin club--the Old Fort Coin Club of Fort Wayne--in February, 1979. The club had many active members and traveled to coin shows, especially the annual ANA.

At each monthly meeting, the club held an educational program. One month, Elmer Smith gave a slide presentation on Military Payment Certificates (MPC). I recalled using these notes while in the service, but never really gave much thought to them. I do not remember ever seeing anything higher than a 1 Dollar. Elmer had slides on every note and shared his knowledge with everyone.

To say the least, I was hooked. I thought that my coin collection had been as complete as I wanted or could afford. There were still a few coins I was looking for, but I decided to start collecting MPC. When I started, I told everyone that I was going to only buy the best I could find. If I could not find a high grade note, I would not have it in my collection. Another collector in our club had world paper money and MPC. After he died, I was eventually able to purchase his collection. Although I started purchasing MPC from dealers around the country, this gave a big boost to my collection and I now had many duplicates.

Many have been involved in helping me build my collection. Elmer Smith sold his collection to Fred Schwan. I did not know who Fred was when I started collecting, but his name always came up; Elmer said that I had to meet him. I do not know when I first met Fred.

One of the biggest dealers in MPC that I met was a great man named Allen Karn, owner of Allen's of Westerville, Ohio (his son now owns the business). Allen allowed me to go through his extensive inventory of MPC. We always had a great time deciding the price I would pay for each note. He knew that I only wanted choice notes!

Over the next few years, I built a collection that I felt was complete. If you want a key note, it likely will come from Fred-my case is no different. Fred sold me the Series 651 fractionals as well as also most other keys. The last note placed in my collection was the Series 541 10 dollars; I still think that is the hardest note to find in CU.

After completing my collection of MPC, I started trying to complete the fractionals with the last two digits of the serial number matched. In some cases, I completed the whole series with the last two digits matched. (Note: my Series 651 fractionals is the only set known to have the last two digits matched.)

I have always enjoyed exhibiting at different coin shows. After completing the collection, I would exhibit at our local and state shows. One night in December 1998, I discovered that everything I collected was gone (including some exhibiting awards). The local authority was of no help; in June 1999, the FBI office in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania called me. They asked if I had owned a collection of coins and paper money-they also wondered if I could tell them what was missing. I replied that I would sent a list to them. They said they had the listing and believed that they already had some items in their possession. To make a long story short, I flew to Pittsburgh and met with an agent of the FBI. He had over thirty five boxes of items to review! The first box contained my complete collection of MPC, all intact! Some tokens and other items were identified as mine, but no coins.

After retrieving my notes, I decided that I would not collect coins again. I had my MPC and would exhibit them at whatever show I attended. I have exhibited them at Memphis, ANA, ISNA, CSNS, and FUN. I have received a first or second place at each of the major shows, and also received the Bank Note Reporter award at Memphis for the most inspirational exhibit.

Many of my notes have been used in Fred Schwan's latest MPC book. Thank you to Fred in many ways; not only has he illustrated them in his new book, but also used them for souvenir sheets issued by the American Numismatic Association for the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Introduction of United States Military Payment Certificates.

Numismatic News promotes scholarship fund

The January 14 issue of Numismatic News featured a story about the scholarship fund on page 5 (the first inside news page). The text of the news release appears below.

Furthermore, the text of the news release appears at the Krause web site www.collect.com. This is an innovative site where you can view much of the information that appears in Krause's print periodicals. If you are a subscriber to the periodical, you can view ALL of the information. [See editorial below].

Text of the news release:

Military numismatists establish scholarship fund
From Numismatic News and Marcus Turner
Military numismatics enthusiasts have established a fund to provide a number of scholarships to people interested in attending the week-long military money class at the American Numismatic Association's 2003 Summer Seminar in Colorado Springs, Colo. Scholarships will be awarded to novice collectors as well as to collectors not currently involved but having an interest in military numismatics. The number of scholarships available will depend on the amount raised.
Donations to the fund of cash and numismatic material are invited. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned to collectors of military numismatics at MPC Fest, a gathering in its fourth annual installment this year, Feb. 28-March 2.
Some donated material is also sold via online auction or other venue as appropriate.
To learn more about donating to the scholarship fund or applying, contact Marcus Turner at e-mail address maturner@indy.rr.com or by writing to him at 8103 East US Highway 36, Suite 163, Avon, IN 46123. Checks should be made out to "Military Numismatists Scholarship."

In addition to the popular Military Numismatics course introduced in 2002, attendees who have already taken that course may take a "graduate seminar" version, run concurrent with the other class and involving independent research.
Both classes are taught by Joe Boling and Fred Schwan, active hobbyists and authors of World War II Remembered and other military numismatic works.
The military numismatics courses are scheduled to take place in Session I of the Summer Seminar. Dates of this session are Saturday, June 28-Friday, July 4.
Tuition of $549 per week includes room and meals for a week.

For more about the seminar, see the Web site www.money.org/sumsem2003.html.

Editorial

Krause publications has a great new feature allowing collectors to read much of the content of their publications on line (collect.com). I am not sure how long that they have had this feature, but I did not try it until today.

First, I will say, that it is wonderful and I spent too much time reading too much material that was not of great interest. Material is broken into three categories: available to all, available to registered users of the site, and available only to subscribers.

It was very easy to register at the site and view material in the first two categories. The problem came when I selected material restricted to print subscribers (which I have been for decades).

Here is the message that I got when trying.

Only Subscribers can view this content

If you subscribe to a Krause periodical, just register as a new user or sign in and provide your subscription information.

If you are not currently a subscriber, click here to visit the newsstand and subscribe now.

Well, I had registered as a new user and I signed in, but I could not find a place to enter subscriber info. I must admit that it was very frustrating.

I expect and hope that the KP people will jump in and explain how I am so user dumb so that everyone can enjoy this new service. (Iola, Wisconsin has the highest density of Gram subscribers of any location in the world).

Dear Gram,

Just wanted to send a note wishing your wife a speedy recovery. I also donated a 25 cent MPC (Ser. 481) to the ANA museum which I have received a confirmation and thanks from Chris. So you might include that note to your listing of "donations" from "Gramsters."

PK6

Dear PK,

Thanks, the ANA want list below has been updated. Chris probably had sent me an update and I goofed it up, but in any event, it is posted now and appreciated (the note and the notice)!

Editor

Dear Editor,

Have you had the healing hands on you, so that a trip to Florida may help you recuperate?

David

Dear David,

Traditionally, this is my departure day for FUN. It does not look good for me. I think that I am going to miss all of those treasures on the floor!

Editor

Dear Gram,

I was unable to make it to the Fun show this year, but I am requesting a reservation for Fest IV, which I will be attending this year. Thanks and take care.

Wes Hardy

PS: I believe Rod will be attending Fest IV also.

Dear Wes,

Sorry to hear about FUN, I had the same problem, but glad that you are finally making your Fest reservation. You guys were on my AWOL list. You also got us to the 30 level so a record attendance is assured!

Editor

I will be at the FUN show and hope to see both Fred and David Seeyle.

George Swift

Dear George,
Ok, now what about the Fest?

Run to FUN

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

On Tuesday night Harold Kroll drove over from Mobile, Alabama and spent the night so that we could get an early morning start to the FUN show in Orlando, Florida. We spent the evening looking at each others' recent acquisitions and exercised a German dictionary trying to interpret some documents. Of interest was a document that appears to be some type of German pay voucher for a prisoner held in Czechoslovakia. The prisoner appears to have been Italian as he is described as an Italian military internee, Major Golliani. He was held in Stalag 357. An interesting part of the voucher is that it is written for 1731.87 Reichmarks then converted to 3463.74 zloty. So it appears we have an Italian prisoner held in a camp in Czechoslovakia being paid by the Germans in Polish zloty. It is dated 7 June, 1944, the day after "D" day. It is very interesting but confusing with all the countries involved.

We were on the road by 7:30 Wednesday morning and on the way to Orlando. We arrived in Orlando about seven and a half later with the temperature in the high 60's. After checking in at the Quality Inn we went over to the convention center. The check in procedure was much improved with absolutely not waiting. Check in was less than five minutes compared to over 30 minutes last year. We immediately ran into Gramster Dave Seelye, still hobbling around with his cane. Dave was eager to start working the floor and it wasn't much later that I saw him with two uncirculated 461 $10 with consecutive serial numbers. Gramster Leo May brought his recently retired school teacher wife, Valerie to the show and had her working hard to set up his table. It wasn't long until we ran into Neil and Joel Shafer. Joel was out beating the bushes to find new treasures for future Lyn Knight auctions. Also saw Gramsters John and Nancy Wilson, David Amey, George Fitzgerald and John Parker.

Thursday morning saw Marcus Turner scurrying to get his exhibit of Russian bonds displayed before the doors opened to the general public. He did a great job of getting everything set up and looking super. Unfortunately FUN officials do not give the keys to the cases to the exhibitors. They have to lock the cases for the exhibitors. Well, guess what? One of Marcus's cases wouldn't lock. So he had to start all over, get a new case, clean it up, replace the exhibit items. Seems like things never run smooth when you are in a hurry.

We met a real interesting gentleman who is the head of the Tannu Tuva Collectors Society. This fellow was a font of information about stamps, money and history of this small country. He stated that the only bonds he had ever seen from Tannu Tuva was the one in World War II Remembered and the one in Marcus's exhibit. That is a real plus for Marcus.

Also saw Gramsters Ray Czahor, Mike Cummings and Al Glasser. If anything exciting happens in the next couple of days, we will try to let you all know.

Duck! That was close! She thinks that she will catch me (again). She knows that I am looking for a computer—but she does not know that I have found a new place. It was not easy, but I got in. Security is certainly lax around here. Without the sister, the place would be gone. On the other hand, they DO have the sister on guard—with her ruler—so possibly they do not need to worry.

Have you figure out that Judy and I are back in the hospital? Yes, a little relapse, but everything should improve shortly. Are you ready for this? The doctor treating her will probably come to the Fest! Sell, sell, sell! In fact he caught ME without my challenge coin!

Judy has been most pleased with the many good wishes that you have sent and I have passed them along.

So I have this new secret place to put out the Gram, the bad news is that I did not have all of my materials with me so I will probably mix up some text because this Gram was started on my computer at home. Oh well.

I have to tell one little story relating to Ski's article. The Tannu Tuva bond illustrated in Remembered (do not have the book handy to give a page number) is in my collection. I bought it at the 1994 NY International Coin Convention. Joe and I were there making a final push for information for the book and I was selling advertising.

At the table of Bill Henderson, I found the subject bond. It was instantly recognizable as a WWII item related to the Soviet bond issues. Bill had it correctly marked as Tannu Tuva, but I did not have a clue what/where that was. Of course I bought the item and put it in the dark (black hole) and started researching it. The results are the listings in the book. Marcus has taken us much farther and probably will go even farther. I cannot wait!

Dear Gram,

Sorry to hear about Judy, and you as well. I've been out of pocket for a couple of weeks and noticed the blank spots in the Gram, but decided to read some before complaining. Glad I did. Good reasons for not putting it out with perfect regularity do exist, and unfortunately those "good" reasons, are really not good at all.

May all that has gone wrong get better soon. Many of us are thinking of you.
Bill Murray

Dear Gram,

Unless something unforeseen comes up , It appears that I will be flying to the Fest with Doug Bell. :-)
, I am looking forward to this very much. Hope Judy is out of the Hospital by now and that both of you are doing better .

Sam Feedback

Dear Sam,

Great! You too were on that AWOL list. Every registrant extends the record participation!

Fun at F.U.N.

By Marcus Turner

This was my first time attending the FUN show and I must admit that it has been a wonderful experience.

I arrived with my father in Orlando late Wednesday night. Come Thursday morning we were ready for the show. My window to set up my exhibit was fairly short so we were at the convention center well before 8:00am. I picked up my exhibitor badge and set up the exhibit. As Larry mentioned in his report, I did have a minor snafu with one of the exhibit cases, but the FUN staff was well on top the situation, and had had everything set up before the 10:00am public opening.

I first ran into Al Glaser and Larry Ski during the ribbon cutting ceremony to open the show. Shortly after we congregated at David Seelye's table with Larry and Harold Kroll. For a coin show, this was definitely one of the best I have ever attended. Others at the show were Mike Cummings, David Amey, Joel Shafer, Neil Shafer, Leo May, John & Nancy Wilson, Howard Daniel and Jack Lippincott. I was also very pleased to have met with Gail Baker, director of education for the ANA. For the past two she has been the organizational brains behind the ANA summer seminar. During the afternoon I was paged to the FUN information center to meet Ken Simon. Ken is the president of the Tannu Tuva Collector's Society that Larry mentioned in his article. Meeting Ken is significant because he was the person who was responsible for me finding someone that could translate Tuvan into English. He had great insight into the country and politics of the WWII era. Thanks Ken!

Friday, rather than attending the show, I went fishing with my dad. For those sportsmen out there, the fishing was slow on lake Toho but I did manage to pull out a 4.5 pound bass. I must concede the fishing title to my dad who not only outfished me in terms of numbers but pulled a 5.5 pound bass.

Saturday morning came around all too early. This would be a very eventful day.

I had the privilege of previewing some of the material that is going to be in the Lynn Knight auction in the Chicago CPMX sale. I believe that the Marv Mericle speaks for itself. For those who are more into WWII material, Knight is offering a SPECIMEN set of Armee Belgie notes. It is a complete set!

Another item that caught my eye was a complete set of India POW camp notes from Bophal and Ramgarh. One of my personal favorites was a 5000 franc French Equatorial Africa essay. This piece was never issued and only exists in essay format. This should be wonderful auction for all of us.

Another highlight of the show was 13-year old Ben Kirsch of Sarasota Florida. This kid showed up at David and Harold's table and purchased a great pair of WWII notes. The first was a 100 dinar Serbia issue and the other was a 10 Katis Rubber Coupon from Sarawak. For a 13-year old to have an interest in such specialized items is truly spectacular. We treated him to a few gifts of various notes and a complimentary membership in the IBNS. I look forward to hearing from Ben in the future.

I also had the privilege of meeting with Herman Van Lieshout from the Netherlands. He was attending this show while visiting his daughter in the US. He too a particular interest in the EEN BROOD Dutch "Bread" coupons. We further asked to look at the newly discovered Belgian Winterhelp notes. He noted that they were indeed lottery notes supporting the Nazi Winterhelp program. Further they were printed in French and Dutch. This was strange since I was expecting it to be in Flemish. He further explained that Harold's collections only consists of a couple of the various series. It appears as though this discovery has only touched the tip of the iceberg.

Another highlight of the show was talking with Wendell Wokla. Anyone who knows Wendell, is familiar with his specialty in Indiana and Ohio National Banknotes and obsolete notes. I know him best for his book on Indiana Obsolete notes. Wendell is also signed up to attend MPC Fest IV. He has never been a collector of MPC or WWII material, but has religiously reads the Gram. I was excited to see that he purchased a very nice set of German Winterhelp notes. Could this be Wendell's big break into the WWII community? I sure hope so as he is a terrific numismatist. Can we expect to see Wendell start the Obsolete Gram? Lets hope so. Wendell, we look forward to having you at Fest IV.

I typically do not expect much from traditional coin shows, however this one has been absolutely wonderful.

It has been a great opportunity to meet with old friends and make some new ones and even spend some good time with my father. The show ends tomorrow (Sunday) and I will fly back to Indy in the evening. Congratulations to the organizers of the FUN show. I look forward to returning next year.

The latest problem with the nun nurse patrol was the cell phone. I was caught talking to a Gramster on the ol' portable, but that is strictly illegal here in the hospital or within 20 feet of the sister anywhere. I told her that I was talking to a Gramster on important Fest business, but she was not impressed. I invited her to the Fest, but did not get so much as a maybe. Now I am sure that she has a tail on me and possibly a hit squad is being organized.

Dear Gram,

I am interested in the MPC meeting Ohio on Feb. 27 thru the March 2. I just got back into collecting MPC again would like to learn more about what is new.

thank you
Bob

Dear Bob,

Thanks for writing--and welcome back. We have missed you! Below you will find some information on MPC Fest. A complete training schedule will be published in a few days. We only promise a good time!

Editor

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,

I was at a stamp show a couple of weeks ago that is almost next door to my wife's condo and found a man that has auctions with a LOT of military stuff. When I got home, I typed in "WWII" in his search for his next auction (Dec 2) and found a photograph of the Edison submarine. Wasn't it the one on a VN MPC? There are many other lots of interest to your readers.

The website is "<http://www.jamesjreeves.com>" and you can bid via email, and there is another auction Dec 30. Good hunting!!

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,

Looks like I made us miss the Dec 30 auction in addition to the Dec 2 one, but the web site might still be interesting. Then again, maybe I ran it before and this is just a test!

WWII US Notes-Updates

By Peter Huntoon

I have been working on a complete revision of the sections covering the U. S. World War II Hawaiian and North African issues for Fred's next edition of "Remembered."

One thing that you may know about that is generally missing from the numismatic literature is the post-Sicily use of the yellow seals. Everything you read states that they were used in North Africa, then used again in the invasion of Sicily, and maybe the invasion of Italy. Then the implication is that Allied Military lira replaced them as the Italian front was consolidated because a new type of currency was needed for both troop offensives and the civilian occupation.

However, there is a great inconsistency and ambiguity here. The first AMC was made in 1943 for Italy. However, all three denominations of the yellow seals continued to be printed through 1943 and 1944, with the last delivery to the Treasurer being made May 8, 1944.

Clearly they were being used for something long after the Sicilian and even Italian invasions. The questions I have for you follow.

Do you have any knowledge and documentation of where they were used after Sicily?

Is there any evidence that yellow seals were in fact used on the Western front after the invasion of Normandy? I suspect there is a good chance they were used along the western front because they arrived at the treasury just before D-Day.

Below is a draft of the overview on the yellow seals that I have written for Fred/Joe's book. Obviously this is incomplete and possibly misleading.

Would you be kind enough to provide anything that will improve it, or that will flesh it out. I want to get it right.

It would be most helpful if you would send your comments directly to me, as well as to the GRAM. Thank your very much for your help. My e-mail address is:

peter.huntoon@att.net

INTRODUCTION

There were two grand issues of World War II military currency interspersed within the regular United States civilian silver certificate and federal reserve issues: the Hawaii and North Africa/Sicily invasion notes. The first of these were the Hawaiian issues, conceived in January 1942, shortly after the bombing of Pearl Harbor. The first deliveries of the Hawaiian notes to the treasury were made early in June 1942. Initially they were designed to be defensive; that is, a distinctive currency that could be demonetized if we lost the Hawaiian Islands to the Japanese. They evolved into a form of invasion currency as the Pacific campaigns unfolded and the Hawaiian Islands become a secure back area.

In contrast, the North African issues were purely offensive, being conceived by the War Department in cooperation with the Treasury in September 1942 prior to Operation Torch, the invasion of North Africa. Desired was a distinctive currency that could be demonetized if our efforts failed allowing significant volumes of our currency to fall into German hands.

NORTH AFRICAN CURRENCY

The invasion of North Africa commenced just after 1 am under a new moon on November 8, 1942, when the first of 107,000 troops began landing at Casablanca, Morocco, and at Oran and Algiers, Algeria. They were opening a front spanning 900 miles stretching from the Atlantic coast west of the Straights of Gibraltar to well along the Mediterranean coast east of Gibraltar (Collier, 1977). Two thirds of the invaders were American, one third British. The Americans, and maybe the British, carried the distinctive yellow seals.

Operation Husky, until then most massive amphibious assault ever attempted, followed. Husky was the Allied offensive to establish a toehold on Sicily, to begin hitting the Axis in its soft underbelly. Wallace (1978) relates that the landings began July 10, 1943, and within 48 hours 80,000 troops, 7,000 vehicles, 300 trucks, 600 tanks and artillery pieces were shoved ashore. The flotilla that delivered them involved 3,300 seagoing craft of every description. Some 4,600 paratroopers carried by 222 planes and 144 gliders arrived three hours earlier to cause havoc behind the beachheads. The invasion force left from staging areas in England, the United States, North Africa and the Middle East. They carried yellow seals as invasion notes, notes that were serving for a second time as true military payment certificates in the German theater.

The use of the yellow seals subsequent to the invasion of Sicily is poorly documented in the numismatic literature. The last of them were made in June 1944, revealing that they probably played a role in the D-day storming of Normandy and the western front against Germany. Historically, they represented a transition between the regular currency of the United States, Allied Military Currency, and specially designed post war military payment certificates.

By 1943, the time had come to design currencies that could serve the economies of the vanquished nations. The Italian lira were the vanguard. Allied Military lira notes were secretly prepared in advance of the invasion of Italy. The work on the special lira began back on March 24, 1943, even before Sicily was invaded (Bureau of Engraving and Printing, 1962).

Editorial

Until recently, in response to Pete's questions above, I would have answered that I did not think that yellow seal dollars made it onto the continent of Europe after the invasion of Sicily, at least not in a major way.

Now I can state with assurance that yellow seal dollars were paid to service members returning to the United States. During the months after D-Day, there would not have been too many of these and the need would have been slight. In 1945 on the other hand the demand became significant. This little tidbit of information came from a document that will be reproduced completely in the Gram within the next few weeks, but this is all of the information that pertains to Pete's questions.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

Hope to see you at the FUN. This morning I am heading over to the pre-FUN in Clearwater, no table just walking the floor. AT FUN we'll have a corner table and as soon as I get the table number I will send it in.

We had a LAKE-FEST here in Lakeland the other day, with gramsters from both coasts attending! Nick Schrier all the way from California stopped by the shop here in Lakeland. We did not print any money for this get-together as it was such short notice, but Nick and I have agreed to autograph any MPC notes you send to us and return them with the now-famous LAKE-FEST stamp.

Please send only Series 471 or 541 $5.00 notes!

By the way I registered a plate number 5 and 8 in Doug's database [papermoneyworld.net] the other day. Anyone (Joe or Fred need them, advise). Interestingly when adding notes to the database I discovered I had a pretty neat fancy serial number, a Series 681 $1.00 C05555551C. It is now on its way to Doug Bell.....

Also the ad placed in the Gram was very successful, quite a few sales.

Thanks!

About that virus. This year I have restored my hard drive THREE (3) times! Supposedly I have the Klez32 and would very much enjoy getting my hands around the neck of the guy who started this. Just recently I restored my drive to the original state and it seems to still be in there somewhere.

Norton found no viruses, but McAfee found some that it said could not be cleaned. Even after my drive was restored I started receiving weird emails from people no longer in my address book and people also receiving them from me. How this is possible with my hard drive supposedly as clean as a whistle is a mystery to me. Just this morning

And another thing happened recently that made me change all my passwords for all my different accounts. As an added measure I put all the passwords in Japanese and added numbers as well. Why? eBay called me one day a couple weeks ago and wanted to know if I had recently listed a lot of Nokia cameras, cell phones, etc. When I said no I found out that some one had broken into our eBay account, change our password and email address! Then they listed a bunch of items and was hoping that they'd get the emails and money when the items were bought. eBay promptly cancelled all the bogus auctions and is working on the case. BE CAREFUL is all I can say. I am ready to go back to the good old days of snail mail, checks for payment, and printed pricelists!

A VERY Happy New Year to all gramsters!

Mike Cummings

Operation Torch, the Allied invasion of North Africa Revisited

by Joe Boling

Peter Huntoon yesterday talked about Operation Torch, the Allied invasion of North Africa. I will always have an interest in that because from 1953 to 1955 I lived on a ridge that looked down on the beaches where Patton's troops came ashore. My father was an OSI agent at Nouasseur Air Base, inland from Casablanca, in those years. We lived in Fedala, about fifteen miles up the coast from Casa (and about 30-odd miles from the base--our Moroccan school bus drivers occasionally raced each other over the route).

We lived on an estate named Tranquillite, which belonged to Prince Murat (one of the pretenders to the throne of France), in a house known as Villa Dame Bleu (it was haunted by a ghost in a blue djellaba). The Prince did not live there full time--in fact, I'm not sure he was there at all during our tenure. The estate manager was a Chilean whose name I don't recall. The estate was primarily a farm, with crops alternating between wheat and tomatoes as the seasons rolled.

The Prince's house was Patton's HQ during the days (weeks?) following the landing. Villa Dame Bleu was used to house officers on Patton's staff. There was a small wooded area between our house and the Prince's (with another small house between, also rented to a US military family). Those woods, in 1953 (eleven years after the landings), were still criss-crossed with trenches, mostly filled to a depth of about eighteen inches (and the fillings were often garbage and feces, not pleasant to play in).

About two miles away, on a beach south of the center of town (we were about even with the northern limit and about a half mile inland) was a coast artillery gun of moderate caliber, in the shadow of which I one day picked up a piece of metal with a center hole that seemed to be a washer, except for the potential inscriptions under the heavy layer of corrosion. I took it home and applied the Brillo to it; it turned out to be a Moroccan copper-nickel 25 centime piece, my first example of obsolete Moroccan coinage. I may still have that in the junk box I use for kids, though I expect it has been given away (I recall seeing the first foreign coin I ever collected leave that way in 1984--a Belgian zinc one-franc piece (SB6104) that came from under the linoleum in the kitchen in San Antonio when I was in the fifth grade).

For my biographical collection I long had examples of the notes printed in Casablanca shortly after the landings (SB1511 and 1512), representing Morocco but not Fedala. I knew of no emission from Fedala that I could collect. Lo and behold, one day in an Eric Boone auction there appeared a share certificate from a fishing company in Fedala, French Morocco.

Needless to say, that certificate is in my biographical collection now. Thanks for the memories, Peter.

Attention, now hear this, now hear this: The Fest is Days Away!

Editorial

I'm sorry to say the Fred is at Judy bed side and apparently very ill I'm going to try and put out any information I can to help the gamesters Feed the addiction to a publication that has us all checking out email hourly for a fix.
Your input is needed more than ever right now.
And ill try to organize the gram in the same format as Fred.
I will most likely Refrain from making comments about articles as my experience in this vast array of WW2 material is very limited.

Fun show report

I was sorry to read about the sickness for you and Judy.
Judy does not deserve it, but I have to think about it for you.
The FUN Show was pretty good for me but all of them are because I enjoy the fellowship there and any purchases are just gravy. There were a couple of Gramster MIAs, but I did meet quite a few of them there!
On Friday, I often rested at David Seelye's table and there was often a very rude man by the name of Harold Kroll there with him. Do any of you know him? The only item I bought that day was a 1818-dated Mexican 8 Reales with chops from Narit of Mikell International. Narit also introduced me to his new bride, which was quite a surprise. I hope both of them are very happy together!! But the 8 Reales chops also included what I think is a countermark for someone. It is a very small bow and arrow!! Anyone know about it? Len Harsel's wife Sue paged me. She was inviting me to dinner with the Murphy's but I had to decline because I usually go to dinner on Friday nights with someone else. But then that person was unavailable, so I went to bed early.
Saturday morning I was bothered with a telephone call from Larry Thurski about a box of Series 692 oil paintings he is taking to something called the MPC Fest. The $10 painting already belongs to you, but the others can be sold to anyone who wants them.
I need to figure out the minimum price for the other four paintings because I had to pay $117.50 extra to get it on my flight back from Ho Chi Minh City. Anything over my minimum can go into the scholarship fund. How does that sound?
Then I was forced to sit at the same breakfast table with this Harold Kroll guy and Mr Thurski. But two gentlemen by the name of Turner showed up! Marcus and his father sat at a nearby table, and then David Seelye and his wife were behind us. The atmosphere definitely got better than when I first arrived!
I went by many tables of Gramsters and others with SE Asian and Military "stuff" but many of them were busy and I did not stop to chat. I probably looked through the stock of about ten dealers, but I found only one note to buy and it was a rare Pathet Lao overprint from Ian Marshall's stock. It was nice to see Ian's wife again.

After taking a few pictures for my World Coin News article about
FUN (and Raleigh's show on the way down), I said goodbye and was on the road a little early to meet two godchildren near Gainesville,
Florida, for our annual dinner.
I wish more of you were down there because it was a nice time and the temperature was in the 60s and 70s, compared to a high in the 30s back here in Virginia and probably where you are located too.
See you in Charlotte?

Subject: Item for MPCGram - US Constabulary

United States Constabulary in Germany/Austria
by Howard A. Daniel III

I just received my January 2003 issue of "Army" magazine and found an article titled "Mobility Vigilance Justice" by BG Albin F. Irzyk,
US Army Retired. The article was about his experiences in the creation and serving in the United States Constabulary (USC), which "policed" large parts of Germany and Austria
after WWII.
It was also about the opening of the USC Museum at Fort Riley,
Kansas on June 21, 2002.
This unit was present in Germany and Austria when many of the financial instruments collected by Gramsters were introduced and used. I am sure that this museum will at least give one or more of you many leads to information and pieces of interest to Gramsters!
The names of who served in the USC should be traced to their homes to find those who are still alive, but also those who have deceased and maybe their survivors kept their papers and souvenirs.
And you might be lucky and actually see some of the pieces and documentation about them in the museum.
It appears the general is still alive, and I think with a little research, we can find where he is retired in the US. I am sure he has some first-hand information and maybe some "souvenirs" in his possessions.
Who is going to be the first person to visit the museum, and who will contact the general?

Sick call
*****

Fred,

Please know that Jeanne and I have all our best wishes and prayers for Judy and you. We have missed much recent info , and don't really know all that is wrong with either of you, but our relationship with you, Fred, is a long one, dating back to before the acquisition of the "fanmous" TM, and though I've met Judy,

I believe, only once, we wish both of you all the best. May all go well with the two of you

Best Wishes and God Bless,
Bill Murray

The Thurski Report

Since I haven't seen it announced in any of the recent Grams, let me tell you that Marcus Turner won First Place in the Paper Money Division for exhibits at the FUN show. Marcus's exhibit of Russian Bonds and Lottery Tickets is a great exhibit and he has done a lot of work with it. In my opinion it should also have been selected as Best of Show as it truly was the best exhibit on the floor. But since Paper Money is the poor step cousin of those darn things that don't bend, the event judges chose not to agree with me. We just have to keep working to educate those hard money people that we do have something to offer and maybe someday they will see the light. Could be that a complementary subscription to the Gram might help. Anyway, congratulations to Marcus. As we say down south, "You dun good". Keep up the good work.

This is the week of the month that I go back into my stack of stuff and pull out another 25 year old Bank Note Reporter.

It's always interesting to go back and relive what was happening in the hobby world that long ago and the January 1978 issue is no disappointment. The front page of the issue has a story entitled "Schwan-Boling Book Slated" It seems hard to imagine the world without a Schwan-Boling book, but at this time, World War II Military Currency was still about six months away. This was the first major release for the BNR Press which was incorporated by Schwan in January of 1977. There are seven photo's that picture the type of notes that would be featured in the new book. One of them still remains on my most coveted and wanted list. It is the 100 Kroner from the Danish series of Allied Military Currency. The note pictured is a Specimen and is still the plate note in World War II Remembered. Until this last year, the note was only known as a Specimen, but a Gramster in Denmark has now reported it in a collection as an issued note.

Just this past week, Pete Huntoon had a Gram article about looking for addition information on the Hawaii and North Africa notes. Well. 25-years ago he had a column in the Bank Note Reporter about how the Cxxxxxxx serial numbers of the Hawaii and North Africa notes interfaced with the regular issues. And some of you folks think this hobby is static! The research is never ending.

Under the heading "IBNS Meeting" it was reported that Neil Shafer presented a program at the New York International Coin Convention about the Emergency Scrip of Modern Italy, 1943 to date. Of course this included the circulating checks of Italy issued during World War II.

The Military Vignettes column by Fred Schwan was a review of the military numismatic happenings of 1977. It was in that year that the MPC Series 651 ractionals were confirmed. Also uncovered in that year were the Joint Export-Import Agency Travelers' Coupons for use in Germany. Now twenty-five years later, we discover these coupons were denominated in Reichmarks as well as Deutsche Marks.

It was also in that year that the fourth and fifth series of BAFSV's and the essay's of the BMA second series were first reported. The BMA's never saw the light of day as they were abandoned for the BAFSV's.

Another great find in 1977 was the report of the Turnkey Scrip printed for use of a contractor who was to build the huge Tuy Hoa complex in Viet Nam. It was never issued, but is of interest to me and to another Gramster who had a set of these notes for a very short time before they were snatched from the back seat of his car. These two stories about these notes have been printed in earlier Grams.

Finally, a picture appears of a much younger Fred Schwan, nattily attired in a leisure suit (remember them?) accepting a best of show award for his presentation of Military Currency of Occupied Germany at the Michigan State Numismatic Society Convention. The one you will get a kick out of is that a gentleman by the name of 'William Shields won first place in US Paper Money for his display of none other than US Military Payment Certificates, Series 681. The category was divided into US and Foreign, so Fred came through the foreign ranks to the Best of Show award.

Vietnam War Remembered Reference
by Howard A. Daniel III

Awhile ago, I started a discussion here about having a Vietnam War Remembered like the WWII Remembered reference. I received some input from a couple of Gramsters and stored it in a file along with some of my information and planned to update it on a periodic basis.

While at the FUN Show in Orlando this past week, I ran into Ray Bows again and his significant other, Pia Problemi. She is a wonderful woman and better than Ray deserves, but I guess you could say that about most of us and our significant others.

While Ray was away making a deal to buy and/or sell something, I was looking through his stock with Pia. When he returned, we somehow started talking about references, and it popped out of him that he was working on another Vietnam War reference, but much more expanded than his first. This is exactly what was proposed for the Vietnam War Remembered book, and I hope he will use the title. And that someone uses Korean War Remembered too!

If you do not know him, Ray is a retired Army Master Sergeant (like myself) and we were numismatists when we were on active duty and during our tours in Viet Nam and elsewhere. His address is now 205 Meadow Lake Drive, Edgewater, FL 32141 and his email is NamLore@hotmail.com.

I am sending my information and/or illustrations to him for his Vietnam War Remembered reference, and I hope you do the same. He has requested me to have him added to the MPCGram email list and I hope he periodically writes an item and/or letter to the MPCGram to keep us informed on the progress of his work. Ray also has a LOT of military-oriented stock and I hope he lists some of it for sale in the MPCGram too.

I do not know if Ray has any more of his Vietnam Military Lore 1959-1973 references, but if you do not have it in your library and collect this material, you need it because it has information in it that is not in any other reference.

I am looking forward to Ray and you working together on Vietnam War Remembered. Lets get to it!

Series 004 - Number 830 Sunday January 19, 2003

Tannu Tuva War Bonds of WWII

Fred has been tempting me with this topic for several weeks now and his editorial in Gram #823 has certainly motivated me to move on this topic.

World War II numismatics is not particularly known for colorful and artistic vignettes although there are some wonderful exceptions. One grouping of such an exception is the Soviet War Bonds (examples are shown in WWII remembered page 375). These bonds contain some of the most interesting vignettes produced during the war. They feature elaborate battle scenes with soldiers, tanks and airplanes engaged in combat. They are very easy to be drawn to.

But what is the deal with this strange Tannu Tuvan bond shown on page 370? It is certainly the same style as the Soviet pieces however the vignette would suggest a battle scene from the 1900s, not WWII. The scene features soldiers mounted on horses with swords drawn, charging into battle. It is a very romantic but archaic scene, even back in the 1940s. Indeed this piece immediately captured my imagination.

As my collection of Soviet War Bonds progressed, I found it less expensive and much more fun to import the pieces rather than buying through domestic dealers. Each time I would make a new contact, I would inquire about the Tannu Tuva bond shown in the book. With each inquiry came questions rather than answers. As the collectors and dealers within the former Soviet Republics began to ask what I was talking about, I found it easier to send a scan of the photo in the book. The scan only brought more questions since the text was written in Tuvan, although most eastern collectors thought the language was Mongolian.

<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/800-899/marcus1.htm>

Background Information: Tannu Tuva is located in the Tannu Mountains between Siberia and northwestern Mongolia. The specific size and shape of the country has changed much over the years reflecting several political shifts. The above link displays an excerpt of a map from 1943 showing Tannu Tuva (in red) nestled between the U.S.S.R (in orange) and Mongolia (in green). Since the early 1900s Tannu Tuva has experienced several political shifts under influence from Mongolia, China and the U.S.S.R. Between 1941 and 1944 the country was known as the Tuvanian People's Republic although under heavy influence of the U.S.S.R. The influence was so great that on September 8, 1943 the text on the national flag incorporated Cyrillic letters. In 1945 it became a fully integrated protectorate of the U.S.S.R. until the fall of the U.S.S.R. in 1992.

In 1994 at the New York International Coin Convention Fred acquired what was the only Tannu Tuva War Bond ever recognized (at the time). His find, out of the inventory of dealer Bill Henderson, is a 1943 100 Aksha (Ruble) Bond. The challenge encountered with this bond is that it is a specimen with no issued pieces to verify use of this new variety. He published the bond in his 1995 edition of World War II Remembered which quickly became the primary cataloging source of Soviet war bonds for numismatists in the former Soviet republics. Of the eastern numismatists that were familiar with the illustration in the book, most were quick to reject the notion that a special war bond had been produced for Tannu Tuva suggesting that the illustration in the book was a photo copy of a proposed design from a state archive. Since no regular issue pieces had been seen in collections, this was an easy (and proper) argument to make.

(Ruble) found its way into my collection at the Memphis show. It remains to date the only regular issue of any denomination or series of Tannu Tuva World War II bond ever identified. This piece proves that the 1943 Tannu Tuva bond was at least prepared for issue. The fact that the note is in VF condition suggests that it had been issued, although more research would be helpful. No additional series or denominations of specimens have been found since Fred's 1994 discovery.

The bond was printed by Gosnak, the Soviet State printer with design and security features consistent with the Soviet World War II Bonds.

The Tannu Tuva bonds however are written in the Tuvan language. Statistics I have encountered concerning the language suggest that an estimated 200,000 people in the world speak this language concentrated in Russia, China and Mongolia. Trying to get the bond translated proved just as difficult as acquiring the piece in the first place. From start to end the process took about six months of searching. I obviously started with the contacts I had made within the former Soviet Republics. When I had exhausted those resources I began to look on the internet for individuals or businesses within the Tannu Tuva area. This approach failed to produce even one response. I even attempted to hire a translation service in northern China to translate the front of the bond. They could not do it. Finally I turned to some resources in the US. My first break in the quest for a translation came from Ken Simon. You might remember him mentioned by Larry and myself in Grams 823 and 824, since we were both able to meet him in person at the FUN show last week. Ken is the founder and president of the Tannu Tuvan Collectors Society. This society primarily focuses on Philatelic items (being the most plentiful collectible from Tuva) although their scope also extends into the very limited area of Tuvan numismatics. He made the rather surprising suggestion that I contact the Indiana University Center for Mongolian Studies. Now, I have a bachelor's and master's degree from Indiana University and have never heard of the Center for Mongolian Studies, but sure enough Ken was correct. I found an email address for the center and sent them my plea for assistance. Within a week I received a response. It turns out that they only knew of two people who were capable in translating the piece. One of them was a retired, 75-year-old linguistics professor from Indiana University, John Krueger, who still lives in Bloomington, Indiana. The university had forwarded my message to Dr. Krueger and by that evening I received a phone call from him. He was a very pleasant person to chat with and had some great insight into both the Tuvan language and the Tannu Tuva itself. As it turns out Dr Krueger is the author of the "Tuvan Manual" and had amassed an entire library on the subject. I placed a copy of the bond in the mail to him (he is somewhat "attachment impaired" just as many of us gramsters are). A couple of days later I received an email from him with a translation. The interesting thing about the Tuvan language is that in terms of sentence structure it is exactly backwards to English, so the translation literally reads backwards. Later that week, Dr. Krueger had forwarded me a second translation that was provided by J. Eric Slone (AKA "The Tuvan Trader") of Woodbridge, VA. Eric just happened to be the other person referenced by the IU Center for Mongolian Studies. The bond reads as follows:

"Tuvan People's Republic
In the year of 1943
Aid for the Front
Government Established Obligation
Of Local Currency
Promissory Note
Sum of 10 Rubles"

I find it absolutely amazing that the search for a translation that started quite literally on the other side of the globe was finally fulfilled in my own backyard. The back of the bond indicates that denominations of 100, 50, 25 and 10 Aksha (Ruble) were available.

In discussing WWII Tannu Tuva with Ken Simon at the FUN show, he revealed that he had heard of Tuvan regiments serving under Russian leadership during WWII. He further referenced an article (Ken might have authored, I cannot remember...) indicating that Tannu Tuva was credited with raising money to buy Soviet aircraft used to fight the Germans. Hopefully, more information from that article will be forthcoming in future Grams.

For now we only have the two pieces to work with, although I have not given up the search for more. Tannu Tuva was and is a very poor region, thus very few bonds were likely to have been issued. Further complicating matters, the mail out of the region is reported to be highly unreliable and subject to looting. While I do not suspect that any quantity of these bonds will ever be located and successfully brought to market, examples of other denominations would be a wonderful addition to our knowledge of these items.

Hi Fred, this is Ken Kugler and I want to know if there are people who are collecting the new stuff right now? The reason I ask is that a friend and I got together in Florida last week and his son was in town and he is in the Marines. I got to talking about numismatics and MPC came up and the son mentioned that at the base he was at they used chits and he still had some. I told him to hold on to them and I would get back to him soon.
Thanks a lot and hope to hear from you soon,
Ken Kugler

New finds - Boeing Employees' Coin Club annual show

By Joe Boling

Local collector Richard Billings reports discovery of a BEF POW token for 50 centimes, Campbell 5533, but octagonal, 25mm across the flats. I have seen the piece, and it obviously is not a cut-down version of a round token; there are rims on all edges of both sides. It is magnetic, as it should be. In an email exchange with Billings, Campbell says he believes it is the discovery piece. I expect Billings will have it up on eBay shortly.

At the same show where I saw that piece, I acquired a group of French charity pieces not unlike the Bons de Solidarite. These have no proper denominations; will someone with better French than mine please tell us what these say? FACE: Cent Vaillants 100. Les cathedrales de France vaillantes, joyeuses et fieres chantent comme nos ames a la joie de servir. Designer apparently Henri Neveu. Imprint Edipax, Paris. Images of two cathedrals. BACK: Cent Vaillants 100. Si-ce n'est pas le seigneur qui construit le cote, en vain travaillent ceux qui battissent. Initials CV and AJ (or AU) in emblems at corners; same designer and imprints as face. Images of children building cathedrals and Christ overwatching. I translate the inscription as: (face) 100 valiants. The brave cathedrals of France, joyful and proud, sing with our spirits to the joy of service. (back) Is it not the Lord who builds the number, in vain we work in masonry (doubtful translation). FACE: 50 Cinquante Vaillants 50. Tous unis pour monter. Same designer/imprint. Roped climbing party ascending a glacier. Same initials in corners as back of 100 vaillants piece. BACK: 50 vaillants. Toujours plus haut toujours plus beau. Images of castle on hill, valley with town and bridge, large two-engine monoplane above. Initials AJ (AU) in emblem at lower center. Designer HN and same imprint as above.

I translate the inscription as: (face) All together for climbing. (back) Ever higher, ever better. All of these are in wretched condition, with pieces missing, multiple tears, and stains. The 50v is larger than the 100v. Third type, uniface: Dix Vaillants. L'ame vaillant a toujours le sourire, le coeur vaillant fait bien ce qu'il fait. Le coeur vaillant est ardent au travail comme au jeu. L'ame vaillant a le regard franc et le coeur pur. Nous referons. Une France plus belle. Images of five girls facing five boys, a white Latin cross between, faint letters US on either side of cross. Same initials in emblems as above pieces, but this time the AJ/AU is on the left, and looks more like AV; still CV at right. Designer F.A.Breysse, no imprint. I translate the inscriptions as: The valiant friend is always a delight, the valiant heart is good. The valiant heart is strong and work becomes a game. The valiant friend is a sincere look and a pure heart. We trust. One France, most good. Please offer improvements on the translations, and can anyone provide the significance of the initials?

Last item--Ration Card. Atlantic Base Section Transient/Army Exchange Service NAFW-ATC. This card will be issued to all transients in the ABS area. The holder may purchase all items on the reverse side, plus beverages, ice cream, magazines, books, native goods and other unrationed items, but not clothing or equipage. I certify that I have not procured rations for the period covered below. Name/Rank/Valid for 7 days from ____ to ____/Issued by Name/Rank. Stamp-dated Aug 22 1944, JOHN C, O'CONNOR/Capt. A,C/Transient Service Officer. What's NAFW-ATC? What branch of service is A,C? [Maybe Air Corps.] The back has a long list of rationed items, several of which have been punched out with a crescent punch. I also acquired another position 8 note and a counterfeit pair of 661 $10 (one bad, one good) from gramster Tom Koch.

Editorial

The above Fest training schedule was prepared several weeks ago, but the pressing medical situation kept it in the out box until today.

As stated, we want your comments, suggestions, etc about the plan. We also need your cooperation. If you will not be at the Fest, but want to have material sold at the Fest auction, please contact Phil or Ski pronto. We hope to expand the absentee bidding this year. Actually, it was quite successful last year in spite of technical, organizational, and leadership (mine) problems.

If you plan to attend the Fest, but have not confirmed your reservation, please send it ASAP. Custom preparations are necessary. Rest assured, that early registration will NOT net you guard duty.

Thanks.

Fred

Dear Editor:

I always enjoy David Klinger's articles. He certainly knows how to mine the Internet. One of my first reactions to his article in the GRAM, Number 831, on the "Discontinuance of Scrip" was - and this is classified SECRET!! The rather innocent description of withdrawing scrip from Europe in 1958 was classified SECRET until 2001.

Nevertheless, good work.

Warner

Dear Editor,

I hope you and your wife are feeling better. I missed you at the FUN show. Sign me up for the Fest. I will see you at Chicago.

History of the Challenge Coin

Submitted by Mark "Sparky" Watson

This article is located in the current issue of TIG Brief, Jan-Feb 2003, page 18. TIG Brief is the magazine of the Inspector General of the Air Force. I have called the magazine and verified that it is okay to reprint the article as long as the citation of the article was included. Also, not sure if the following link will work unless you have a .mil account, but the whole magazine can be found at:

<https://www-4afia.kirtland.af.mil/TIG-Brief/TIG-Brief-index.htm>

Editor's Note: The Air Force Inspection Agency has a proactive Challenge Coin program, ensuring that everyone receives an AFIA coin with a history of the tradition. TIG Brief passes along these words from the certificate.

During World War I, American volunteers from all parts of the country filled the newly formed flying squadrons. Some were wealthy scions attending colleges such as Yale and Harvard who quit in midterm to join the war. In one squadron, a wealthy lieutenant ordered medallions struck in bronze with the squadron emblem for every member of his squadron. He himself carried his medallion in a small leather pouch about his neck. Shortly after acquiring the medallions, this pilot's aircraft was severely damaged by ground fire. He was forced to land behind enemy lines and was immediately captured by a German patrol. To discourage his escape, the Germans took all of his personal identification except for the leather pouch. In the meantime, he was taken to a small French town near the front. Taking advantage of a bombardment that night, he donned civilian clothes and escaped. However, he was without personal identification. He succeeded in avoiding German patrols and reached the front lines. With great difficulty he crossed no man's land. Eventually, he stumbled onto a French outpost. Unfortunately, the French in this sector of the front had been plagued by saboteurs who sometimes masqueraded as civilians and wore civilian clothes. Not trusting the young pilot's American accent, the French thought him to be another German saboteur and made ready to execute him. Just in time, he remembered his leather pouch containing the medallion. He showed the medallion to his would-be executioners. His French captors recognized the squadron insignia on the medallion and delayed long enough to confirm his identity. Instead of shooting him, they gave him a hot meal and a bottle of wine. Back with his squadron, it became a tradition to ensure that all members carried their medallion or coin at all times. This was accomplished through a challenge in the following manner: a challenger would ask to see the coin. If the challenged member could not produce his coin, he was required to purchase a drink of choice for the member who had challenged him. If the challenged member produced his coin, then the challenging member was required to pay for the drink. This tradition continued throughout the war and for many years after, while surviving members of the squadron were still alive. The (your unit name here) proudly continues this tradition today.

Have you been to a Fest? Why not? Now is your chance. The Fest is the only numismatic event in the world that pays you to attend. Yes, you pay a registration fee, then you are PAID as part of the event. The minimum pay for a first time Fester is at least equal to the registration fee!

I have a little secret goal. We had 12 Festers at Fest one. I would love to have at least 12 new Festers at Fest IV and we are close with 8 new Festers reserving space. There is at least one other strong candidate who has not spoken up yet (do you hear me Ed?) and there must be some other candidates. Sign up or recruit a Fester now!

Hey Bunker hope your holidays are going fine but I thought I would drop a line and wish you happy holidays and let you know that I sold some of my duplicate notes to some luck gramsters and when they told me that they were gramsters I discounted them even more I figure its better then selling them (giving them) to a dealer!? But any way you asked me whether I was going to attend the fest and I sure would like to come but have no info on it could you forward me some info so I can schedule the time off to attend and also if there is a schedule of events that has been compiled I would like that too? Why you ask because I would like to attend any and all educational offerings that the fest would have to offer yes Mr. know it all needs to know more and for his own good I am currently selling off a lot of my coin collections and will be reinvesting much of it in MPC I think it has more potential then many of the coins I collect plus my coin are starting to all look a like! I wonder why? BECAUSE THEY DO! I am serious I am going to invest in MPC and paper money as it is more of historic Art to me and no matter how many times I look at it I see other things in it! I am sure you know what I mean. I wish I had the talent those engravers had. so if you have any info please send it.

Or email it, would be appreciated. Also do you have any past souvenir fest cash that is for sale I am interested in having copies of it for my collection? as always Thank you in advance for any insight to these subjects. Why is there no link on the website to find out this valuable info for us new punks on the block? Happy Holidays

Special "K"

Dear K,

Well, I missed getting your letter in for the holidays, sorry. Sometimes the P in MPC stands for procrastination.

I suspect that you can find some Fest money at the Fest! I am delighted to add your name to the record setting list!

Fest Auction Update

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

This is my last plea for auction lots for the Fest Auction. I know we have beaten this dead dog to a pulp, but I don't want anyone coming up to me on the first day of Fest saying can you get just this one more lot in. With all the attention that this subject has gotten in the Gram for the last couple of weeks, I have received a total of two inputs during that time. That has to mean that there is nothing else out there.

That's fine, because I am over 100 lots which is just about all we can handle. I just don't want to see anyone disappointed.

This ought to be a real great event as have been the previous Fest auctions. Thanks to the generosity of Gramsters, the Scholarship Fund should benefit greatly from the sale of the donations that have been received. Our thanks go out to Steve Feller, Frank Clark, Bill Hines, Howard Daniel, Pam West, Doug Bell, Mr 691 and Dave Seelye for their donations. We owe Dave an exception vote of thanks for his generosity as over 50 lots in the sale have been donated by him. By the way, not all the lots for sale are donations, we do take lots for personal sale with a 10% sellers fee.

We have a number of really great items, of which I will mention only a few in order to claim your interest. We have a couple of Roosevelt Dam post cards. Most of you will recognize that the back of the 692/ $20 pictures the Roosevelt Dam. These will make great additions to any MPC collection and particularly if you exhibit your collection.

Another one of the lots is a belt buckle from the Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps. First item of this type that I have seen. It is a nice shiny example. On the dull side colorwise that is, we have a Chinese officers ammo and storage container. This is a great item that you very seldom see. Or how about some large size paintings of actual MPC notes. I have not seen these yet as they will not be uncrated until they arrive in Port Clinton. But I have been told that they will be highly prized.

War bonds from both allied and axis countries are not the easiest items to find at a show. We are lucky to have a French war bond and two Chinese Liberty Bonds. I bought my French Bond over fifteen years ago and haven't seen another one offered since that time. So anyone interested in that kind of material should check out these lots.

Additionally we have some real nice notes in the auction. There is a CU two kroner Norway 1942 Government-in-exile note as well as an uncirculated French Indo-china Ro note. A 100 peso JIM specimen with mi-hons on the left and right should interest collectors of Japanese specimen currency. There are also some great high grade MPC (XF or better) for those that didn't get what they were after in the Marv Mericle sale. And if your into replica notes, we also have the mother load of those items in the sale.

One of the most interesting group of items in the sale are the four fractionals from series 681 signed by the seaman standing nearest the flag on the submarine. These have been signed on crisp uncirculated notes. I have decided to break this set into four individual lots so that more people can get a chance at one of these.

Of course, no Fest auction would be complete without a mystery lot. Due to a unique donation, we will again have a mystery lot that should tempt many of you in attendance. I'm sure that you will find a number of items in this year auction of interest to you.

Today was one of those Fred misadventures for which I am all too well known. Unfortunately, I will have to wait till tomorrow to tell it because it is just too long to work on tonight!

We are excited to add to New Festers to the list! It seems that the goal of 12 New Festers is in sight. Marv Mericle and George Fitzgerald deserve some recruiting credit here. Who can recruit a few more NFs?

Dear Editor,

Thank you so much for the gram, I have learned so much. I have some gefangenen-lager from Chemnitz, is this German POW money? In what catalog would I find them listed? Please give your wife my best and I hope all is well, I pray for you every day.

Best wishes
Allen Berk

Dear Esteemed Editor: After much prodding by Marv Mericle and George Fitzgerald, I have decided to attend my first Fest. I look forward to seeing my friends and meeting some new ones. Bill Haines.

Dear Editor,

With much chagrin I am going to be missing ship's movement that would enable me to attend Fest IV. My bride of over 30 years (the squadron commander) is refusing to give me a 5 day leave to board the ship and get to Ohio. I hope this offense is not punishable under any articles of the Uniformed Code of Military Justice.

Tom Koch

Tom,

File an appeal immediately! With all of this crowing that I have been doing about new Festers, etc, it breaks my heart to REMOVE a name from the list.

Editor

Dear Editor,

For the time allotted on Feb 28th 1930 to 2030 I would like to suggest the following topic for discussion. "Feng Shui and the art of Numerical organization in the Cosmos" The branch off topics are limitless (as you well know.) We must all know more about the interaction of the five elements upon our collections!

Gary "Who has Fours?" Hicks

I would like to add 1 event to the Saturday morning where I layout a complete position number set of 641's 5 cent through 10$ and have a picture of the sheets taken. I request this to start to take place at 6 am and a picture taken at 6:41 am. volunteers welcome for the layout.

Doug Bell

Dear Doug,

We are adding this unique event to the training schedule. I can guess one volunteer to work on this series 641 project! Furthermore, all volunteers will be excused from physical training on Saturday!

USAA Patriotic Coin
by Howard A. Daniel III

A couple of months ago or so my Army Times arrived with a flyer from USAA. The title on one side of the flyer is "USAA would like to offer you a free patriotic coin for your commitment to our nation." To receive the "coin", you must not already be a member of USAA, and you must call 1-888-558-8825 and give the promotional code of "ASCN" to the representative. For many Gramsters who are members, have someone who is former military and/or not a member call for you. The other side of the flyer has "Have you been "coined" lately" and I am sure they are trying to make this appear to be a challenge coin like is issued in the military. The obverse design of the "coin" has a flying eagle with part of the U.S. flag in the background and "Proud Member" and "United States Armed Forces" around the edge, and the reverse design has a very thin star-like design in the center with "Coast Guard," "Army," "Marines," "Navy" and "Air Force," and "United We Stand" and "Defenders Of Freedom" around the edge.

It is a handsome looking partly enameled piece and I called them for mine, but it has yet to arrive. Good luck in obtaining yours.

Editorial

Boy was is cold. That is the good AND the bad news as you will see.

Guido Crapanzano offered to provide copies of his great new book on Italian paper money to Gramsters and Festers at a very special price—about what it cost to get it here. Obviously, when he told me about this idea, I agreed instantly.

The air freight shipment arrived while Judy was hospitalized. Mail, fax, cell phone, email, and other messaged bombarded me while I attended to Judy in various hospitals across Ohio. I could hardly be bothered.

Wednesday I finally was able to talk to the agent who had initiated the barrage of messages. She was surprisingly pleasant considering the way that I had ignored her. The critical point was that Thursday was the last day for free storage of the shipment. After Thursday, we (I) would have to pay storage. Oh by the way she said, we also owe $250 for customs clearance, $50 for administrative fee (probably $1 each for the messages that she had sent me), $25 for this and do not forget $25 for that.

We also needed notarized authorizations, translations of the invoice, shipping documents, and other administritiva. She also told me that I could pick up the shipment or she would be happy to arrange delivery. A small shipment she said, only about $450. I quickly said that I would pick it up.

Faxes were exchanged and I was promised that the shipment would be ready on Thursday as long as I delivered the required notarized documents and, of course, checks.

I went to bed wondering how I would do what I said and pick up the books. I have picked up loads of books many times. Sometimes with rented or borrowed trucks, sometimes simply in the trunk of a car and about all other possible ways.

I woke up with the answer. I decided to take my old station wagon that had been in dry dock for nearly a year.

I have been exercising the car regularly, but have not used it recently. The weather was dreadful when I headed for the Cleveland air freight terminal (about 90 miles). When I started it was cold and snowing. Half an hour later it was still both of those, but it was snowing horizontally and visibility was down to about 50 feet.

That is when I remembered that I had cancelled the insurance on this car because I was not driving it. At the half way point I figured that I had little choice but to continue. To say that I drove with greater care is to understate the care that was necessary just to keep going.

Remarkably, I found the freight warehouse without difficulty, but that does not mean that I was pleased. Visitors (like me) had to stand outside a window negotiating for the release of their goods. My feet were frozen by the time that I passed the required checks through the window. I held my breath, but there was no demand for the notarized documents once I gave them the checks. The clerks summoned a loading dock worker to “help” me.

I should have had doubts when the fellow arrived looking like a refugee from NASA simulating a moon walk. We went into the warehouse which somehow was colder than the outside! Frigid.

He took the documents and came back with a forklift load of books. As wonderful as Guido’s offer was, he got a little carried away! Fifteen hundred pounds of books jammed into two huge boxes. Eventually, we were able to get the smaller of the two boxes into the wagon. I was willing to leave the whole thing if necessary to warm my frozen feet and by then hands. The lift driver said that I could leave the other box for a few days. I did not ask about the deadline for paying storage—I didn’t care.

Somehow I made it to a restaurant to get a cup of coffee. It was hot and wonderful, but it was also dark as I headed toward home making the visibility that much worse.

As I pulled to the first stop light a police car pulled up behind me. Before we pulled away the officer turned on his lights and pulled me over. How could he know that I did not have insurance?

Of course he could not know that, but he did determine a related problem. The car had expired license plates.

Luckily I had my driver’s license with me. I only had that because Judy made me replace the one that I had lost long before, but that is another story.

When the officer returned to my car after checking my less-than-stellar driving record via radio. I asked for leniency. Begged, actually. He correctly pointed out that he was giving me a break by not having the car towed. I knew that he was right, so I let that line drop.

I saw that he had my citation written. He asked for my car registration and proof of insurance. Ouch. I saw that he had started to shiver so I faked a search of the glove box. Then my brief case. Then under my seat. Then I fumbled to find a wallet (I do not carry one). He gave up and told me to sign for receipt of the ticket which under the circumstances I was happy to do.

Other than frayed nerves I made it home relatively easily. The next morning over coffee, Judy asked if I had driven the station wagon and of course, I told her that I had. She then asked why I had not taken the new license plates for it that are in the garage!

Dear Editor,

The virus that Ski's referring to, uses every address in an infected computer's address book to send out more virus laden attachments. I have received one or two heated e-mails from recipients and have had to explain that it was not sent by me even though my address was used to send it. I get about four a day. A really nasty virus masquerades as an electronic greeting card from someone you know. Unless it's from someone like Hallmark, don't open these either.

Wendell

Hi again! I thought you still wanted any corrections etc., found in the 4th edition. I noticed you didn't run this one I sent twice? It is a valid correction right? (BELOW) I also sent another correction a while back!

Page 221, #887 $10 887 1r should read "J00400000" not "J04000000" (qty. =400,000) Neither correction is listed in While checking the CU replacement survey, I found a minor error.

On page 293 "series summary" The $5 692 List as # 5(3) and # CU = 1(1) BUT on the serial numbers recorded, page 295, the grades only go to AU! The count of 5 being correct. So, no CU #692 $5the grams running correction lists. Just trying to help.

P.S. The book is my Bible! And I read it over and over again! Just trying to help!

Guy!

Fest Barriers Falling

Cameron Bueschel of Colorado Springs, Colorado is the first bonda fide YN (young numismatist) to register for MPC Fest. (The claim of Larry "Ski" Smulczewski is summarily disallowed). Cameron, 13, is interested in military history. His mother, Tiffany Bueschel, is a veteran of Military Money Seminar II and an MPC collector. Tiffany collects MPC and is interested in other military money too. She was a key worker in the very successful ANA Money Museum World War II exhibition. Tiffany is also coming to the Fest.

Searching for Joint Export-Import Coupons

By Joe Boling

This is going to be a short column.

In 1976 I returned to Germany for my second tour, lasting to 1979. By 1976 I had spent two Camp Perrys with Fred and been exposed to some of the exotica that he had back then (he had already disposed of my MPC collection). One of the items he had was a traveler's coupon booklet cover, as illustrated on page 305 of SB, stamped Reisebuero [Travel Agency] Riedel & Co, with an address in Frankfurt (illegible in the fuzzy scan in the book). Since I was stationed in Heidelberg, an hour away from Frankfurt, I tried to locate the company.

I went to the address on the booklet, and damned if the company was not still there. I took pictures of the building (Fred has them someplace), and talked to the people working there. As I recall, they said that the building had been replaced since the occupation, but the address had not changed (it certainly looked newer than 1945). Nobody there knew much about the TC, but one middle-aged fellow said he remembered them. When I inquired about where they might have been produced, any records of receipt and issue, or any kind of documentation at all about them, he said whatever they once had no longer existed. So the trip did not net us much, but the people at Riedel were sure impressed that someone was interested.

Numbers (and Blocks)

by Howard A. Daniel III

A January 6 "Coin World" article by Michele Orzano has the title of "Serial Numbers". It jolted me into remembering the time when I was educated to be interested in paper money serial numbers (and blocks).

My first real suggestions that I pay attention to them was from Joe Boling when we were stationed together in the late 1970s in Heidelberg, Germany, while we were still in the Army. He got me going, but I did not yet have much enthusiasm. But during Joe's influence, I wrote the second edition of my book on the French Southeast Asian issues and there are more numbers in it!

But when I came back to Virginia after Heidelberg, I was introduced to E.H. "Hank" Barton. This man was the ultimate collector and researcher of blocks and serial numbers!!! He and I collected separate areas, so I would defer to my elder and he would go through a dealer's junk box before me. After the stack of his rejects was a substantial size, I would start going through it. Hank had at least four eyes! When I missed one of my Southeast Asian pieces with an unusual or special block, he would growl at me that I just missed something, while he was still looking at notes! I would look back in my rejects and see a Southeast Asian note, but nothing special about it. After I could not come up with a reason to select it, he would tell me that it is probably a replacement, or something else special, and then I would notice what he was talking about and select it.

After about five years with Hank, I was pointing out notes he missed! As he aged, he did miss some pieces, but I found out later, he already had one in his collection like it in most cases.

Then he told me he wanted me to drive him out to "Memphis" (for the International Paper Money Show). What was Memphis? He told me it was "the" paper money show in the world and he had to attend it before he died. That June, I drove him out to it and we stopped in almost every major city and town on the way. We found paper money in many places to buy, but we also found dealers who had packed up their paper money and were taking it to Memphis for a better price. That first year, the show was still in the Holiday Inn south of the city. We were on the bourse every single minute from opening to closing time! Hank did not even break for lunch, but I would bring him some water and other drinks once in awhile. At the end of each day, we ate in our hotel restaurant and then collapsed in our room. That first year, we each came back with a very large stack of notes and we probably did not spend $50 each for them!

Hank passed away quite a few years ago now, but he is profoundly missed by me and many other collectors like Neil Shafer, Joe Boling and many others. Michele's article brought back a lot of good memories of Hank (and others who have helped me), and a lot of good memories of some very special finds in junk boxes that

The registration of Tiffany and Cameron Bueschel is another exciting development for Fest IV. Not only is Cameron the first YN, Tiffany along with Nancy Wilson will be the first women to attend and participate as Festers. We certainly appreciate the Fest Auxiliary, but these bold women want to be Festers!

Furthermore, these new registrations put us tantalizingly close to two of our goals: 40 registered Festers and 12 new Festers. We can make those goals. Register now or recruit a friend!

There was a hidden down side to the Bueschel registrations. Gail Baker, who had previously registered, has cancelled because of a conflict. Hopefully, we will see Gail at Fest V (goals 60 Festers, 12 new Festers).

Dear Editor,

I do not believe for a moment that your friend ever got close to having your coin used by the NFL. Each year they design their own coin, and then sell it in popular magazines for $29-39 as a souvenir of the game.

There was no way they were going to give up that profitable venture. I think you were sold a bill of goods.

In regard to the "Ebay Sued" article, I have to say that I am on Ebay's side in this fight. The only way that you can identify a bad dealer is through feedback. Ebay allows you the right to defend yourself with a counter statement. In this case we have a lawyer with too much time on his hands who is willing to take his own case for free. If Ebay can be forced to remove a critical statement written by a person who has personal knowledge of a dealer after doing business with that individual, then none of us are safe.

Herb

Dear Editor (steemed or knot)

I recently picked up a card titled "Joint Army-Navy Transportation Identification" along with a "combined Armed Forces Bus Service" ticket: " 5 cents per ride".

The ID card was valid during the PTC Strike of 1955, Philadelphia. PA. The card reads:

"The bearer of this identification card is a Dept. of Defense employee assigned to: (typed in) Philadelphia Signal Corps supply Agency," and is authorized transportation on the Emergency Military Bus System, January 1955, in the city of Phila., Pa.

R. Ll Blust, LTCOL J.P. GALLAGHER, CDR, USNR for the Army for the Navy (this card is Void at termination of PTC Strike, 1955)"

Do any Gramstrs know any more about these?

Len Harsel

Dear Len,

You and Howard could drive up here for the Fest in only about 10 hours!

Property accountably by the Government

I was in a coin shop in Lawton the other day visiting with Wayne Pierce who was a pay officer when in the service. He enlighten me with a story I just have to tell. One of his duties was to over see the disposition of lost materials. He was given explicit orders that a weapon was never lost, DO NOT excuse a solder under any circumstances period! There was and instance where a weapon slid out of a helicopter as it was avoiding ground fire and did a sharp bank.

All personal in the unit told Wayne that the solder should not be held liable. The weapon was only a M-16 riffle costing $95. Wayne considered the proposal and attempted to convince his commander only to be warned not to excuse something like that and don't ever ask him again.

A short time later there was a pay officer who had virtually the same accident, but what was lost was 2 briefcases containing $2.5 million in mpc. This was a lot of money but it was no problem to get dismissed. The soldier was not held responsible for the money.

Where We Were in Vietnam: A Comprehensive Guide to the Firebases, Military Installations and Naval Vessels of the Vietnam War, 1945-1975 by Michael P. Kelly
Review by Howard A. Daniel III

This book was reviewed by Matthew J. Seelinger in the Fall 2002 issue of "On Point" magazine. The author; Michael P. Kelly, is a veteran of the 1st Bn, 502nd Inf, 101 AB Div. His book has about 6,000 firebases and landing zones, 2,000 airfields, and 700 Navy and Army vessels that were in the Vietnam War Combat Zone.

One interesting item in the review is that a small number of advisors from Spain served in Viet Nam from 1966 to 1970. Is that country listed as a user of our MPC? I am sure they were allowed to use it on our installations if they were part of the Allied Forces in Viet Nam.

I recently saw this book in a Borders Book Store but I did not buy it because it was the only one on the shelf and it was heavily damaged. I looked through it and did not find several locations of intelligence activities and special operations I worked at or in, but they might be subordinate to other locations and appear in them (I hope). But, even if they are missing, I will buy this book for my library.

It was published by Hellgate Press in Central Point, Oregon in 2002. Its ISBN is 1-375-55571-625-3 and has 848 pages. The retail price is $39.95, but I am sure it can be obtained from Amazon and other booksellers at a discount. I highly recommend that it be in the libraries of all MPC and military token collectors of the Vietnam War.

I will have to take another pass on my editorial. Sorry. Today was part two of the journey to pick up the books. Actually, it was yesterday and today. As you can expect with me, it was an adventure. Details tomorrow.

=====

Dear Editor,
howdy, Fred, Sorry, I can't make the Fest...again...not enuf $$$ nor time... the Courts of Texas and my clients need me here...

However, the reason for this letter is your statement regarding the attendance of Ms. Wilson and Ms. Bueschel as "Fest Auxiliaries"... Seems to me the ladies have been an integral component of the military for a very long time and, as such, should NEVER be referred to in any manner that would belittle their contributions to the cause and effort.

While I do not know Ms. Bueschel, I have had the pleasure of meeting Ms. Wilson and in my humble opinion, she is one of the foremost Numismatists in our century (20th and 21st). To relegate her to being a mere 'Auxillary' is to fail to recognize her person and achievement. From your own statements, I believe I can include Ms. Bueschel in this category.

In any event, I know that even in her presently diminished state due to illness, you got a REAL problem with your missus, Judy [or as is so often stated in the 'Gram... THE BOSS].

Oh, I pity you. While I have no such personal experience, I would believe that being in a dog house on the south shore of Lake Erie in February would not be a nice place to be...

You best find a way out of this mess...QUICK!!!!

Jay in Garrison, TX

P. S. Well, as you've told all of us...you have been sick, too...

Dear Jay,

You are certainly correct about Nancy Wilson, but you were wrong about what I said about the Fest auxiliary. Not only are Nancy and Tiffany Festers (as opposed to auxiliary), I believe that I had it right in the Gram. Below is the text from the editorial on this topic.

"The registration of Tiffany and Cameron Bueschel is another exciting development for Fest IV. Not only is Cameron the first YN, Tiffany along with Nancy Wilson will be the first women to attend and participate as Festers. We certainly appreciate the Fest Auxiliary, but these bold women want to be Festers!

"Furthermore, these new registrations put us tantalizingly close to two of our goals: 40 registered Festers and 12 new Festers. We can make those goals. Register now or recruit a friend!

"There was a hidden down side to the Bueschel registrations. Gail Baker, who had previously registered, has cancelled because of a conflict. Hopefully, we will see Gail at Fest V (goals 60 Festers, 12 new Festers)."

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

You forgot the following at the end of my Numbers (and Blocks) article; "have still not been replaced with a better note in my collection. "Thank you very much Michele!!" " when you published it.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,

Sorry about the error, The entire article is repeated below.

Numbers (and Blocks)

by Howard A. Daniel III

A January 6 "Coin World" article by Michele Orzano has the title of "Serial Numbers". It jolted me into remembering the time when I was educated to be interested in paper money serial numbers (and blocks).

My first real suggestions that I pay attention to them was from Joe Boling when we were stationed together in the late 1970s in Heidelberg, Germany, while we were still in the Army. He got me going, but I did not yet have much enthusiasm. But during Joe's influence, I wrote the second edition of my book on the French Southeast Asian issues and there are more numbers in it!

But when I came back to Virginia after Heidelberg, I was introduced to E.H. "Hank" Barton. This man was the ultimate collector and researcher of blocks and serial numbers!!! He and I collected separate areas, so I would defer to my elder and he would go through a dealer's junk box before me. After the stack of his rejects was a substantial size, I would start going through it. Hank had at least four eyes! When I missed one of my Southeast Asian pieces with an unusual or special block, he would growl at me that I just missed something, while he was still looking at notes! I would look back in my rejects and see a Southeast Asian note, but nothing special about it. After I could not come up with a reason to select it, he would tell me that it is probably a replacement, or something else special, and then I would notice what he was talking about and select it.

After about five years with Hank, I was pointing out notes he missed! As he aged, he did miss some pieces, but I found out later, he already had one in his collection like it in most cases.

Then he told me he wanted me to drive him out to "Memphis" (for the International Paper Money Show). What was Memphis? He told me it was "the" paper money show in the world and he had to attend it before he died. That June, I drove him out to it and we stopped in almost every major city and town on the way. We found paper money in many places to buy, but we also found dealers who had packed up their paper money and were taking it to Memphis for a better price. That first year, the show was still in the Holiday Inn south of the city. We were on the bourse every single minute from opening to closing time! Hank did not even break for lunch, but I would bring him some water and other drinks once in awhile. At the end of each day, we ate in our hotel restaurant and then collapsed in our room. That first year, we each came back with a very large stack of notes and we probably did not spend $50 each for them!

Hank passed away quite a few years ago now, but he is profoundly missed by me and many other collectors like Neil Shafer, Joe Boling and many others. Michele's article brought back a lot of good memories of Hank (and others who have helped me), and a lot of good memories of some very special finds in junk boxes that have still not been replaced with a better note in my collection. "Thank you very much Michele!!"

Bond Changes

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

Earlier this week an envelope arrived from Howard Daniel with a couple of pages from the Sunday, January 19th Business section of the Washington Post. Marked for my information was an article by Post staff writer John Berry entitled "Savings Bonds Under Siege." This was a very informative article with some good news and some real bad news.

As you know, Series EE bonds are the direct descendents of WWII defense and war bonds. Even more importantly, the current EE bonds are called patriot bonds and are the only major numismatic relic (so far) of the war on terror.

According to the Berry article, savings bonds have become a pretty hot commodity for investors as a risk-free way of earning much more than the 1.2 per cent available on three- and six-month Treasury bills and significantly more than banks are paying on certificates of deposit. Investors have leapt on savings bonds for short-term investments as some bonds are yielding as much as 4.08 percent.

Looks like a great way to improve your investment program a little, doesn't it? Well, the Treasury Department didn't feel that way pointing out that the bonds "are designed to be a long-term savings vehicle." Therefore they doubled the minimum holding period to one year. This still is not a bad short term investment. However this is only one of the challenges that the Treasury and the Bureau of Public Debt have.

As you can imagine, there are a lot of people, especially young folks who own just two or three bonds and those are in usually small denominations. Altogether, bonds represent only about $190 billion (approximately 3%) of the $3.4 trillion worth of government debt owned by the public. Yet it takes 1,020 full time employees at the Bureau of Public Debt to administer the savings bond program. That's three-fourths of the Bureau's total work force. The budget for the current fiscal year, shows a total of $200 million to run the Bureau with $150 million earmarked for the savings bond program and $50 million to sell and redeem the other $3.2 trillion worth of debt which is auctioned electronically and most of which is purchased by larger financial firms for themselves and their clients.

In the mid 1980's, the Treasury quit issuing all paper certificates as evidence of ownership of its' marketable securities. These purchases are simply an electronic transaction through the Treasury Direct System. And that is the direction that the Treasury plans for the savings bond program. Very shortly, possibly already, the Treasury will begin selling savings bonds that will be all electronic. They will be purchased through a Bureau of the Public Debt web site and will be simply an electronic entry in a database. No paper bond will be issued.

For the next two or three years, banks and other financial institutions that currently sell savings bonds will still have the paper certificates issued. But eventually that service will be phased out and all bond purchases will go through the Bureau of Public Debt electronically.

What this means is that another fiscal collectable will become a thing of the past. Just like MPC, savings stamps, food coupons, nationals, fractionals etc., savings bonds will be a thing of the past as they mature and are redeemed. Only the collector will be left to preserve these historical documents for posterity. The recent I-bond program has only been around for a year or so and appears not to have much of a future. I'm sure that some of you have never even seen an I-bond or if you have, I'll bet you can't tell me who is pictured on the $500 bond. I'll save that part of the story until next week, but let me close with the question--Who the heck was Chief Joseph or Spark M. Matsunaga?

You can go to this web location for the news release about the new one year time frame for EE bonds.

You can go to this site for information on the new means of purchasing Series I bonds:

Editorial

I will postpone part two of the book pick-up story for another day because Ski's great story has me fired up!

First, I have to pick at him a little. He said that there was some good news in this (for collectors). I sure did not see much, if any, good news.

I especially like the WWII defense and war bonds. I was pleased that we were able to have the first ever (at least that I know of) listings for these in WWII Remembered. Because that got me started, I have an interest in all government bonds. You heard about some of this when I tried to purchase a Series HH bond recently (more on that odyssey of mine next week).

Because Larry got me interested, I too went to the government web site where I found confirmation for most or all of what he said. There may be a little discrepancy in how paper I bonds can still be purchased, but overall he got it right. In defense of the Bureau of the Public Debt, I have to say that the new system for Series I bonds seems to have some real merit. Individuals can purchase, manage, and sell their bonds on line without receiving any paper at all (expect probably a 1099!). I also have to say that even though the collector in me wants to see the paper items continued, I also like to see the government save money which this system no doubt will do. Of course, it (the system) will also discourage some purchases most notably among the Internet impaired.

Possibly this is the good news that Ski was getting to, I presume that the bonds will be revised to show the new minimum holding period of one year. Varieties! I am reminded of one of my favorite discoveries published in WWII Remembered. The change in Canadian regulations during the war allowing purchases of war savings certificates to increase from $500 to $600 is reflected (buried) in the text on the backs of the certificates. Apparently, this same sort of change will be reflected here.

Finally, I learned a few other interesting, if not amazing, things at the government site. First, the public debt held by the public is: $3,630,261,007,223.18.

This is interesting. The rates for Series I bonds is 4.08%, and Series EE is 3.25%. Those are not bad for these times. The amazing thing is the new rate for Series HH is 1.5%. Who would swap Series EE bonds for these bonds?

MPC GRAM

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 841 Friday January 31, 2003

National Champion at Fest

The national champion of MPC and military money collecting will be crowned at MPCFest IV. The champion will be the winner of the event called March Madness.

This contest is a quiz game styled after the NCAA basketball tournament. Contestants will be paired against each other in the "pairings show" on Friday night (CBS?).

Thereafter contestants will answer military money questions in a single elimination contest (ESPN2). The ultimate winner will be the national champion with appropriate recognition given here in the Gram and in the national numismatic print media.

The first similar contest was held at Fest III. That was a team competition. Master of ceremonies for the event will be Wendell Wolka. Larry Smulczenski who created the event will be the announcer and Fred Schwan will be the judge. Questions will be taken from The Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates, World War II Remembered, and the MPCGram, and Fred Schwan's senior high school yearbook.

Mericle MPC and Others online

By David Seelye

The auction lots for the Lyn Knight auction at the Chicago Paper Money Exposition are available for viewing on line at www.LynKnight.com. Of course for Gramsters, the highlight of the sale is the Marv Mericle collection of military payment certificates, but many other military notes are included. Readers should go to:

You will recall that I about froze going to the Cleveland air port to pick up some books then had the trip topped off by receiving a traffic ticket for not having license plates. The final problem was that I was unable to pick up all of the books because of the unanticipated size of the shipment.

After my bad luck on the first trip, I decided that I would have to rent a truck for the second part. Of course, if I had just rented the truck to star with, 1) only one trip would have been necessary, 2) only one day would have been necessary, 3) I would not have received the ticket.

Nonetheless, I set out in the rented truck. It was cold, but not nearly as cold at the first time. Of course, since it was not as cold, I was better prepared this time—much better. I dug out long forgotten insulated army boots (German army boots at that) to top (bottom) off a wardrobe that would make any Lake Erie ice fisherman proud. Some other time we will discuss the amazing affliction in this part of the country that causes grown men (very, very few women (they are smarter)) walk (or drive) out on the ice to fish instead of stay home and work on their MPC collections. I admit to having ice fished, but the last time was 1959 (the year that I became a numismatist).

So I was off to Cleveland. Visibility was great, life was good. I smirked more than a little as I approached the warehouse in my ice fishing outfit and documents in hand. I had been very careful to maintain the papers because I was told that they would be necessary and the first fork lift driver had carefully attached the copies to the remaining carton at the end of the first trip.

I tried an end run on the system by looking for the fork lift driver without going through the office. You will recall that “through the office” is a metaphor because drivers like me are not actually allowed in the office but made to stand outside. I sort of looked forward to doing that as a test for my ice fishing uniform, but still, I decided to try to avoid the office because there was still the possible issue of storage charges because I had exceeded the magic number of days. I also was afraid this time that I might be escorted into the warm office to suffer the opposite problem of the first trip. Instead the office person virtually ignored me once she realized that I had paid all of the fees.

Eventually the fork lift driver arrived then departed with my documents. A few minutes later (long enough for me to feel the cold through the German Army boots) he returned. He could not find the box.

We set of together. I think that I told you that this is a large warehouse. Even I did not realize how large. Now I understand. Cleveland hopes to host the 2010 Winter Olympics in this building. Not just the figure skating or ice hockey, but the whole thing. Cross country skiing, all of it right there in that building. The only problem might be that it is doubtful that the place could be emptied of pallets by 2010.

He gave up much faster than I did even though he had is NASA space walking suit and was riding on the fork lift. Of course the books were not his. Finally we found the box down in the corner across the county line. It was under some really dirty boxes. I think that they were of hoola hoops and pet rocks.

Despite the hike to the ramp, loading went flawlessly except that I was a bit worried about the box falling off the pallet enroute. That would me right of course since we had made the mistake the first time of removing the shrink wrap.

Nonetheless, the trip went well. I went to sleep that night thinking about unloading this thousand pounds of books. Over coffee in the morning, Judy suggested that I simply have the fork lift guy unload it just as he had loaded it. She probably does not know what a fork lift is, but having heard the above story (to her horror) it seemed obvious to her that a fork lift was the answer. After I criticized her for being so stupid to think that I had a fork lift available, I started to think. Heck, what is the advantage of being the boss if I have to do all of this manual labor?

I decided to just tell the warehouse foreman that he and the clerk should unload the truck and that I would help when I finished with the next edition of WWII Remembered. Simple, brilliant, obvious.

I went to the office. No supervisor. Could he have gone to the warehouse? Could he have known that this task was coming? I drove the truck to the warehouse. Of course it was snowing.

When I arrived at the warehouse I knew that I was in trouble because the ample snow of the past few days (about which you have heard way too much) was blown against the doors. It was obvious that the guys were not there yet.

I shoveled some snow (forgot the German Army boots today) then warmed in the cab of the truck.

Denial. I was in denial. Complete and total. We do not have a warehouse supervisor, clerk, or any other helper. We never have. Well, maybe we have. I am the warehouse clerk and supervisor too unless you consider Judy to be the supervisor (she has never been to the warehouse—thank goodness).

How many trips from the truck to the back of the warehouse does it take to unload 1000 books? I cannot take a thousand trips, but it seemed like it. At the end of the ordeal, I was no longer cold (I was sweating), but my hands were curled (permanently?), my back and arms ached terribly, and I was filthy, but the job was done!!

The very best news was that the warehouse is only a short drive from a McDonalds and a hot cup of coffee (truthfully the third trip and cup).

I sat there feeling some satisfaction for a job well done (even if it was not) and for the first time started studying Guido's book. It really is good on several levels. The review will be part three of this adventure!

Dear ED--

You hit the "good" part in the last paragraph of your editorial. Right now 4.08% is a pretty darn "good" rate of return. Banks are only giving about 3% on certificates of deposit. So if there are any Gramsters that can't find enough "good" notes to spend their money on, here is a pretty "good" investment vehicle with a "good" rate of return. Plus if you hurry you can still end up with a "good" picture of Chief Joseph. How much "good"-er than that can you get. "Good" to know that you read the article though. "Good"-nite--Thurski

Dear Editor,

Well nock me down. It never occurred to me that you could be talking about a good investment instead of good numismatic news. I suppose that the reason for that is that I have not had any money to "invest" since 1971. Beyond the 4.08%, the EE and I bonds are not subject to state a local taxes making them even better investments for those of us who are not refugees in a state w/o income taxes.

I also thought that it was good that you read my editorial!

Editor

Dear Editor,

In reading your book on MPCs I ran across the rarity scale for MPC replacements. I also collect fractional currency, and I'm familiar with its rarity scale, however, the numbers for MPC replacements obviously do not correspond with those. What are the parameters for each of the R numbers? If I missed it in your book perhaps you can refer me to the page where the information can be found.

Thanks! Chuck Armstrong

Dear Chuck,

Thank you for noticing the rarity ratings in the MPC book. I did not use a strict scale to create the ratings. I thought that it was too rigid and that it might be more useful to use absolute ratings and some judgment. Now that I look back on it, I am not so sure and certainly I should have had this discussion in the book if I did not provide a scale. Thanks for writing.

Dear Editor,

There is a nice article about Marv Mericle, with photo, and his MPC collection in the February 4, 2003 edition of "Numismatic News."

I am picking up Bob Drew at 1:52PM at the Cleveland airport. Is he registered?

David

Dear David (and Robert),

Thanks. No, we did not have Robert on the list—but he is now! He is the 12th new Fester so we have hit that goal and he makes the 39th registrant so we are getting close to another threshold there.

Edmund Dulac 1882-1953

By Marcus Turner

If you ask any collector of WWII era papermoney what the most beautiful ever issued is, you will find several French notes near the top of the list. Many of the vignettes used by the France and the Free France movement were prepared by French illustrator Edmund Dulac. His designs can be seen on denominations of 5 thru 100 Franc (Marianne), 1000 Franc (Phoenix) and the 5000 Franc (Marianne standing above Ruins). This series of designs appeared between 1941 and 1943 (although his rendition of Marianne can be seen on notes of series 1945) in various colors and under various titles including: Republique Francaise Tresor Central, Cassie Centrale de la France Libre, and Cassie Centrale de la France D'Outre-mer. These same designs can also be seen on many postage stamps used throughout France and its colonies world-wide. Examples can be seen throughout the France section of World War II Remembered or if you prefer to see color examples just take a glance at Lynn Knight's 2002 St. Louis catalog an incredible selection of Dulac designs of various titles and containing various site specific overprints.

Edmund Dulac was born in 1882 in Toulouse, France. His artistic abilities surfaced at early in his teenage years. He studied law at the University of Toulouse for two years while simultaneously attending art classes at the Ecole des Beaux Arts. It did not take Edmund long to discover his true passion for art and soon dropped his study of law. In 1904 he left for London, beginning a very successful career as an illustrator. Some of his most famous work includes: The Tempest (1908), The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam (1909), The Sleeping Beauty and Other Fairy Tales (1910), Stories From Hans Andersen (1911), The Bells and Other Poems by Edgar Allan Poe (1912), and Princess Badoura (1913) just to name an elite few. His amazing popularity as a French artist/illustrator has placed an incredible demand on an already extremely scarce series of banknote by art connoisseurs. Dulac artwork from the World War II "Free France" movement has been observed on checks, stationary and even postage stamps.

Burmese General Ne Win Passed Away
by Howard A. Daniel III

Here I go again with information from the Obituaries section of The Washington Post!

As many of you know who collect World War II financial instruments, General Ne Win (Bright Son) was one of the thirty Burmese nationalists sent to Japan in 1940 for military training. When he returned to Burma, he became a high-ranking officer in the Burma (-Japanese) National Army. So he was there during the entire time JIM and other financial instruments were issued during the war. When the Japanese were in full retreat, he switched to the side of the Allies!

By 1948, he was the second highest officer in Burma, and fourteen years later, led a coup to become number one. It became quickly apparent that the general did not have all of his nuts and bolts tightened down and he made some very irrational decisions that started Burma on a downward economic spiral. One of his most famous decisions was creating the odd banknote denominations of 15, 35, 45, 75 and 90 Kyat. This decision was partly based on his lucky number of 9, and that his astrologer had told him they would be good numbers for the economy.

I know it is morbid to think about researching the Obituaries sections of your newspapers, but if you read it everyday, you will eventually find someone who might have had information and pieces of interest to you (and us). After a respectful time, please contact the family about his military (or civilian) work. You might be able to save some files and pieces from being trashed, and purchasing them might even provide his or her survivors with needed funds.

Editorial

What can I say after yesterday's events? There is little to do except to go on. However, there are few interesting twists that connect us to the tragedy. I will not make the feeble attempts at humor that I sometimes try.

Even though there were military personnel on board, I do not think that any of them served in RVN (or Korea) and used MPC.

I first learned about the tragedy about four minutes after the event, when Fester Doug Bell called to tell me about it. At that moment I was exchanging instant messages with Fester/Seminarian Warner Talso.

Warner lives in Albuquerque, NM. When the Challenger blew up, I was participating in training at Kirtland Air Force Base, Albuquerque, NM. Further discussion revealed that Warner also learned of the disaster while actually at the base.

Finally, we have an actual space shuttle item for our collections. The MFC Series 022 and 011 $20 certificates feature vignettes of a space shuttle launch. (see page 168, 169) of the MPC book.

Dear Gram

A few weeks ago I finished reading a book about the USS Arizona (BB39) and it got me to thinking, among other things, about battleships, hull numbers and chits used on the ships. Having been in the Navy I remembered the USS New Jersey had hull number 62 and since battleships were named after states in the Union, and believing there are fifty states, it got me to do a little research. I discovered the following: There ARE only fifty states; all states except for Alaska and Hawaii have battleships named for them; not all battleships were named for states as the USS Kearsarge was battleship BB5; the highest hull number assigned to a battleship was 71 (USS Louisiana-designed but never built); more than one hull number was assigned to a number of ships, the USS Indiana, for example, was/is? BB 1, BB50 and BB58.

This led me to thinking about chits that may have been used on battleships. I have heard of chits being in existence for the USS Arizona, the USS Oklahoma and the USS New York. In Gram 806 Tomn Koch advertises one from the USS Wyoming.

More research is in order, the goal being to determine if it is feasible to complete a collection of 48 chits, one from each US battleship. Any and all help that Gram subscribers can provide would be appreciated.

Roger Urce

Validation of German Loans Post WWII

By Jim Downey

About a year or so ago, I wrote a short piece for the Gram on the Validation Board for German External Debts. The information was taken from a bond that I had acquired. I have found an IRS Revenue Ruling that gives the complete history of the German dollar bonds and their validation after the war. The Revenue Ruling can be found at <http://www.taxlinks.com/rulings/1954/revrul54-501.htm> reproduced below.

Internal Revenue Service Revenue Ruling

IRS Headnote

Discussion of various questions pertaining to recoveries in respect of war losses relating to certain German prewar dollar bonds and the subsequent exchange of such bonds for new bonds of the Federal Republic of Germany.

Advice is requested relative to recoveries of certain prewar German dollar bonds and exchanges of such bonds for new bonds of the Federal Republic of Germany.

At the end of World War II, various issues of German external debt were outstanding, including dollar bonds issued or guaranteed by the German Reich and bonds issued by German states. Service on those bonds had been suspended on various dates prior to the war. On December 11, 1941, following the declaration of war by the United States against Germany, the Securities and Exchange Commission requested securities exchanges and securities dealers throughout the United States to cease handling transactions in German bonds. Until recently those restrictions had not been removed and because of them there has been no market for German dollar bonds in this country for more than 12 years. German dollar bonds have sporadically and to a limited extent been traded during that period in Switzerland on an over-the-counter basis and, after the war, in some other European countries. However, German dollar bonds have not been listed or traded on any European securities exchange and no well established market for them has existed in any country.

In 1951 the Federal Republic of Germany (hereinafter referred to as Federal Republic) accepted its liability for the prewar external debt of the German Reich, including debts of other issuers subsequently to be declared liabilities of the Reich, and confirmed its desire to resume payments thereon. Thereafter, the Governments of the United States, United Kingdom and France established the Tripartite Commission on German Debts, for the purpose of preparing a plan for the orderly overall settlement of German external debts. An international conference on German External Debts was held in London from February 28, 1952 to August 8, 1952, among the Federal Republic, the Tripartite Commission, and representatives of other interested governments and of creditor and debtor interests. As a result of the London conference, a settlement plan was agreed upon, which is embodied in an agreement dated February 27, 1953, between the various interested governments, and which is known as the London Agreement on German External Debts 1953 (hereinafter called the London Agreement). The ratification or approval of the London Agreement by the Federal Republic and the Governments of the United States, the United Kingdom and France has been completed and it is now in effect.

The London Agreement and Annex I thereto provide that the Federal Republic will undertake to pay and transfer certain specified amounts in respect of the principal of and interest on the outstanding German dollar bonds of the following five issues (hereinafter called Old Bonds):

- (1) German External Loan 1924, 7 percent. Bonds, due October 15, 1949 (the Dawes Loan).
- (2) German Government International 5 1/2 percent Loan 1930, 5 1/2 percent. Bonds, due June 1, 1965 (the Young Loan).
- (3) The Free State of Prussia 6 1/2 percent Sinking Fund Bonds, External Loan of 1926, due September 15, 1951.
- (4) The Free State of Prussia 6 percent Sinking Fund Bonds, External Loan of 1927, due October 15, 1952.
- (5) Conversion Office for German Foreign Debts, 3 percent Dollar Bonds, due January 1, 1946 (10 Year Bonds of 1936).

Such undertaking is to be carried out by offers of several issues of new dollar bonds of the Federal Republic (hereinafter called New Bonds), representing the amounts so specified in the London Agreement, in exchange for outstanding Old Bonds and, in certain cases, for accrued unpaid interest on such Old Bonds. Except as indicated in the London Agreement, the terms of the original contracts of the Old Bonds will be maintained. The issuance of the New Bonds and the undertakings of the Federal Republic to be contained in the proposed exchange offers have been duly authorized by the 'Law Concerning the Agreement on German External Debts dated February 27, 1953,' of the Federal Republic, enacted August 27, 1953.

Substantial amounts of the original issues of the Old Bonds had been repatriated prior to 1945. In the confusion that existed in Germany during the latter days of the war, many of those repatriated bonds which had not yet been cancelled were lost or looted. For that reason, it has been necessary for the Federal Republic to establish a procedure for the validation of Old Bonds in order to assure that those lost or looted bonds cannot be circulated or otherwise presented as valid and outstanding obligations.

The New Bonds will be offered in exchange only for Old Bonds and appurtenant coupons which are legally outstanding at the date of exchange and which shall have been validated pursuant to the procedure for validation established under the 'Law for the Validation of German Foreign Currency Bonds,' of the Federal Republic dated August 25, 1952, and regulations issued thereunder, except that Fractional Certificates for Conversion Office for German Foreign Debts, 3 percent Dollar Bonds, due January 1, 1946, will not require validation. The application of that procedure in the United States is based on an agreement between the Government of the United States and the Federal Republic, dated February 27, 1953, which established a board for the validation of German dollar bonds. This board has authority to validate Old Bonds and appurtenant coupons which were held outside of Germany on January 1, 1945, its denial of validation being subject to review. A further agreement between the Governments of the United States and the Federal Republic, dated April 1, 1953, provides that external pre-war German Dollar Bonds therein referred to, including the Old Bonds and appurtenant coupons, shall not be enforceable unless they shall be validated in accordance with the procedure referred to above. The United States Senate has advised and consented to the ratification of this agreement, and it has entered into force.

The proposed exchange offers of New Bonds for the validated Old Bonds provide substantially as follows:

(a) New Bonds will be issued in amounts equal to the principal amount of Old Bonds surrendered for exchange, except that in the case of the 10 Year Bonds of 1936 the New Bonds will be issued in an amount equal to the principal amount of the bonds exchanged plus one-third of the arrears of interest thereon from January 1, 1941 to December 31, 1952.

(b) New Bonds will be issued in amounts equal to the arrears of interest represented by coupons due to and including October 15, 1944, in the case of the 1924 Loan Bonds and December 1, 1944, in the case of the 1930 Loan Bonds.

(c) Talons will be issued (to be attached to the New Bonds issued in exchange for the 1924 and 1930 Loan Bonds) representing the right to receive, upon reunification of Germany, bonds similar to the 1924 and 1930 Loan Bonds for the arrears of interest due from October 15, 1944, to October 15, 1952, in the case of the 1924 Loan Bonds and from December 2, 1944, to December 1, 1952, in the case of the 1930 Loan Bonds. The New Bonds issued in exchange for the 1924 and 1930 Loan Bonds will bear interest from October 15, 1952, and December 1, 1952, respectively. New Bonds issued for the Ten Year Bonds of 1936 will bear interest from January 1, 1953.

(d) New Bonds will be issued only in denominations of $1,000, $500, and $100. Amounts of bonds of less than $100 will be represented by Script [sic, this incorrect use of Script (instead of Scrip) is interesting. First, that it appears in such a legal document, secondly that the correct usage appears in the remainder of the document-ed] Certificates.

(e) Coupons appurtenant to Prussia Bonds are to be retained by the holders. Coupons appurtenant to validated Prussia Bonds, bearing due dates from March 15, 1933, to and including October 15, 1936, will be paid, on and after 20 years after maturity thereof, at the rate of 50 percent of the face amount thereof. The amount and date of payment of coupons appurtenant to validated Prussia Bonds bearing due dates on and after March 15, 1937 (and of interest from September 15, 1951, to October 1, 1952, on the Prussia Bonds of 1926) will be subject to negotiation after territories formerly belonging to the Free State of Prussia and now outside the territory of the Federal Republic shall be joined to the Federal Republic.

Any coupons appurtenant to 1924 Loan Bonds and 1930 Loan Bonds matured after 1944, which will not be accepted for exchange, will be returned to the holder. Subject to validation requirements, such returned coupons and coupons due during such years which are retained by the holder will represent the right, corresponding to the right represented by the talons described above, to receive bonds similar to the respective New Bonds, upon reunification of Germany, for so much of the arrears of interest, recalculated at the applicable rate for said period, as is represented by such coupons.

In the event that any interest shall become payable on Prussia Bonds of the External Loan of 1926 in respect of the period September 15, 1951 to October 1, 1952, after negotiation as aforesaid, the coupon appurtenant to such Bonds due September 15, 1951, will be treated as also representing interest payable for such additional period.

The scrip certificates to be issued in lieu of amounts of less than $100 of certain New Bonds will be in bearer form, transferable by delivery. They will be exchangeable, at any time on or prior to March 1, 1960 (or at any time prior to the expiration of 2 years after the exchange offers shall terminate, whichever shall be later), upon surrender in amounts aggregating $100 or more, at the office of the respective authenticating agent, for New Bonds of the issue called for thereby, carrying interest from the original interest accrual date of such bonds, in an aggregate principal amount equal to the highest multiple of $100 represented by the scrip certificates so surrendered. A new scrip certificate of like tenor will be issued for any excess. After the expiration of the period during which scrip certificates may be exchanged for New Bonds any remaining New Bonds reserved for exchange for scrip certificates will be sold by the respective authenticating agent and the net proceeds of such sale, together with interest accumulated on such Bonds, will thereafter be paid in cash pro rata to the holders of the remaining scrip certificates, upon surrender thereof at the office of the respective authenticating agent. Scrip certificates which shall not be so surrendered in exchange for cash on or prior to March 1, 1962 (or prior to the expiration of 4 years after the exchange offers shall terminate, whichever shall be later), will become void. Scrip certificates for 1936 Conversion Bonds will not be exchangeable for New Bonds after January 1, 1963, and will be void in any event after January 1, 1965.

All New Bonds will be direct obligations of the Federal Republic. Principal and interest will be payable in New York City in such coin or currency of the United States as at the time of payment is legal tender for public and private debts, and will be payable free of all taxes imposed or to be imposed by the Federal Republic or any successor government, or by any political subdivision thereof.

On January 11, 1954, the Securities and Exchange Commission issued an order removing the restrictions against trading in Old Bonds which are validated.

The Internal Revenue Service held that in accordance with the provisions of section 127(a)(2) of the Code the cost or other basis of all German Government bonds and all bonds issued by municipalities, States or other political subdivisions of Germany were deductible for Federal income tax purposes as of December 11, 1941, the date the United States declared war against Germany.

The questions with respect to which advice is requested are set forth below. The answers thereto are based on the foregoing facts and circumstances.

(A) On which date will the holder of an Old Bond who acquired it on or prior to December 11, 1941, be deemed, pursuant to section 127 of the Internal Revenue Code, to have received a recovery for Federal income tax purposes?

Inasmuch as only Old Bonds which had been acquired prior to December 11, 1941, come under the provisions of section 127 of the Internal Revenue Code, including the provisions of subsection (c) thereof involving the recovery of property which was deemed to have been destroyed or seized under subsection (a), and inasmuch as there could be no question in regard to the validation of such bonds, it is held that all Old Bonds which had been acquired prior to December 11, 1941, and which were held on January 11, 1954, the date the restrictions against trading in such bonds were removed, were recovered on the latter date, within the meaning of subsection (c) of the Code. The fact that a bond is not validated until after January 11, 1954, is not sufficient grounds for postponing the recovery date inasmuch as the subsequent validation would simply confirm the fact that the bond was valid on the recovery date.

(B) What is the valuation of the Old Bonds as of January 11, 1954, for the purpose of determining the amount of the recovery income realized?

Inasmuch as the market quotations on the Old Bonds for the first day of trading were substantially lower than the quotations for the two succeeding days, it is held that the quotations for the first day of trading did not represent the actual fair market value of those bonds on January 11, 1954. It is believed that the average of the quotations for the first three days of trading more nearly reflects such fair market value. Accordingly, it is held that the fair market value of the bonds set forth above, was as follows on January 11, 1954 (computed to the nearest 1/8 th of a point):

|   |        |
|---|--------|
| German External Loan Bonds of 1924            | 86 7/8 |
| German Govt. International Loan Bonds of 1930 | 79 1/2 |
| Prussia Bonds for 1926                        | 68 3/8 |
| Prussia Bonds for 1927                        | 69 3/8 |
| Conversion Office Bonds                       | 71 1/2 |

The fair market value of German External Loan Bonds of 1924, at the time of the recovery of such bonds, should be reduced to reflect any coupons due on October 15, 1941 and to and including October 15, 1944, which are missing. No reduction should be made for coupons due prior to October 15, 1941, inasmuch as it appears that all coupons due on and before April 15, 1941, were paid, and therefore such coupons were not legally outstanding at the time of the recovery.

The reduction in the fair market value of German External Loan Bonds of 1924, caused by missing coupons, should be determined on the basis of the fair market value of German External Loan 1924-Federal Republic of Germany-Funding Issue 1953, 3 per cent Bonds, due October 15, 1972, which are issued in exchange for coupons due October 15, 1941 and to and including October 15, 1944. A pro rata part of such fair market value should be deducted for each coupon missing.

In the absence of information in regard to the fair market value, if any, of the talons issued in connection with the New Bonds no adjustment should be made for any missing coupons due after October 15, 1944.

The fair market value of German Government International Loan Bonds of 1930, at the time of the recovery of such bonds, should be reduced to reflect any coupons due on December 1, 1941, and to and including December 1, 1944, which are missing. No reduction should be made for coupons due prior to December 1, 1941, inasmuch as it appears that all coupons due on and before June 1, 1941, were paid, and therefore such coupons were not legally outstanding at the time of the recovery.

The reduction in the fair market value of the bonds should be made in the manner set forth above with respect to the German External Loan Bonds of 1924.

In the absence of information in regard to the fair market value, if any, of the talons issued in connection with the New Bonds, no adjustment should be made for any missing coupons due after December 1, 1944.

Coupons appurtenant to the Prussia Bonds of 1926 and 1927 bearing due dates from March 15, 1933 to and including October 15, 1936, have a fair market value equal to 50 percent of their face amount.

No adjustments are required with respect to coupons appurtenant to Prussia Bonds of 1926 and 1927, due on and after March 15, 1937, or due prior to March 15, 1933, which are missing.

Coupons appurtenant to the Conversion Office Bonds bearing due dates from July 1, 1941 to and including December 31, 1952, had a fair market value equal to one-third of the fair market value on January 11, 1954, of a corresponding face amount of 10-year Bonds of 1936-Federal Republic of Germany-Conversion and Funding Issue 1953-Three Percent, Dollar Bonds, due January 1, 1963.

No adjustments are required with respect to coupons appurtenant to Conversion Office Bonds due prior to July 1, 1941.

The fair market value of Fractional Certificates for Conversion Office Bonds on January 11, 1954, should be determined on the basis of the fair market value of the Old Bonds which they represent.

(C) Will the new holding period for such Old Bond, for the purposes of section 117 of the Code, begin on the recovery date?

The holding period, within the meaning of section 117 of the Code, for Old Bonds acquired prior to December 11, 1941, which are recovered, will run from the date of the recovery (January 11, 1954).

(D) How will the tax basis for such Old Bonds be determined?

In cases where holders of Old Bonds do not elect to have the provisions of section 127(c)(3) of the Code apply to the recovery of such bonds acquired prior to December 11, 1941, the basis of the bonds recovered, determined under the provisions of section 127(d)(1) of the Code, will be an amount equal to the fair market value of the bonds as of the date of the recovery, reduced by the amount, if any, by which such fair market value exceeds the deduction allowable in 1941, and increased by that portion of the amount of the recovery, which, under section 127(c) of the Code, is treated as a recognized gain from an involuntary conversion of property within the meaning of section 112(f) of the Code.

In cases where bondholders elect to have the provisions of section 127(c)(3) of the Code apply to the recovery of Old Bonds acquired prior to December 11, 1941, the basis of the bonds recovered, determined under the provisions of section 127(d)(2) of the Code, will be an amount equal to the value at which the bonds are included in the amount of the recovery under the provisions of section 127(c)(3)(A) of the Code, or the cost or other basis of the Old Bonds, reduced by such part, if any, of the gain recognized under section 127(c)(3)(C) of the Code which is not recognized as provided in section 112(f) of the Code.

(E) What is the tax basis of an Old Bond acquired by the present holder after December 11, 1941?

Holders of Old Bonds acquired subsequent to December 11, 1941, did not sustain deductible losses in 1941 under the provisions of section 127(a) of the Code as the result of the declaration of war against Germany. Therefore, the provisions of section 127(c) of the Code relating to the recovery of war losses, and the provisions of section 127(d) of the Code relating to the basis of property recovered, are not applicable in cases of such bondholders. The basis of Old Bonds acquired subsequent to December 11, 1941, is the cost of the bonds or other basis provided by section 113 of the Code. The holding period of such bonds runs from the date the bonds were acquired.

(F) How is the effective date of the exchange to be determined?

Inasmuch as Old Bonds which are not validated may not be exchanged for New Bonds, it is held that in no case does the effective date of the exchange occur prior to the date the Old Bond is validated. In cases where holders of Old Bonds surrendered their bonds for validation on or prior to January 11, 1954, and at the same time agreed to the exchange of such bonds for New Bonds pending the validation of the Old Bonds, in which cases the Old Bonds were not returned to the holders thereof, the exchanges became effective on January 11, 1954, immediately following the recovery of the Old Bonds, or on the date the validation was completed, whichever was later. In cases where holders of Old Bonds surrender their bonds for validation subsequent to January 11, 1954, and at the same time agree to the exchange change of such bonds for New Bonds pending the validation of the Old Bonds, in which cases the Old Bonds are not returned to the holders thereof, the exchanges become effective the date the validation is completed. In cases where Old Bonds are surrendered for validation subsequent to January 11, 1954, with instructions that they be returned to the holders thereof upon completion of the validation and before they are submitted to the appropriate Exchange Agent for exchange, the exchanges become effective the date the bonds are received by the Exchange Agent accompanied by the appropriate Letter of Transmittal.

(G) Will the holder of such an Old Bond on the recovery date be deemed to have received a recovery, whether or not such bond shall be exchanged pursuant to the exchange offer described above?

A holder of an Old Bond acquired prior to December 11, 1941, will be deemed to have realized a recovery on the recovery date whether or not such bond is exchanged pursuant to the exchange offer.

(H) What is the procedure relative to an Old Bond acquired prior to December 11, 1941, which is not validated?

In the event that an Old Bond acquired prior to December 11, 1941, is not validated a deductible loss will not be sustained by the holder of the bond because of the denial of validation. In such a case the bondholder will be permitted to file a claim for refund of any income tax paid by him for 1954 which resulted from erroneously including in his gross income for that year an amount alleged to have been realized as recovery income.

(I) What is the valuation of the New Bonds for the purpose of determining the gain or loss realized upon the exchanges of the Old Bonds for New Bonds?

For the reasons set forth in (B) above, it is held that the quotations for the first day of trading do not reflect the correct fair market value of the bonds on January 11, 1954. It's held that the fair market value of the New Bonds was as follows on January 11, 1954.

|--|--------|
| German External Loan 1924 --                           |        |
| Federal Republic of Germany --                         |        |
| Extension Issue 1953, 5.5%                             |        |

| German External Loan 1924 --                           |        |
| Federal Republic of Germany --                         |        |
| Funding Issue 1953 - 3% Bonds, due October 15, 1972    | 45 5/8 |
| German Govt. International Loan 1930 --                |        |
| Federal Republic of Germany -- Extension Issue 1953 -- |        |
| 5% Bonds, due June 1, 1980                             | 66 1/4 |
| German Govt. International Loan 1930 --                |        |
| Federal Republic of Germany -- Funding Issue 1953 --   |        |
| 3% Bonds, due December 1, 1972                         | 48 5/8 |

It is held further that the Federal Republic of Germany-Prussia Conversion Issue 1953-4 percent Bonds, due October 1, 1972, had a fair market value of 60 7/8 on January 11, 1954. Such value should be used for all dates to and including February 2, 1954.

Ten Year Bonds of 1936-Federal Republic of Germany-Conversion and Funding Issue 1953, 3 percent Bonds, due January 1, 1963, had a fair market value of 61 1/4 on January 11, 1954. Such value should be used for all dates to and including April 14, 1954.

The fair market value of the above-mentioned New Bonds for dates subsequent to those mentioned should be determined by using the mean of the high and low quotations for the day on which a particular exchange takes place, or the mean of the high and low quotations for the date nearest to the date of exchange, in the event there are no quotations on the date of the exchange.

The fair market value of German External Loan 1924-Federal Republic of Germany-Extension Issue 1953-5 1/2 percent Bonds, due October 15, 1969, and German Government International Loan 1930-Federal Republic of Germany-Extension Issue 1953-5 percent Bonds, due June 1, 1980, on the effective dates of the exchanges, should not be reduced because of any talons which may not be attached to the said bonds. This position is taken inasmuch as there is no information available from which to determine the fair market value of the talons.

The fair market value of the scrip certificates issued in connection with the New Bonds should be determined on the basis of the fair market value of the New Bonds with respect to which the scrip certificates are issued.

(J) What will be the tax effect of the exchange of the Old Bonds for the New Bonds?

The exchange of the Old Bonds, including those acquired subsequent to December 11, 1941, will come under the provisions of section 112(a) of the Code. Gain or loss will be realized by holders of Old Bonds acquired prior to December 11, 1941, measured by the difference between the basis of such bonds established under the provisions of section 127(d) of the Code, and the fair market value of the assets received in the exchange as described above. Gain or loss will be realized by holders of Old Bonds acquired subsequent to December 11, 1941, measured by the difference between the cost or other basis of the Old Bonds established under the provisions of section 113 of the Code and fair market value of the assets received in the exchange as described above.

The gain or loss realized upon the exchange of the Old Bonds, including those acquired subsequent to December 11, 1941, will represent capital gain or capital loss under the provisions of section 117 of the Code. However, in cases where the Old Bonds were acquired prior to December 11, 1941, interest income will be realized to the extent that the fair market value of the assets received in the exchange is in excess of such principal and the interest accrued and unpaid on the Old Bonds since the date of the recovery. In cases where Old Bonds were acquired subsequent to December 11, 1941, interest income will be realized to the extent that the fair market value of the assets received in the exchange is in excess of the principal of the Old Bonds but not in excess of such principal and the interest accrued and unpaid on such bonds since the date of their acquisition.

(K) What will be the effect for Federal income tax purposes if the holder of an Old Bond does not make an election under section 127(c)(5) of the Code, relating to tax adjustments measured by prior benefits?

If the holder of an Old Bond acquired prior to December 11, 1941, does not make an election under the provisions of section 127(c)(5) of the Code the recovery will be measured by the fair market value of the Old Bond on the recovery date, which will reflect the fair market value of the scrip certificates which will be issued, the fair market value, if any, of the talons issued pursuant to the plan, the fair market value of the rights to interest accrued on the New Bonds, the fair market value of any rights received to later collect accrued and unpaid interest on the Old Bonds, and in the case of the Prussia Bonds, the right to collect 50 percent of the coupons bearing due dates from March 15, 1933 to

October 15, 1936. The recovery will be includible in the gross income of the bondholder for the year of the recovery to the extent that it exceeds the portion, if any, of the deduction allowable in 1941 as a war loss under the provisions of section 127(a)(2) of the Code which did not result in a reduction of the bondholder's tax liability for that year. Recoveries in excess of such amount will be treated as ordinary income until such excess equals the amount of the bondholder's allowable deduction in 1941 which did result in a reduction of his tax liability for that year. Recoveries, if any, in excess of a bondholder's allowable deduction in 1941 will be treated as gain on an involuntary conversion of property as a result of its destruction or seizure and will be recognized or not recognized as provided by section 112(f) of the Code. Since in the instant case the Old Bonds, as a result of their destruction or seizure, were, in the exchange, involuntarily converted into property similar or related in service or use to the property so converted, within the meaning of section 112(f)(1) of the Code, no gain is recognized on the portion of the recovery income to which the provisions of section 112(f)(1) of the Code are applicable. In cases where bondholders acquired Old Bonds prior to December 11, 1941, but did not claim the deductions allowable in 1941 it will be held that the entire amount of the cost or other basis of such bonds represented allowable deductions which did not result in the reduction of the bondholders' tax liability for that year.

(L) What will be the tax effect if the holder of an Old Bond does make an election under section 127(c)(5) of the Code?

If, pursuant to a bondholder's election under section 127(c)(5) of the Code, the provisions of section 127(c)(3) of the Code are applicable to the recovery, the fair market value of the Old Bond at the time of the recovery will, at the option of the bondholder, be considered an amount equal to the cost or other basis of the Old Bond as of December 11, 1941. In that event the amount of the recovery is not includible in gross income until the bondholder has recovered an amount equal to his allowable deduction in 1941, whether or not such allowable deduction resulted in a reduction of his tax liability for that year. Instead of including such amount in gross income, there will be added to, and assessed and collected as a part of the bondholder's tax liability for the year of the recovery, an adjustment on account of any tax benefit in 1941 resulting from the fact that the loss from destruction or seizure of the bond was an allowable deduction. The amount of such adjustment will be the total increase in the tax liability of the bondholder which would result by decreasing the allowable loss for 1941 by an amount equal to that portion of the amount of the recovery which is not included in gross income for the year of the recovery. The portion of the amount of the recovery which is in excess of the allowable deduction for 1941 is includible in gross income for the year of the recovery as gain on an involuntary conversion of property as a result of its destruction or seizure and will be recognized or not recognized as provided by section 112(f) of the Code. Since in the instant case the Old Bonds, as a result of their destruction or seizure, were, in the exchange, involuntarily converted into property similar or related in service or use to the property so converted, within the meaning of section 112(f)(1) of the Code, no gain is recognized on the portion of the recovery income to which the provisions of section 112(f)(1) of the Code are applicable.

(M) During what period is the holder of an Old Bond entitled to make an election under section 127(c)(5) of the Code?

Section 39.127(c)-1(d)(2) of Income Tax Regulations 118 states that if a taxpayer realizes a recovery during any taxable year ending after October 20, 1951, the date of the enactment of the Revenue Act of 1951, unless such taxable year ends on or before March 31, 1953, the election under section 127(c)(5) of the Code must be made by the taxpayer not later than the expiration of 6 months from the last day prescribed by law for the filing of his income tax return for the year of the recovery.

(N) What is the tax basis of the New Bonds?

The basis of the New Bonds and the other assets received in the exchange will be measured by their fair market values as of the effective date of the exchange.

(O) What recovery date will be recognized relative to the exchange?

In all cases where Old Bonds acquired prior to December 11, 1941, are exchanged for New Bonds it will be considered that the recovery was realized prior to the exchange even though, in some cases, the two transactions may occur simultaneously. Also, in all cases the gain or loss realized upon the exchange of Old Bonds will be determined as of the effective date of the exchange.

(P) What treatment will be accorded to scrip certificates, talons, and interest accrued on the Old Bonds?

The right to interest accrued and unpaid on the Old Bonds will be considered a part of such bonds, and the scrip certificates which will be issued in lieu of amounts of less than $100.00 of certain New Bonds, the talons which will be issued pursuant to the plan, the rights to interest accrued on the New Bonds, the rights to later collect accrued and unpaid interest on the Old Bonds, and in the case of the Prussia Bonds, the right to collect 50 percent of the coupons bearing due dates from March 15, 1933 to October 15, 1936, will be considered parts of the New Bonds received.

(Q) What is the tax effect for purposes of section 112 of the Code of the retention by the holders of coupons appurtenant to the Prussia Bonds?

In determining the gain or loss from the exchange of Old Prussia Bonds for New Bonds no adjustments will be made in the basis of such Old Bonds for coupons appurtenant there to bearing due dates from March 15, 1933 to and including October 15, 1936, which are retained by the holders of the Old Bonds, or for coupons due on or after March 14, 1937, appurtenant to Old Prussia Bonds which also will be retained by the holders of the Old Bonds.

(R) Under the exchange offer, will the amounts received relative to interest accrued on the Old Bonds constitute interest income?

Any amounts received pursuant to the exchange offers which represent interest accrued on the Old Bonds subsequent to the recovery date, or on the New Bonds subsequent to the exchange date will be treated as ordinary interest income.

Editorial

We are about to hit the 40 threshold for registered Festers. Of course that is very good news, but there is a downside. I messed up (again I can hear you say). A fellow wrote to say that he was planning on coming to the Fest. He lives somewhere north of Chicago and wanted to know how long the drive to the Fest is from Chicago. Well the answer is 4-6 hours from O'Harre. The bad news is that I lost the mail and do not remember who it was! Please write again! You will be the magic 40th registrant!

Dear Gram:

Regarding Edmund Dulac and his popular image of Marianne, you might want to mention that the model for Marianne was Lea, wife of Dulac's friend Emile Rixens.

Gene

Dear Gram,

From my home in Ft. Worth we could and did see the contrail of the shuttle. We were enroute to Canton, TX for the First Monday Trade days. I was notified of the crash about 10 minutes after it happened and looked up to see the contrail. There were no other clouds or contrails in the sky. Apparently the closest debris to my house was about 14 miles away.

No MPC was found in Canton so we came home. My wife, however, found plenty of "stuff" to bring home.

I think I will plan on flying to Cleveland sometime on Thursday the 27th. If anyone needs a ride then, let me know.

Bill McNease

Dear Bill,

Sounds like you are flying commercial to Cleveland. It should not be necessary for you to rent a car. Sparky is working on coordinating that. As soon as you know the time, please inform him.

Gram

Dear Editor:

When you write in the GRAM, you can often get more details that you bargained for.

Regarding the discussion of battle ships and the USS Indiana. There was indeed more that one battleship designated the USS Indiana. BB-1 was the first ship designed, built and commissioned as a battleship. She was commissioned on 20Nov1895 and eventually scrapped in 1924. BB-50 was authorized on 20Aug1916 and canceled on 8Feb1922 in accordance with the Washington Naval Treaty of 1920-21.

BB-58 was authorized by Congress on 27Mar1934, launched on 21Nov1944, commissioned on 30Apr1942, fought WWII, and was scrapped on 6Dec1963.

My brother-in-law was a Signalman First Class on the bridge of BB-58 and spent WWII in that billet and I am an honorary member of the USS Indiana Reunion Association.

Dear Gram,

Would you please make mention of this item in the Gram. Someone just might like it. Thank you.

Item Description:

FRANCE---FIVE FRANCS WORLD WAR TWO NORTH AFRICA PRISONER OF WAR NOTE IN EXTRA FINE++. HERE IS THE STORY OF THIS VERY RARE NOTE. The French maintained labor camps in North Africa. Soldiers/prisoners were sometimes transfered here to build the Trans-Sahara Railroad (or highway) through Morocco and Algeria. Prisoners who were rebellious were sent to the Merja camp in the burning Sahara desert where after a few weeks most went insane. Those working in the slave labor camps received approximately 1 1/4 Francs a day (about 3cts) and their food. To pay them, special prison currency was issued in the denominations of 5,10,50 and 100 Francs. The notes were supposed to have been backed by the Bank of Algeria. Although printed in French, these vari-colored notes were used by many nationalities including soldiers from the French Foreign Legion. (It is said that there aren't Frenchmen in the Legion hence the term Foreign) It is possible that the North Africa labor camps and these notes! antedate WW-II, but their greatest use was in the period following the fall of France in June 1940 and prior to the invasion of French North Africa late in 1942, during which period there were several thousand prisoners in these camps. This note is from my "personal collection" but there are those that would say that all of my unsold inventory is my "collection" As I recall I purchased it from noted collector-dealer-researcher now retired Al Donn, and this is most likely the plate note in his book. This is a unique opportunity to acquire a very rare note the likes of which you may not soon encounter. Listed by Campbell as #2339 and Schwan-Boling as #301. FREE REGISTERED DELIVERY. Dear Mr. D,

You are indeed a clever one. This blatant attempt to use our editorial space for financial gain would normally not sneak past our ethics inspectors, but you included such interesting material, that we could not resist using it and also wanted to reinforce the appropriate behavior of sending it, that we just had to run it. Furthermore, we think that it is great that you included the interesting information on ebay.
I only me Al Donn once. Remind me to tell the story some time.
Also, you should come to the Fest. You are guaranteed a good time!

Behelfszahlungsmittel propaganda notes

By Joe Boling

I acquired this week a propaganda note of the type SB173 on page 481 (propaganda back on a face of type SB145, the 50 rpf Behelfszahlungsmittel fuer die Deutsche Wehrmacht note). I was surprised to find that the propaganda note contains a watermark. It is a very close approximation (if not original) of the watermark in the original note of the same type that I already had. Now, why would the Allies bother with that?

Herb Friedman described this group of notes (there are three other messages on the same face type) in an article in the IBNS Journal 24:3. He does not describe the paper, nor imply that there might be watermarks in the leaflets. Looking at the illustrations in SB, I can see the watermark showing through in the scans of 171, 172, and 174 (all except the one that I have). The piece I have is indeed a touch more dull than the one without the back printing (the notes are naturally uniface), but the printing on the back is in the same bold shade as the red printing on an original (it does not match the faded red on the face).

So, what if the Allies captured a large quantity of the German notes, and overprinted them with the propaganda message? The print quality of the dull note is not enough different that I can say one is bad and other good. Both appear to be within normal ranges of print quality and color selection for notes of the period. There's nothing to say that the Allies might not have captured enough original notes (which happened to be a tad faded, or which BECAME a tad faded in Allied hands), and used them as vehicles for the messages on the backs.

Or, it might be that the propaganda overprint I just bought is a counterfeit on a genuine SB145 (with watermark, a bit faded). Does anyone have one of the propaganda messages on a note with NO watermark?

The Lyn Knight auction catalog arrived yesterday after the Gram went out. It is a wish book. I have not studied it in detail yet, but I will. We would like to have some reviews from others for publication.

The same mail brought David Seelye's latest list. Of course it is a wish list too, but more of note at the moment is the promotion. Dave made a big push for Fest attendance and it is greatly appreciated.

If you did not receive a Gram yesterday (#843) it was sent as an attachment. We had to do that because it was the world's longest Gram. For those who did not read it for technical problems, we will ask Doug Bell to post it at papermonwyworld.net so that you can catch up.

Dear Gram,

Looks good [the attachment Gram]. Opened no problem in all its massive glory (think my machine's RAM had a moment of clarity, but it did the job). Thanks, Fred!

Ray Sidman

Dear Gram,

Well, I got two of them [attachment Gram]. On top of that Webtv won't open MS Word attachments so I will have to take this over to my real computer to read it.

Lot's of work. It better be good!

Herb

Dear Gram,

I received my copy of Numismatist a few days ago. I was anxiously awaiting its arrival so I could read the in-depth article on the opening of the new paper money exhibit. I must be blind, I saw no mention of the opening. Most upsetting was the fact there was no mention or photos of the "Rendezvous with Destiny" MFC notes. Shame on you ANA for omitting such an event in your publication.

This brings me to next point. Some of you are aware a reference book on MFC ( that's Military Fest Certificates for those gramsters not familiar with this wonderful new collectable) is being put together. The book will make its debut at FEST IV. Included will be a serial number listing of all known notes. Please send serial number reports to thetrader.2@cox.net so the book will be as up to date as possible. Also, all Festers need to check the spelling of their names in the listing in the Gram as the books will be personalized with the Festers name on the cover. Also, Werner or Joe PLEEEEEEEEEEESE send your Rendezvous with Destiny note scans front and back in JPG or the notes and I will scan them and return them to you at the FEST or overnight them back to you.

See you at the FEST IV more and more

Al

Dear Editor,

It is great to see Cameron Bueschel sign up for the FEST. Welcome Cameron! And Tiffany, also!

Warner

Editor,

The schedule is what confused me. You show early departures on Sunday and final departures on Monday. When does the Fest actually end? Bob

Dear Bob,

Yes, it is a little confusing. Sorry. Most people leave after the auction on Sunday, but there are still possibilities on Sunday. A few others stay over on Sunday night and do not leave till Monday. Sunday lodging and evening meals are not included in the registration. Hope that this helps.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Fantastic gram yesterday. I was stunned by the long and wonderful account of the validation certificates of the Konversionskasse uncovered by Jim Downey. For much additional and complementary information, including numerous illustrations, I refer readers to the article I did in the I.B.N.S. Journal with input from Fred Schwan. This appeared as an extended piece in Volume 31 #4, pages 23-32. For further information please see WWII Remembered pages 484-486 for the Konversionskasse story, pages 308-310 for details on the various validation certificates and page 311 for a follow up to the validation certificates for a story about talons issued under the London Agreement of 1953! Included in the book are illustrations of all of these items.

All the best,

Steve Feller

Personalities on I Bonds

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

So who exactly was Chief Joseph? It turns out that he was the leader of the Nez Perce Indians and he resisted the government's attempts to force this tribe onto a reservation. He was born in Oregon in 1840 and given a name that translated to Thunder Rolling Down the Mountain, but was known as Joseph, or Joseph the Younger because his father had been baptized by a Christian missionary. He succeeded his father as chief in 1871 and inherited a very volatile situation where the federal government attempted to force the tribe onto a small Idaho reservation, one tenth the size of their native lands. In a series of battles with U.S. soldiers, where the tribe was outnumbered by ten to one, Chief Joseph and his band of warriors finally surrendered in October, 1877. The tribe was taken to Kansas and present day Oklahoma, where they remained until 1885. The Nez Perce were allowed to return to the Pacific Northwest at that time although it was not to their original territory. Chief Joseph died in 1904. In his final years, Chief Joseph spoke eloquently of the injustice of U.S. policy toward his people and held out hope that one day freedom and equality might come for Native Americans. For his civil rights stance, Chief Joseph is pictured on the $200 I-bond.

The I-bond series is made up of eight bonds that span the spectrum from $50 to $10000. The following eight people are honored on these bonds.

|         |                             |
|---------|-----------------------------|
| $50    | Helen Keller                |
| $75    | Dr. Hector P. Garcia        |
| $100   | Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. |
| $200   | Chief Joseph                |
| $500   | General George C. Marshall  |
| $1000  | Albert Einstein             |
| $5000  | Marian Anderson             |
| $10000 | Spark M. Matsunaga          |

Now we are all familiar with Keller, King, Marshall and Einstein and most of us recognize the well known opera star, Marian Anderson, but I have to admit that I was not familiar with Hector P. Garcia and Spark M. Matsunaga. So I had to look them up and pass on to you all what I learned.

Hector P. Garcia was a medical doctor that spent his life working to help the poor, sick and neglected.

He was born in 1914 in Mexico, but shortly thereafter, moved to Mercedes, Texas. His father insisted that he and his brothers concentrate on their education. Six of the seven Garcia children became doctors including Hector who earned a medical degree from The University of Texas in 1940.

Garcia served as infantry officer in World War II before the Army finally let him practice medicine. After the war, he opened a medical practice in Corpus Christi and catered to Mexican-American vets that had fought in the war, but returned to experience inferior treatment and segregation. Garcia founded the American G.I. Forum designed to improve veteran benefits and medical attention. The Forum expanded to address a broad range of issues, including education and vocational training, housing, public education, poll taxation, voter registration, hospitalization and employment. Other veterans advocacy groups existed at the time, but few admitted Mexican-Americans and none pursued their needs, even though 500,000 had served with distinction in WWII. Dr. Garcia became the first Latino civil rights leader. For this he is remembered on the 75 dollar I-bond.

Spark Matsunaga was a war hero that became a U.S.

Senator from the state of Hawaii. He was born Masayuki Matsunaga on the island of Kauai in 1916. His childhood friends nicknamed him Spark and he later legally adopted that name. He graduated from the University of Hawaii in 1941, was commissioned in the Army and was serving on active duty when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor in December. Shortly thereafter, he and other Japanese-Americans were relieved of their duties and shipped to Camp McCoy, Wisconsin. Matsunaga and other soldiers petitioned President Roosevelt for a chance to prove their loyalty. They were allowed to form the 100th Infantry Battalion, the first Japanese-American unit formed during WWII. Fifteen hundred strong they trained for combat and in September 1943, saw their first action in Italy. Matsunaga was wounded twice in the same night while moving through a minefield. He could not go back into combat but came back to the U.S. and made over 800 speeches to help the Japanese-Americans become integrated in the mainstream of American life after being released from the detention camps. His unit turned out to be one of the most decorated units of the war.

In 1962 Matsunaga won a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives. In 1976, he was elected to the U.S. Senate. He was instrumental in obtaining redress for Japanese-Americans that had been unjustly interned during WWII. In 1990, Matsunaga died while serving in the Senate. His image is portrayed on the $10000 I-bond.

That gives you a short thumbnail sketch of some of the lesser known people that are pictured on the current I-bonds. As we said last week, these paper securities may not be around much longer.

Missing and misnumbered Grams. First, the Grams with the mismatched, repeated and otherwise messed up numbers are done that way so that future generations of military numismatics literature collectors will have the opportunity for in-depth research. They will have great fun just figuring out what Grams exist much less when they were published etc.

Missing Grams are another matter. Gram 843 was an experimental Gram because it was a world record Gram for length. We were unable to send the Gram in the normal way because Yahoo would not allow. Therefore, we tried sending it as an attachment.

The attachment experiment was not a great success. It was not a disaster either. Doug "Wiz" Bell has a solution for missing Grams. First, of course, if you miss Gram we want/need to hear about it. Well, possibly that is not first. If you miss Grams, you can go to papermoneyworld.net (PMW) and reenter your email address (or a new one). If that does not work, we definitely need to hear from you. Now, for missed issues, there is a solution too. Old Gram issues are posted at PMW. Generally, the posting is delayed so as not to discourage Gram subscriptions. In the case of the attachment Gram, the posting has been made. See Don's letter below for more information.

Dear Gram,

I have a response from Tom Warburton to my column (gram 844) and I have not received any gram since 842. Where are they going? I also am still waiting for all the grams I asked for on 2 January, to wit:

OK, where is gram 817? I am now missing four numbers, three of which (812-814) I have asked for twice. Now I notice that the gram that was numbered 811 in the subject line was numbered 812 in the masthead. If it really was 812, then I am missing 811.

I am certainly missing 813, 814, and now 817. Would you PLEASE put out something clarifying what grams were actually dispatched (numbers and dates), and send the ones that are missing?

You promised to "clarify" that "tomorrow." Nothing ever happened. I still don't have the grams.

Joe

Dear Gram,
Recently acquired a series 471 25c MPC position number 1 serial number B00002003B. Anybody got a lower one?

Larry Gibbs

Dear Larry,
Did you check the MPC database at papermoneyworld.net? Did you enter your note? Did you enter your other notes? If not, you should!

Editor

Dear Gram,
I too have been missing some recent grams, however, thanks to Doug, or whoever is doing it, the past grams listing at:

<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/800-899/gram%20800-899.htm> will get them for you. Sometimes they're delayed, but still eventually available.

POW Conference II

By Steve Feller

After a successful inaugural conference last fall, TRACES is pleased to announce its second WWII-Era POW Conference to be held from 30 May to 2 June 2003 at Coe College in Cedar Rapids/Iowa. A main reason that a second conference will be held already is that barring a protracted war in Iraq which might prohibit their trans-Atlantic flying, some half dozen former German POWs who had been imprisoned in Minnesota and Iowa (as well as Colorado, Kansas, Missouri and other states) will be touring the Upper Midwest from 16 May to 6 June 2003. In addition, other former German POWs now living in the U.S. and former U.S. Army personnel who worked at camps are expected to attend the gathering.

We welcome proposals for presentations to be offered at the conference; we especially welcome presentations about U.S., British, French, Soviet, Polish, Japanese and Italian POWs, as the experience of German POWs has been and will be again well covered. We also welcome nominations for the keynote speaker--either from others or from a given would-be speaker her- or himself. Proposals or nominations will be accepted until 8:00 Saturday morning, 8 March 2003, when the TRACES Board of Directors will meet to consider them and announce the conference's final schedule.

The tentative conference schedule is as follows:

5-9 PM Fri., 30 May: registration at Coe College, Cedar Rapids/Iowa

6 PM Fri., 30 May: the TRACES Bookshop opens

7-10 PM Fri., 30 May: informal Get-to-Know-Each-Other and networking session at Coe College's lounge

10:30 PM Fri., 30 May: TRACES Bookshop closes

8-9 AM Sat., 31 May: conclusion of registration and opening of TRACES Bookshop, which will close at 10:30 PM

9-10:15 AM Sat., 31 May: Michael Luick-Thrams opensconference; keynote address (To Be Announced)

10:45 AM-NOON Sat., 31 May: presentation: "Camp Currencies: Axis and Allied Monies Used in Concentration, Internment and POW Camps" by Steve Feller, a Coe College professor and currency expert

1-5 PM Sat., 31 May: exhibit "The Third Reich in Iowa: German POW Art and Artifacts" [with over 1,000 items] opens at the Johnson County History Center, Old Capitol Mall, Iowa City/Iowa; Michael Luick-Thrams will offer a guided tour of the exhibit collection

5:30-8 PM Sat., 31 May: special-interest groups meet over dinner; locations to be announced

8-10 PM Sat., 31 May: panel discussion with former German POWs, as well as others who personally experienced U.S. German POW camps

10:30 PM Sat., 31 May: TRACES Bookshop closes

-----

meet over lunch; locations to be announced

2-3:15 PM Sun., 1 June: presentation: "Italian POWs in Utah" by Kathy Kirkpatrick, a POW researcher and professional genealogist specialized in Italian sources

3:45-5 PM Sun., 1 June: presentation: (TBA)

5:15-6:45 PM Sun., 1 June: special-interest groups meet over dinner; locations to be announced

7-10 PM, 1 June: Sunday Film Night, featuring films by Calamandrei and others

10:30 PM Sun., 1 June: TRACES Bookshop closes for the conference's duration

8:30-10 Mon. AM, 2 June: send-off breakfast; Michael Luick-Thrams gives concluding address

[Please note that while the Cedar Rapids airport is sufficiently connected national airports (especially via Chicago), Sunday flights are exceptionally (!)expensive; Monday morning flights are recommended.]

Registration fees:

$150 for general registration; $200 after 1 May 2003.
(A day fee of $50 per full day, $25 per half day will be accepted at the time of registration as space allows for walk-in registrants to join pre-reg.)

$100 for presenters, uni/college students, senior citizens, veterans of any age, overseas participants.
(Registrations must be received by 1 May to qualify.)(Presenters coming for one day may attend half of that day free; if they'd like to attend the entire day they will be asked for a $25 contribution to help defray conference costs. [Basically, all presenters and panelists are being given $50 credit.]

$50 for TRACES donors/non-working TRACES board members.

$50 for Journalists may attend the exhibit
opening, 1-5 Saturday afternoon at the Johnson County History Center in Iowa City/Iowa, for free; those wishing to attend the rest of the conference in order to write articles/tape reports may do so at $25 per day. The exhibit itself is free and open to the public. We are very pleased to have, per plan, some half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

For more information about TRACES visit
www.TRACES.org.

Also, very cheap housing (about $15 per day will be available at the college.

I (Steve Feller) will host a WWII Money Bar-B-Que and late night chat at my house...

Editorial

=====

It is exciting news that POW Conference II will be this year. When conference I adjourned, it seemed most likely that there would not be another until 2004.
This is great. I certainly look forward to attending again and hope that we can get another core group of collectors to participate. As we get closer we will again announce numismatic attendees by listing them in the Gram.

Mail Call

=====

Dear Gram,

The Colorado Coin Show is scheduled for July 4, 5, and 6, 2003, in Colorado Springs. This is the weekend between the two Summer Seminars at ANA HQ. Last year we gave a short talk on MPC on Saturday afternoon. About 10-11 people attended. This was pretty good considering there was no advertising. All seemed to be very interested, but there is no way of knowing if they followed up by subscribing to the GRAM or otherwise got involved with military numismatics.

It is time to think about this year, particularly so that an announcement can be included in the Coin Show advertising and other advertising, as appropriate.

Something like a "mini-seminar" or a "mini-FEST" or an "MPC Collectors Meeting". Something more than just a presentation. Something that gives the flavor of our get-togethers and will encourage attendees to get further involved. The schedule might include a couple of short introductory presentations, a pay call, at least one handout with information about the GRAM, the website, the FEST, the Summer Seminar, etc. All the contacts that will make it easy for the new people to get involved. And there needs to be a "hook" that will encourage people to attend this event. Something "free".

So, The purpose of this discussion is to seek ideas and comments. What do GRAMsters and FESTers think? Is it worthwhile? Is it interesting to you? Would you participate? More ideas?

Warner Talso

Hi Fred,

Too bad your Carrollton announcement got out so darn late as my # 1 son who is in to some "WW II R" stuff lives in Carrollton!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

My brother Don Zubris was in the USMC stationed in Cyprus in 1964 and they were paid mostly in local Cyprus notes with a small percentage being in MPC as they didn't have a PX in the capital, just a small post watering hole. He will send details to David. Otherwise <dznt@adelphia.net>

How is that for some sleuthing?

Were those photocopies of MPC from my friend in Czech Republic, Karl Vanka of any help? Bob Wilhite who retired from KP has a small collection I could photocopy also.

Cheers,

Colin

Dear Colin,

OK, I was late announcing the TexFest, I made up for it by being late running your letter about it!

Lithuanian Cigarette Notes of 1944

by Marcus Turner

Once again I get to talk about one of my most favorite notes of all times. The design is very simple, the paper is nothing special, the significance to the war effort is minimal at best, but yet they are notes that captured my imagination early on.

<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/800-899/marcus3.htm>

I first saw these pieces about four years ago in a 1997 catalog by Aleksandras Kubilas of Vilnius, Lithuania entitled "World II War Russian-German Occupations in Lithuania." The catalog itself is fairly comprehensive and lists virtually everything including coins, bonds, medals, ration coupons, revenues, receipts and even passports. My understanding is that Mr. Kubilas had 100 copies of his catalog translated into English. While the translation is a bit crude in some spots, I believe the catalog does a fairly good job in explaining the pieces and does a great job in conveying the confusion and frustration of the Lithuanian people in being caught, quite literally, between two warring superpowers. The illustration of the notes appears on page 28, but no listing is given until page 31. The vignette contains an agricultural scene containing a pig, chicken, eggs and a haystack. The notes are bi-lingual in both German and Lithuanian. The notes are uniface and do not contain a watermark of any kind. The printing is brown on brown paper, with the serial numbers being printed in black. Not knowing either language, I immediately speculated that this was some sort of rationing note for agricultural goods. Naturally I quite surprised to find in the listing that "Papyros" are actually cigarettes.

As I was just beginning to collect the textile "Punkte" notes of the Baltic States, I had made some good contacts in the region. I contacted everyone I knew trying to find examples of these notes. Although most were familiar with the listing in the catalog, no one I had corresponded with had ever actually seen the notes. I even resorted to writing a letter to Mr. Kubilas, hoping that he spoke English, and could find an example for me. As it turns out, I never received a response, and was later told that he only speaks German and Lithuanian.

In 2000 I again saw the notes listed in the 1999 "First Trial Catalog" by Ants Kulo and Juri Rudich entitled "World War II German Occupation of the Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Belarus and North Russia."

As I had already established a relationship with Juri Rudich, I asked him about the listing in his catalog. If my memory serves me correctly, he indicated that he had never seen the notes before either and used the same illustration that was in the Kubilas catalog. Indeed the notes are overlapped in the same manner with identical serial numbers.

Later that year I made another contact with a Lithuanian collector who personally knew Mr. Kubilas. She was more than willing to inquire about the notes for me. Within two weeks I had in hand my first Lithuanian Cigarette note, a 10 Stucken piece. As can be seen in the picture, the note is a little damaged, possibly fading by exposure to sunlight. Within a couple of months, Mr. Kubilas had offered up to me an uncirculated example of the 40 Stucken piece. As the picture will reveal, the serial number was only one digit higher than the illustration offered in the Kulo/Rudich and Kubilas catalogs.

To date I have only been able to confirm five examples of these notes as listed below:

10 Stucken

423752

424388

424901

203610

Surprisingly the 10 Stucken piece (424388) was unknowingly held hostage by our esteemed editor Fred. His note found its way into another prominent collection at MPCFest III last year.

Obviously we still know very little about these pieces. If anyone has any further information, or have additional pieces to report please contact me at maturner@indy.rr.com.

Hello from somewhere on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. I am returning from the Strasburg Stock and Bond show where I had a great time. It was not a great show for military numismatics, but as you can imagine, I found sufficient opportunities to spend money! One dealer had cherry picked a nice MPC replacement from a shop or show ($1, yes $1!) and sold it to me for quite a few hundred!

Of course, I always wish that I was the buyer at $1, but am also happy to have a chance at it at all. I also like to hear the stories. It can be and still is done!

I am sending this from a credit card operated Internet station in a truck stop and having some trouble with making it work as well as fretting over the 20 cents per minute ticker!

There are plenty of good letter in the mail box, but I am not certain if I can get even one into this Gram before my credit card goes dry.

Fred

Mail Call

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I have some good news or bad news for you. The Army (Retired) Reserve in St Louis recently contacted me (again) via email about my possible mobilization from retirement. They asked for a signed volunteer form, a signed medical information form, and an update to my background information (BI) with two fingerprint cards. The latter makes me think they are getting serious about me because they did not ask for the BI and cards when I was recalled for Operations Desert Shield & Storm in 1991.

You might ask why they want a signed volunteer form. On December 31, 1990, I remember asking the Captain telling me I was being recalled what would happen if I did not sign a volunteer form. She said that if I did not sign it, she would just have to obtain an executive order for me, which she had already done for several people she had called before me.

A few months ago, an old friend, who was recalled and is still on active duty, told me that the several intelligence and special operations units at Fort Bragg, NC, were severely understaffed, so I might end up in one of those units. This would allow a much younger deskbound Master Sergeant to be released for "overseas" duty. This is OK, but it would mean I would not be reassigned to my 1991 work as NCOIC of one of the 12-hour shifts for the U.S. Army Escort Detachment at Dover AFB, DE. The work at the detachment was mentally difficult, but it was very worthwhile to see that everything was done to honor our fallen men and women and to properly return them to their next of kin.

I sent everything to St Louis via Express Mail on Wednesday, so my guess is that my chances of being recalled have gone from about 50% to over 75%.
The bad news is that if I am recalled, I need one or more people to man the club table for NI, NBS and IBNS at the Charlotte ANA in the third week of March. And to moderate a show and tell meeting of NI and IBNS. If you or any other Gramsters are going to be there, please step forward one pace and volunteer to cover for me. When I get a couple of names via my email address of Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com, I will contact Brenda at the ANA to have your names added to the club table.
That is all for now. I am working on a hundred projects right now and trying to get some of them done before I have to leave my little piece of heaven on the Chesapeake Bay.
Howard A. Daniel III

Jackson Barracks Military Museum

by Howard A. Daniel III

My Fall 2002 issue of "On Point" magazine published by The Army Historical Foundation has an article; "Jackson Barracks Military Museum" by Elizabeth Oliver (Director, Jackson Barracks Military Museum). It is a very likely source of information for my research projects of Gramsters!

Jackson Barracks was created in 1832 and named after Andrew Jackson. The museum was established in 1974 by the Louisiana State Legislature and opened in 1977. Its collections include uniforms, insignia, equipment, flags, banners and historical documentation, plus many other items. It is located between St. Claude and North Claiborne Avenues in New Orleans. Which was also the location of a holding facility for WWII German POWs captured in North Africa.

Located in Jackson Barracks' Area A is Building 53, which is the military history library, which includes reference and microfilm. I am sure there are many items in this library of interest to Gramsters! It is open Monday through Friday from 0800 to 1600 hours, but closed on federal and state holidays. Admission and parking are free.

You can contact the museum at 504-278-8242 or email to jbmuseum@laarng.ngb.army.mil, or visit the museum's website at <http://www.la.ngb.army.mil/dmh/jbmm.htm>. The author of the "On Point" article about this museum and library is also the Director. I would highly recommend that you address all emails to her. Good luck and good hunting to you Gramsters living close enough to New Orleans to do some research there. I want to see several articles by you in upcoming MPC Grams about your visits and discoveries there.

As I described yesterday, I had some trouble getting the Gram out. The terminal in the truck stop was not very easy to use. That contributed to one of the more humorous errors that I have made in sending the Gram. As you probably noticed, in the subject line of the email, I listed it at Gram 1847! Adding 1000 thousand Grams in the stroke of a key!

Bob Olson is the 40th Fester and the 13th new Fester. Has that previously been announced in the Gram? I am very confused on that. In fact, I have the feeling that someone else reserved a spot recently and that I failed to mention it. Nonetheless, these are important thresholds. I new record grand total, and a record number of new Festers (12 new Festers each of the first two years). If you are coming to the Fest, PLEASE review the list below. Of course if you are not on it, please shout. Check the spelling of your name and any other details too.

Fred

Dear Gram,

I received #844 and 846. No 845. Please retrans.

Note you still have Gail Baker on the training schedule as the coordinator of show-and-tell.

Warner

Dear Warner,

Are you volunteering to fill in for AWOL Gail?

Editor

Dear Gram,

In a recent MPCGram Howard Daniel mentions that fact that his new 50 rpf propaganda note (P-M35) was watermarked and wonders if this could mean that they were captured genuine notes? Well, it could mean that, but fortunately I have researched the production of this note by Ellic Howe of the British PWE.

They were coded H.692A-D by Howe and also balloon dropped with the code Q38. The operation was so popular that they were printed again as PWE H.917. We have reason to believe that about 500,000 in all were printed, so it is doubtful that such a great number could be confiscated by the British. I think we can say with some confidence that Howe printed both the front and back.

All my copies are watermarked, so it is clear that the British produced an excellent product (maybe with the idea of also using the notes as counterfeits? I asked a knowledgeable friend what he thought about Howard's question and he said, "Interesting. I never considered it. All my British parodies have the watermark. The print quantities are so huge as to preclude, I suppose, the use of genuine German notes.

It's curious that Howe would produce such an excellent forgery of the genuine note, right down to the watermark, and then print propaganda on the back. Perhaps the idea was that the soldiers were supposed to believe that these were done by disgruntled military, using genuine notes."

Herb Friedman

FRB note emission sequencing

By Joe Boling

Here's a story that I thought had been told in the gram, but I can find no mention of it in my two years of submissions. The subject is the Federal Reserve Bank of China. There are several parallel series that were issued nearly simultaneously from about 1943-45, but printed in different places (as deduced from differences in the serial number machines and block characteristics--some being one or two digit block numbers in angular brackets; the other being three-letter block identifiers. There are also the differences in technology (intaglio/lithography) and the similar notes printed in more than one batch even though the same basic design was retained (such as the Temple of the Sun 500 yuan blue and yellow or blue and orange). Sorting these out into a chronology (after 1938 they are undated) proved difficult for Bob Meyer (in the Toy Meyer book) and it was difficult for Schwan and Boling in our 1978 edition.

Sometime in late 1983 or early 1984 a Tokyo dealer acquaintance asked me to go to a Tokyo suburb with him to another shop--a dealer I had never visited. Their object was to sell me a Sino- Japanese War (1895) 1 tael military note (PMA3). As I recall, they wanted about $4000 for it, a bargain (or at least a fair price then, and a bargain today). I had recently sold my Korean notes, and had money in hand, but I eventually decided I'd rather use it to add more notes of the early Meiji period (the ones that look like hansatsu, but are exchange company notes, the precursors to National Bank Notes). But while in the shop, the dealer showed me something else--a folder full of transmittal letters for FRB specimen notes, from the Bank of Japan to various branches in Korea and China.

We already knew that FRB specimen notes were numbered within denomination (such as 3rd design 10 yuan note, 2nd design 500 yuan note, and so forth). This information came from specimen books, which showed these numbers on their covers (the story of how I acquired a large group of these specimen booklets is for another gram). But the booklets are not generally dated (once in a blue moon you find one with a rubber stamp date on the cover, but one never knows whether that is the date it was sent, received, or if the date has some other significance for that particular issue, booklet, or location). But the letters in this folder full were all dated. These were carbon copies, but they used the same terminology as appears on the booklet covers. We thus for the first time could assign approximate issue dates to the FRB emissions. We also could see which notes formed discrete sets, because they were sent to the field together with notes of other denominations under the same transmittal letter.

This allowed us to attempt to classify the notes FRB better. I have always been particularly proud of our rearranging (from the T/M and SB 1978 efforts) of the FRB notes (which Pick copied a few years later).

=====

It has been an amazing week. MPC news is breaking, CPMX is less than a week away and Fest IV is two weeks away. The computer has been giving me some minor problems, and the email boxes are over flowing. Top that off with untold doctor visits for Judy and I am facing the biggest time crunch in many years.

However, let's deal with first things first. Judy is just about well. She goes back to work on Tuesday (thank goodness). She has made medical history as apparently the first person on the planet to suffer pancreas inflammation for this reason. Nonetheless, she seems to be well and we thank everyone for their good wishes.

I have never had two columns tacked up. Joe's column above of course was scheduled for Tuesday, but he was late (getting it here Wed), but I (obviously) did not get it out even then. Larry's Thurski column is here somewhere, but I cannot find it. I intended to run it today, but have to dig some more or have him resend it.

Oh yes, there have been Gram delivery problems. Is there no end to the problems?

Here is some good news. Ron Waddell is the 41st Fester! Possibly the 42nd reservation is hiding in the unsorted mail. We should know by tomorrow.

Fred

Dear Gram,

I see from the Fest list that there are at least four chess players attending. I suggest that we have a short tournament to determine the MPCFest Chess Champ MFCC or MPCFCC. I volunteer to run it. It could be Friday night late or Saturday night concurrently with the poker game although I would like to play in that too!

C. Tolek

Dear Editor,

I read the FEST IV training schedule and noticed that the destruction of MFC series 011 has made the schedule. Should I bring what series 011 that already was "destroyed," that may be in my possession, to go back through the shredder?

David

Ministrie Van Oorlog Tokens

By David Seelye

I had the opportunity to purchase most of a small group of Ministrie Van Oorlog tokens that appeared on the market in 2001 at the Maastricht paper money show. Over the past two years a few more have surfaced, but I believe that the genesis is the same. A group of the 1, 5, 25 guilder notes also appeared, but that is another story.

A number of the token sets have been sold here that I did not get the chance to measure and include in my technical research. After the show I sent a form letter to the Netherlands coin and paper money dealers as well as all of the coin clubs in the Netherlands. I found out that they were listed in the 1969 edition of the Netherlands Schulman catalog. I then contacted the successors of the Schulman firm and had them find a used copy of the book. I commissioned the translation below.

In the back of the 1969 edition of "Nederlandse Munten" by Jacques Schulman on page 213 the six tokens are illustrated, along with the mintages. A translation of the text is;

" IX Plastic Money to Facilitate the Dutch Army and Issued by the Ministry of War

Because of the Netherlands joining NATO in 1949, Dutch troops had to be trained abroad. When this took place for the first time in 1951, strict currency restrictions were in place. Every soldier then, received 5 guilders plastic money to take with him abroad, to cover various cantine purchases.

This currency were to be exchanged after completion of the exercises. This process was almost complete. Therefore, they have become very rare, in particular the 5 and 1 guilder pieces. These have been replaced by paper currency.

Plastiekmunten

Catalog #

1475 5 guilders 15,223 pieces sprayed rosa RR medal orientation

1476 1 guilder 40,000 pieces sprayed gray R coin orientation

On the centerpart of the guilder, you will notice 3 stripes caused by the color spraying, including an irregular finishing at the rim.

The coins were manufactured by the Luxor Plastics N.V. in Amsterdam. The coins were too weak in the center and therefore broke into pieces soon after issuance. (300 pieces of the 1 guilder denomination were returned in pieces to the manufacturer)

Plastiek geld

1477 25 cents 83,962 pieces green coin, medal, and rotated orientation exist.

1478 10 cents 90,845 pieces blue coin, medal orientations

1479 5 cents 91,116 pieces white coin, medal orientation

1480 1 cents 55,683 pieces brown medal orientation

Manufactured by the Dutch Button Factory in Spakenburg. Some pieces are thicker, some even twice as much than the usual ones. These are not Piedforts.

* The information here provided, were generously submitted by Major J.J.M. Hubregtse"

These tokens were left out of the current edition of "World War 2 Remembered" due to an oversight. At the time of the publication, only 3 values were known.

The translation leaves several questions unanswered about the issue. Was the translation of the words "in het buitenland oefenen" to abroad correct? Does the translation of abroad mean overseas, ie USA or Germany? To help me with these lingering questions, I am going to commission another translation.

Editorial

David Seelye in his great article above stated that the Dutch tokens were not listed in World War II Remembered out of oversight. That is certainly correct. I was most disappointed in myself for forgetting to list them. Many new items have been discovered for listing in Remembered in the past eight years (some nice new listings found just today by Harold Kroll (Indian Defence Savings Stamps)). Only two of those apparent discoveries were the result of my oversight: the above tokens and Romanian war bonds.

The tokens were particularly upsetting. When I lived in Germany 1980-1930 I somehow found a few of the tokens. I bought a set for Larry Smulczenski and me. At the time I could not think of another person on the planet who might care about them (time do indeed change).

David has measured the diameter, thickness, and mass of the tokens that he had and recorded the data in a chart. He sent the chart, but I am afraid that its length might get us into trouble. Hm, here is what I will try. I will send "Gram 850 part II." That will be David's data.

I took great delight in entering some of David's information in the WWII manuscript today (the Indian savings stamps too).

Fred

Dear Gram,

The last MPC GRAM I have received is Number 846 dated Friday, February 6, 2003. Is this as it should be?

Warner

Dear Gram,

I have convinced Loretta to join me as a full fledged fester at MPCFest IV. Please change my MPCFEST IV from a single occupancy to a double occupancy and add the difference to this registration amount of $98.00 for Loretta. It is our hope that the billeting Sgt can see his way to bunk us in the same room. Since there are other female festers this year she has agreed to join me. She was pleasantly surprised to find that she has been listed as a Fest Auxiliary. However; 'Mrs. Freyser' seems so formal and would prefer 'Loretta Freyser'. Thank you. See you in a few weeks.

Dick

Dear Loretta (and Dick),

Bravo, welcome. We look forward to see you at the Fest! I apologize for seeming so formal, but frankly, I did not remember your name when entering it on the Fest Auxiliary list. Unfortunately, as a true Fester, you lose our eligibility for the auxiliary. Possibly the auxiliary might want to accept some Fest ladies as honor auxiliary or some such, but we are glad to have you as a Fester!

In these enlightened times (since Fest III), I think that the billeting sergeant will arrange for the Freysers to share a bunk, but hanky panky is still restricted to unmarried Festers.

Fest Auction on line

By Phil Goldstein

The auction for Fest IV is being prepared. The draft list can be reviewed at

MPCFest IV Auction Online Catalog

Please go there and find some items of interest. I am still adding items so check back often. Gramsters and Festers can participate in the auction, but please review the rules carefully.

The link will appear in the Gram every day through the end of the Fest.

The Power of Gram

by Marcus Tuner

I cannot remember exactly when the first MPCGram went out, but it was sometime after MPC Fest I in March of 2000. Personally I thought that Fred was a little over ambitious in trying to get one out every day. OK, we can all agree that perhaps everyday is a bit of an overstatement, but on the average we are probably looking at five or six a week.

Since that beginning sometime in 2000, I have written several articles for the gram. Some of these articles were intentional and others were simply questions that I had posed to Fred that he somehow sculpted into a feature article. In December of 2002 Fred asked me to become a weekly columnist for the Gram. At first I had no intention of taking on such a task. ANOTHER weekly deadline! I needed that like a needed a hole in the head. And what did I really know about this stuff anyways? I have only been serious collector since 1997. What the heck would I have to offer in comparison to guys like Larry S. and Joe B.?

After some smooth talking, Fred was finally successful in talking me into it. His concept of my Sunday column was to take a look at something in World War II Remembered and either present some new material or make an attempt at revising what had already been written. If nothing else it was opportunity to put something down on paper and see what kind of feedback we received. It sounded like fun, and was probably a great opportunity for Fred to get some free help on the next edition of WWII Remembered. It was time to throw the line out and see if anything would bite.

My first Gram as a weekly columnist was Gram 804 on the Gibraltar POW notes. I chose this topic because it is one of my favorite notes in my personal collection and that no one had done much writing on it before. Unfortunately our understanding of those particular notes has not changed much since it was first observed in 1974. I had speculated on several aspects of its use and the meanings of the various components of both the issued and ?specimen? examples known.

My first ?bite? on that column came approximately two months later. I received an email from a Mr. Andrew Schembri of Gibraltar. Andrew is somewhat of a historian on all subjects relating to Gibraltar during WWII. Obviously he provided some wonderful information that not only corrected what I had previously written (much of what I wrote was completely incorrect), but also resolved many of the unanswered questions that I had. He provided me with information and photos as well as put in contact with others who had valuable information.

My point here is not to write another piece on Gibraltar (if you are attending MPC Fest IV, you will get a complete update on what has been discovered with respect to the POW notes). The point is to stress what a valuable research tool the MPCGram is. I asked Mr. Schembri how he found my article. As it turns out he simply did an internet search through the Google search engine. I was aware that Doug Bell was keeping up the MPCGram index, but had no idea that search engines referenced individual Grams. I tried it myself! If you go to Google and search on ?Gibraltar POW? the second item of the list will take to you MPCGram 804. I was completely stunned!

So what is the moral of my story? If you are currently researching some note in your collection, write a story about in for the Gram? As I have discovered, it is OK to be wrong. Eventually someone will find your article and will be able to provide you with the proper information and resources to complete your research. The feedback might be as close as another gramster or might come months later from another part of the world. This experience has taught me to appreciate and utilize the power of the Gram.

I also believe that we all owe a huge ?thank you? to Doug Bell for marinating the MPCGram index and keeping our links to the World Wide Web open. Give it a try sometime!

Editorial

The delivery problems have become acute (see medical consultant below). Wiz is working on it and we are trying some alternatives, but we have no fixed solution. If you do not receive this Gram be sure to let us know!

One theory that I have is that AOL is viewing the Gram as SPAM (Gad!!). I resent 850 about an hour ago with a different subject line. I will also send this one that way. I am also sending this one directly here from HQ instead of through the PMW server. Hopefully, these measures will help.

It is amazing, last year we had great trouble getting the Gram out from the Fest and the week before. Hopefully, we can do better this year.

Fred

Dear Gram,

Is the Gram going out or and I not just receiving it. I haven't gotten one in a week or so...

Best Wishes,
Philip M. Goldstein

Dear Gram,

I saw the following item while cruising ebay. I collect some military medical items but was about knocked over when the description said that this was for a medical officer or paymaster. This is far from an area of expertise. Does anyone know anything about these? Are they really for medical officers and pay masters? How can they be identified?

Title of item: Civil War Medical Officer/Paymaster SWORD
Seller: richricca
Starts: Feb-12-03 18:49:22 PST
Ends: Feb-19-03 18:49:22 PST
Price: Currently $79.00
To bid on the item, go to:
<http://cgi.ebay.com/ws/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=2159430475>

Item Description:

This is an original civil war period Medical Officer or paymaster sword Extremely ornately designed . Light pitting on blade. Sword measures 24 3/4" in entirety with blade measuring 19 1/4". This piece is in wonderful condition!!! Lucky winning bidder please include $8 s/h.

I am certainly looking forward to the Fest!

C Tolek

Dear Editor,

Thanks to Warner for his info on the USS Indiana. I have found a number of websites with a lot of information on battleships, but have not been successful in locating any chits from any of them, save the one for the USS Wyoming I was able to get from Tom Koch. If any gram subscriber has any info on reference material, books, chit associations or sources relating to US battleships, I would appreciate a note in the gram

Regards,

Roger Urce

Dear Roger,

I heard a rumor that a world cruise with your wife was keeping you from the Fest. Seems like a curious allocation of priorities. I guess that you will have a chance to make up for it next year.

(Registrations must be received by 1 May to qualify.)(Presenters coming for one day may attend half of that day free; if they'd like to attend the entire day they will be asked for a $25 contribution to help defray conference costs. [Basically, all presenters and panelists are being given $50 credit.]

We are very pleased to have, per plan, some half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

Specimen MPC a Highlight of Fest Auction

The latest consignment to the Fest auction to be cataloged is also a highlight of the sale. It is a Series 661 10 cent SPECIMEN (!). As with all Bureau of Engraving and Printing specimens it has solid zero serial numbers ? B00000000B. It is a unique variety of the specimen (Schwan 902s).

Bids for the auction are invited from all Festers, Gramsters, and other collectors too. The catalog can be consulted at:

BNR Feb 1978

By Larry ?Ski? Smulczenski

My review of the February 1978 Banknote Reporter was a little disappointing. There was very little in the way of stories or discoveries of military paper money that popped right up to the reader, but as usual if you dug into the articles and ads, there were again some interesting items. One of the first things that caught my eye was a letter to the editor from Herb Schingoethe renewing his subscription to the Banknote Reporter for two years for a total of eight dollars. Can you imagine that! Twenty-four issues for eight bucks. That wouldn't even cover the cost of a first class postage stamp per issue today.

Another bargain was in an ad by Chuck O'Donnell offering to find special serial numbers on currency for collectors. He suggested birthdays, army serial numbers, ANA membership numbers etc. There was absolutely no charge if they didn't come up with your number but a price of $15.00 for the note if they did.

You will notice that Chuck didn't mention 39's or serial numbers ending in 472, 521, 641 or the like. I'm sure he would have some customers standing in line for this service today, but he would have to include MPC's in his repertoire of notes.

Another article dealing with cost of items in 1978 was the results of a three day major auction conducted by NASCA which set a record by realizing over a quarter million dollars. With auctions currently realizing revenues of several million dollars, a quarter million doesn't seem like much especially when you realize the quality of the offering. The sale was highlighted by the sale of the Q. David Bowers collection of New England Obsolete Banknotes. plus a selection of Confederate, Mormon and Three-dollar notes. Also offered was a large selection of vignettes and a Canadian and world note collection that was known as the Bridgeport Collection. A comment about the prices realized for the world notes was that this was "conclusive evidence of the willingness of collectors to back this field of collection with increasing amounts of money. Many dealers were heard to comment after the sale that they would have to go home and reprice their stocks." Those statements have sure rung true over the last 25 years.

Finally, Lyn Knight had a full page ad in the paper offering U.S. small size currency. Of interest was a one dollar HAWAII note in Gem CU condition for a cost of $15.00. Try to get one of those now for under three figures.

Next weeks column will either be written at the CPMX show in Chicago or at least from on the road. We hope to see many of you there.

Editorial

Technical problems continue to plague the Gram. Far too many Gramsters still are not receiving the Gram. If you know a Gramster who is not receiving the Gram, please forward this to her/him. It is especially likely that AOL users are not receiving the Gram. We humbly suggest that such users try an alternate address until we can figure out some other solution.

Then we goofed on sending the Fest auction link. We thought that we were sending a link, but it turn out that we were not. The correct link is found several places in this Gram.

Judy is scheduled to go back to school tomorrow. She hopes to get her GED by the end of the year. Ok, no GED, she is a school teacher. She has not been to school since December. I am probably the only one looking forward to this event: students, principal?and certainly Judy?are not!

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

The cruise rumor is true, however we are limiting ourselves to the Western Caribbean. I will certainly keep my eyes open for anything that might be of interest to my fellow gram subscribers. And, oh yes, I do plan to attend next years FEST.

Roger Urce

Dear Roger,

We still think that you have some misplaced priorities, but then your wife does have a say in this. We look forward to seeing you at Fest V. Please see more below.

Editor

Dear Gram,

I have decided that I am not up to making the trip this year to the MPC Fest due to health concerns. As you know I am battling Lymph node cancer. I should be in remission and much better by the next Fest!!!

I am ssddened to miss this years Fest. I do look forward to the reports from the Gram!

Take Care, John Cheney

Dear John,

Well you have the best excuse of anyone. We will leave you on the list and count you as an honorary Fester for Fest IV and look forward to seeing you at Fest V. Please see the calendar below. We have started taking reservations for Fest V. You and Roger are the first two?and new Festers to boot!

Rest assured that you will read plenty about the Fest in the Gram.

Editor

Dear Editor,

What is the link for the Auction Online Catalog? Only an incomplete address was given.

Ken Berger

Dear Gram,

Go where and find the fest auction catalog? There was no location listed.

Marcus Turner

Dear Ken and Marcus,

Ok, we do not know what we are doing. We received the link from cataloger Phil Goldstein. When we copied it, the address turned blue as a link. However, it appears that it lost something in transmission. Here is the real thing.

FRB specimen books

By Joe Boling

Last week I alluded to my acquisition of a quantity of Federal Reserve Bank of China specimen booklets. Most of the ones I once owned (I still have a couple or three) came to me in one group of seventeen booklets from Taiwan Rupen, in January 1984. Taiwan Rupen was an auction house operated by Ming Zing Huang for several years (approximately 1982-1986, but I'd have to go back and dig out the catalogs to make sure of the dates). He ran auctions and the occasional direct offering (I obtained my first Hankow Yokohama Specie Bank 10 yen note from him by direct purchase, the first of a hoard that I got to spend top dollar for because I was one the first collectors he approached - and I didn't even get the best condition piece in the group - I had to upgrade it later!).

Anyway, in January 1984 he ran an auction with all these FRB booklets. I submitted bids on a few of the ones I wanted most, but then I also submitted a gross bid for all of the booklets, in the event that my gross bid exceeded the sum of the individual bids he received (figuring that some of the booklets would otherwise go unsold). My overall bid won, and I bought the books for an average price of $39.30 per note (some booklets contained more than one note - I priced them out per note, not per book). This was a nice windfall, but the best was when I got the books and found all those sequence numbers that I mentioned last week - 3rd 100 yuan, 4th 100 yuan, and so forth. This gave us issue information never before recorded in English (or in any of the Japanese books I ever saw). When combined with the transmittal letters that we got later, it pretty well wrapped up the issue data that we wanted for SB (well, that I wanted - Fred was never as keen as I on this kind of detail).

You never know what's going to fall into your lap.

Editorial

Well, several AOLers who had been missing reported receiving Gram 852. In addition, Phil Goldstein reported discussing AOL email problems with an AOL technician. He reports that there have been problems, but they are being worked on. Possibly it is solved!

John Oneil reported that on MSN some copies of his Gram wound up in the bulk mail file waiting to be trashed. The migration to Chicago is underway. Leo "Paymaster" May and Larry "Ski" Smulczeski are on the road from Florida. Kroll and Marshall are known to be on the road. The air ways will probably be full of Gramsters on Thursday and Friday. I do not know for sure when I will hit the road. Too many arms pulling at me.

Dear Editor,

Please place my name on the list for MPCFEST V. And I have pledges from two new Festers that I will firm up. JH and JB

David

Editor

Frist Gram in quite a while.

scripnot

Dear Gram,

I want to place a bid on the specimen note, 00000000 SN's. Is there a place on line to see it?

Last night at the auction Herb and I split a large collection of Japanese hansatsu notes which I will begin listing on eBay today.

Mike

Dear Mike,

Wow, cool. You responded to the auction listing within only a few minutes of the Gram going out. You have a good idea. We will talk to Phil about getting a few pictures in the list.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Well, fate has intervened once again. Drama aside ... I'm not going to CPMX. Sorry I won't be able to chat with you there. Nonetheless, perhaps we can catch up at a later show. (And I've not forgotten the (approaching mythical status) questions [about MPC etc from the 2002 seminar]!)

However, a number of Krause personages are attending, including our own paper money guy, Dave Kranz.

Take care, and best of luck at the show!

Ray Sidman
Associate Editor
Numismatic News

Dear Ray,

While we look forward to seeing David, I am disappointed that you will not be there. Memphis?

More on HAWAII notes

By Peter Huntoon et al

I found this antidotal gem while researching the Hawaiian overprints for the next edition of World War II Remembered. Thought you would enjoy it. Peter Huntoon. MONEY MEANT LITTLE TO HAWAII RIGHT AFTER PEARL HARBOR ATTACK BY FREDERICK C. OTHMAN--WASHINGTON, D.C. APRIL 25, 1945

The subject today is heavy sugar, or how to light a cigarette (if one can find one) with a $1000 bill and get away with it, none the poorer.

What I've got is one of those now-it-can-be-told yarns. The Government already has announced that after Pearl Harbor, it called in all the currency in Hawaii and replaced it with special Hawaiian Island money. That was so, if the Japs did invade, the cash would be no good to 'em any place else.

Now comes Stafford Austin, manager of the Honolulu Plantation Co., to tell what a nuisance money can be when you are trying to get rid of it in large gobs. He finally used about $70,000,000 to boil down some sugar in his refinery. It may be that you used some of this sugar on your corn-flakes this morning. Austin says it tastes like any other sugar, just richer.

When the experts decided to call in the regular money in Hawaii, they issued dollars with the word ?Hawaii? printed on the backs. The regular currency piled up in small mountains in the back rooms of all the banks. "The Treasury people decided it was too costly to ship this money back to the Mainland," Austin said. "They thought they'd better burn it. They took it out to a cemetery and stoked up the crematory, but that money turned out to be almost fireproof. It came in tight packages and would only char, not flare and burn.

"The firemen nearly burned out the crematory, trying to burn their money. Then they wondered if the furnaces in our refinery might do the trick. These have strong drafts and big combustion chambers to burn Bagasse, with is the refuse of the sugar cane. I told 'em I'd be glad to let 'em try. TRUCKLOADS OF MONEY

"They came out next day with their money trucks, their military guards and their sirens howling. We fired up the furnaces and stoked 'em with millions of dollars, and sugar production never was better. One morning we burned $9,500,000. I burned $20,000 in one toss. We kept burning money for about two weeks. The Treasury never would say how much we burned, but estimating how many bills you can get on one shovel-load, we figured we must have burned about $70,000,000 worth.

"The youngsters in the Army who served as guards took this as their chance to light cigarettes with $1000 bills. They wanted to have their picture taken doing it, but the Treasury said nothing doing. Some kind of law against it.

"The refinery returned eventually to using cane again for fuel. That is until a few weeks ago," Austin said. "Then it began to look like those Japs weren't going to invade Hawaii after all. The Treasury began calling in the War Money and trading it back for regular. Now our refinery is loading up the furnaces with the Special Money. It's sweet, according to Austin, but no sweeter than the regular kind. COPIED FROM ORIGINAL NEWS CLIP DATED 4-25-45 BY DON DEBAULT: This article appeared in a Fort Wayne, Ind. newspaper two weeks after the death of President Roosevelt. It was given to me by Helen Cooper, of Lady Lakes, FL. I have a one dollar bill from this Special Money. I sent it home to my Mother in July, 1944 to keep as a souvenir. It was part of my first pay after getting out of Boot Camp. Donald O. DeBault, S/1C UTILITY

$150 for general registration; $200 after 1 May 2003. (A day fee of $50 per full day, $25 per half day will be accepted at the time of registration as space allows for walk-in registrants to join pre-reg.)

$100 for presenters, uni/college students, senior citizens, veterans of any age, overseas participants. (Registrations must be received by 1 May to qualify.)(Presenters coming for one day may attend half of that day free; if they'd like to attend the entire day they will be asked for a $25 contribution to help defray conference costs. [Basically, all presenters and panelists are being given $50 credit.])

$50 for TRACES donors/non-working TRACES board members.

$50 for Journalists may attend the exhibit opening, 1-5 Saturday afternoon at the Johnson County History Center in Iowa City/Iowa, for free; those wishing to attend the rest of the conference in order to write articles/tape reports may do so at $25 per day. The exhibit itself is free and open to the public. We are very pleased to have, per plan, some half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 855 Friday February 21, 2003

Wow

By Fred Schwan

We were all excited about the Lyn Knight sale of the Marvin Mericle MPC collection. We were not disappointed.

The night started off well—Lyn Knight provided a great buffet. By the starting time of the auction, the room was full. All of the “regular” MPC specialists were there, that is to be expected, but the room was full of many other collectors and dealers too.

The auction started with Marv’s collection and it did not take long for it to get exciting. The Series 471 $10 replacement sold for $8500 (plus buyer’s fee of 15%). Then the fireworks started.

The Series 541 $5 started at about $6000 with about every hand in the room went up. The surprising thing was that most of the hands stayed up for a long time. Several were in the air over $10,000!

Eventually it got down to Mel Steinberg on the phone versus Al Glaser: $11,000, $12,000, $13,000 all passed quickly then it ended at $14,000 and Al Glaser was the proud winner.

The MPC community mobbed Al in the hall at the end of the auction. He was beaming and we were all excited.

David Harper of Krause Publications interviewed Al for the Bank Note Reporter and we all chatted for a long time.

I came close to passing on CPMX because of the work that I still have to do for the Fest. If it had not been for Marv’s collection I would have passed. As it was I did not leave Fest HQ till 10PM on Thursday. I found that I am not nearly as able to make these late night drives as I once was, but I did make it to the show and had a great day chatting—and waiting for the auction—but I was too late for the many treasures that Ski, Harold, and others found.

As described above we were all excited about the auction. After the auction Marv and I traded chances to tell our stories of when Marv bought the 541 $5 from me. Not surprisingly our stories varied substantially!

Fred

qualify.)(Presenters coming for one day may attend half of that day free; if they'd like to attend the entire day they will be asked for a $25 contribution
to help defray conference costs. [Basically, all presenters and panelists are being given $50 credit.])

$50 for TRACES donors/non-working TRACES board
members.

$50 for Journalists may attend the exhibit
opening, 1-5 Saturday afternoon at the Johnson County History Center in Iowa City/Iowa, for free; those wishing to attend the rest of the conference in order to write articles/tape reports may do so at $25 per day. The exhibit itself is free and open to the public. We are very pleased to have, per plan, some half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference
a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend
for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

JAPANESE MILITARY PESOS AFTER THE WAR

By Jim Donwey

The principles of international law recognize the right of an occupying force to determine what medium will serve as legal tender in the area under occupation. Through the course of history, different occupying forces have chosen to deal with the issue in many different ways. Japanese Invasion Money (JIM) and Allied Military Currency are two examples of currency declared as legal tender by the occupying powers and imposed on the local population. Not all occupying forces imposed a new currency in the territory they occupied. While the Germans issued Reichskreditkassenschein marks in occupied eastern Europe while they allowed the Bank of France to continue to circulate its notes in Vichy and occupied France. More recently, Israel allowed the Jordanian dinar to circulate in the occupied West Bank until 1987. The use of occupation currency leads to the question of "What is the status of debts paid using occupation currency after the occupation ceases?" The post-war treatment of debts paid in Japanese Military Pesos is interesting and somewhat surprising.

The Japanese Military Administration in the Philippines declared the JIM Peso notes as legal tender in the Philippines by a Military Proclamation dated January 3, 1942. (I have been unable to locate a copy of the Proclamation. If anyone has access to one, please contact me at mufelika@itol.com . The information that follows regarding the Proclamation is taken from the post-war decisions of the Philippine Supreme Court that will be discussed below.) The Proclamation of January 3 imposed severe penalties for refusing to accept JIM. Although the Proclamation of January 3 did not invalidate the pre-occupation currency of the Philippine Commonwealth, this currency nonetheless disappeared from circulation.

Despite the occupation and the turmoil of the war, commercial life in the Philippines continued under Japanese rule. The occupation did not terminate the civil and contractual obligations between citizens. Rent was still paid, contracts were made, and debts were due. The disappearance of Commonwealth currency and the penalties for using Guerrilla currency compelled many Filipinos to use JIM in everyday commerce. Court records indicate the JIM peso circulated at par with the pre-occupation Commonwealth peso and at the pre-war exchange of 2 pesos to the US dollar until the middle of 1943. The JIM peso began a quick devaluation as the tide of the war turned against Japan.

After liberation of the Philippines by MacArthur's forces, a question arose as to the status of the contracts and other settlements made during the occupation. In a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury dated October 25, 1945, President Truman directed that the issue be looked into. The United States High Commissioner for the Philippines Paul V. McNutt, in consultation with the Treasury and Philippine and American business leaders, developed a plan to validate certain payments made in JIM.

The Philippine Congress rejected the proposal. Instead, in February 1946 the Philippine Congress passed an act that validated all transactions made in JIM. The Act was subsequently signed by Philippine President Sergio Osmena.

Under the Tydings-McDuffie Act of 1936 which gave the Philippines commonwealth status and the Philippine Constitution, all acts of the Philippine Congress that affected currency were subject to approval by the President of the United States. In a statement dated February 7, 1946, President Truman rejected the act of the Philippine Congress that validated payments made in JIM. (Incredibly, the Truman Statement refers to the Japanese pesos as "Mickey Mouse" money.) The issue remained unsettled when the Philippines attained independence on July 4, 1946.

In a series of cases beginning in 1946, the Philippine Supreme Court upheld the validity of the payment of debts in JIM that were incurred both before and during the occupation. The Court based its decisions on the long-recognized principle of international law that an occupying force has the authority to declare legal tender. In support of this conclusion, the Court pointed to the Combined Directives of the Combined Chiefs of Staff of the Supreme Allied Commander dated June 24, 1943, April 28, 1943 and June 27, 1947 which authorized the use of yellow seal dollars and British Military Authority notes in Sicily, AMC marks and yellow seal dollars in Germany, and AMC schillings in Austria. (If anyone has access to the Combined Directives, please contact me.) The Court also based their decisions on the fact that it was impossible to make payment in any currency other than JIM since the Commonwealth currency had disappeared from circulation. Interestingly, the Court does not mention the circulation of guerrilla currency, a fact of which they must have been aware.

In the case of Rosario v. Sandico (G.R. No. L-867) the Philippine Supreme Court made the following observations:

If the Japanese war notes became depressed and valueless, it was because the war was prolonged and lost by the Japanese contrary to their expectation of winning the war in a short time, and not because they issued purposely a depressed and valueless currency as legal tender. If their expectations had been realized no question as to the validity of the Japanese military notes as legal tender would have come up.

Besides, the Court of Appeals could not have rendered a judgment sentencing the plaintiffs to pay this obligation or to pay money or the sum of P3,944.20 to Sandico in a currency other than the Japanese war notes; because such judgment would have been contrary to the Proclamation of January 3, 1942 and notification of February 23, 1942 issued by the Japanese Military Administration . . .

And because, although the circulation of the Commonwealth currency was not then prohibited legally because of the Proclamation of January 10, 1942, they had already disappeared from circulation at that time, as above stated; and for the Court of Appeals to have ordered in the judgment that the sum of P3,944.20 shall be paid . . . in Commonwealth legal currency, would have been tantamount to order the execution of a thing which was impossible to do and which might be possible to perform in the future, inasmuch as there was no assurance that the Commonwealth of the Philippines shall be restored, and such kind of currency recognized as legal tender by the government then established by the Japanese or to be established in the future.

Editorial

=====

Saturday was another busy day at CPMX. Treasures were still to be found, but the order of the day was club meetings. The SPMC and IBNS meetings in the morning centered on grading notes.

The afternoon featured the meeting of M2C2 was moderated by the man of the hour? Marvin Mercile.

Larry Smulczenski described his work on the POW money catalog. He also showed the group some of his finds at the show. I would elaborate on those, but I think that he might to that himself for the missing Thurski column.

As for myself I found a number of interesting things today. Most were low priced, but interesting.

Doug Bell recruited a new Fester yesterday. That is always good news. Welcome Steve Swoish. Doug also dropped a little bombshell on me that he needs to have the home towns of the new Festers. Please send that information to him at doug@papermoneyworld.net.

Marcus is working on his column for today as I write this. We will run it Monday instead of Sunday.

Hi Gramsters! AND "AL!" Just watch out buddy!, next time wont be so easy!

I was just a little short $$!!.... Next time!!!.....

P.S. Congratulations on a Great buy!

Guy!

Hi Fred,

I am back from Japan, a little jet-lagged out but here. Today I attended the first day of the Collectorama Show in Lakeland.

Interestingly I passed through Chicago on my flight home from Tokyo. In fact I was at O'Hare at about 1600 hours (4PM) Thursday. It occurred to me (too late) that I should have not checked my bag thru to Tampa, but rather spent the night at Ohare and went to the CPMX Friday morning!!!! Too late!

Would have loved to been there and see everyone as well as see the Miracle Miricle collection make history.

Best regards,

Mike

Dear Mike,

Welcome home. Too bad about Chicago, but this means that you are home in time to come to the Fest, the bar maid at Nates says you should come!

Editor

Dear Editor,

It was a pleasure meeting you. It was nice to put a face to the other end of the computer. I want to say a few words about my interests as I may have left some of you with the impression that my interests are narrow. I am a history and fact junkie. As part of my appreciation of history, I collect financial documents (currency, checks, stocks, etc.) as tangible pieces of history. Military numismatics is just one aspect of this interest in history. My research projects are focused on using original primary sources to explain the who, what, where, when, why and how of the puzzles of historical numismatics, and to bring those primary sources to the attention of others with similar interests. The Gram is a great outlet for this.

Jim Downey

CMPX Show Report

By Marcus Turner

This year, as last year, I was only able to attend the show on Saturday. That was a real bummer this year since I missed out on the sale of the Marvin Mericle MPC Collection. We all got an earful in the last gram on that sale. Unfortunately none of my bids were successful.

I took my daughter with me to the show this year. We arrived right as the show was opening and first ran into Nancy Wilson at the registration desk. After entering I immediately found Dave Seelye's table. He was kind enough to share with me some the results of the auction. I was also taken back by the cases on this table that had his many 541 and 471 $5 notes spread out across the interior of the case. It was stunning to see so many of these notes in one place at one time.

I then found Leo May's table which at this also appeared to the home of Larry Ski and Brian Geisie. Brian's hand was a little mangled due to a recent elevator accident, but all else was well. I was very pleased to see John Pettit of Sydney Australia at the show. He indicated that he would not be in Memphis this year so I hope everyone got what they wanted out of his inventory. He also gave a positive update on Tony James condition. Tony recently had open-heart surgery and has experienced some complications since. John indicated that Tony has started back to work half days now and is doing much better. We wish Tony all the best in his recovery and look forward to seeing him again soon. Eventually I ran into the man of the day in the hallway. Marv and his wife were extremely busy discussing the auction with everyone. As usual there was a great contingency of folks for Fort Wayne ,IN including George Fitzgerald and Bill Haines . We were sitting in the eating lunch with George when Fred walked by. He sat down for a while and chatted. I only think I saw him briefly two or three more times for the rest of the day. Also in attendance were John Wilson, Tony Piscotta, Joel Shaffer, Neil Shaffer, Bob Brooks, Bruce Smart and Mark Hartford . It was a very well attended show although the number of dealer tables appeared to be somewhat less than what I recall in the past.

During the afternoon there was an M2C2 meeting in one of the downstairs conference rooms. Marvin started the presentation by talking about his collection and the sale. Larry Smulczenski gave a wonderful presentation on his on-going work on the POW chit book. I am hoping that Larry will make the same presentation at the Fest. Attendance at the meeting was absolutely incredible. I saw a lot of new faced in the room that I did not recognize. Our group is definitely growing. It was one of the best educational sessions that I have been to in a long time.

For a while it was looking like I was going to escape the show without spending a lot of money. I had purchased several notes from Peter Wilhem for my daughter but had not found much else on the floor. Eventually my luck would change. Isreal Falkov found me on the floor and relieved me of most of my money. I wound of three previously unknown winterhelp pieces. I don't want to elaborate too much yet since I am still trying to find out exactly what they are, but as Fred pointed out one appears to have an Austrian overprint.

All in all it was again a great show. While I was going Indianapolis was snowbound so we ended up bedding down at a hotel in northern Indiana and did not return home until Sunday afternoon. As usual it was a very enjoyable event.

Editorial

Have all of the Fests been this much work? I know that I am ahead in many ways, but I still feel that I am impossibly behind. On the other hand, the excitement is building!

The ultimate compliment to a numismatic ?show? is a preshow. The prefest starts tomorrow. Kroll, Smulczenski, and May arrive on Tuesday and it builds from there. Of course these very early arrivals get put to work! Among other things, we will try to get Gram reports from them!

Fred

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

After sending you the email about my recently acquired 5 cent notes from series 521, I was looking for more information on multi printings on papermoneyworld.net and discovered it does not show the gap between the 2nd and 3rd printings. Obviously this has been corrected. Perhaps Doug discovered this with his collecting of all position numbers.

As the late Gilda R. on the old 'Saturday Night Live' show would say 'Never Mind.' Somewhere I have a copy of the known errors in the catalog that ran for months in the Gram but was removed to conserve space as it had not changed for months. This is most likely listed amongst those items. It was still fun checking out the Serial Numbers against the Position numbers. And 'Fun' is what it's all about. See you later this week, challenge coin in hand.

Dick

Dear Editor,

Re: MPC collection! I AM SO SICK!!!!!! I FEEL LIKE ..."@%$(*&" ...HAD MY CHANCE! JUST A COUPLE "K" SHORT OF BUMPING IT A COUPLE MORE TIMES!! "The horror!!!"
Now I regret not bidding

Dear Guy,

There is little shame in being the underbidder on a world record auction price. I know one wife who thinks that it is far better to be the udnerbider in such a situation that the winner!

citizens, veterans of any age, overseas participants.
(Registrations must be received by 1 May to qualify.)(Presenters coming for one day may attend

half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference
a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend
for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

Series 004 - Number 858 Tuesday February 25, 2003

Inverts

By Joe Boling

I can't believe I'm departing here in 48 hours for Arctic America.

This is going to be another short column. It's 0715 here and I haven't been to bed yet. Wednesday night is going to be an all-nighter leading into my flight to Cleveland, so I need to get some sleep today.

There have been articles in the gram about SWIMS notes--those with serial numbers that read the same upside down. Distant cousins of these are notes with inverted block letters. Look again at SWIMS. The W and M are not exactly mirror images in most fonts. Similarly, the letters S and X are not exactly the same when inverted--the bottoms of the letters, in most fonts, are a little fatter or fuller than the tops. When an S is inverted, it looks peculiar. Well, that peculiarity is enough to be noticeable on NEI JIM notes, which have blocks starting with S. Look at SB2194b2 (page 616). There is no illustration, because I don't have one of those error blocks (most SI notes do NOT show the defect). I don't remember who reported this to us, but I'd expect Mike Payton to have one.

Another example of inversion is the X designating replacements on Forbes-printed French AMC notes. Apparently someone at Forbes decided that an upside down X was hot stuff (I find it hard to believe that a printer would do this accidentally). Look at the illustrations of SB146r and 147r on page 280. On both pieces, the Xs are upside down; the arms at the bottom are ever-so-much closer than the arms at the top (it's easier to see in full-size pieces). As far as I know, all Forbes French replacements use this aberrant orientation. Therefore, if you see a replacement on which the Xs are NOT inverted, treat it with extreme skepticism. (and remember that the BEP replacements use small Xs, and are not subject to the observations cited here).

Pre ForeFest has started. Kroll, Smulczenski, and May are at Fest headquarters. Judy has been issuing orders (for those of you who have been asking about her health, that should tell you that she is back to ?normal.?

All three of the preFesters spent some time with Neil Shafer enroute to Fest central. They had a great time and a mini Fest of sorts in Milwaukee. Possibly the most interesting part was that Neil stated that if that visit was anything like the Fest, that he would attend the Fest in 04. Yes, Neil, the Fest is a note orgy.

I am sorry to be harping on the Fest so much, but since that is what I am doing all day, the words just spil out when I get in front of the computer.

Dear Editor,

Howard Daniel

Dear Editor,

During the holidays, I was able to browse thru some Philippine Guerilla/Emerg. notes. Very curious about the different issues. I thought these notes were only used during the time period that the Japanese troops occupied the Philippines. I thought that once the various area/islands were liberated and occupied by allied troops, the guerilla money was discontinued. I have a couple of questions. Were there certain regions that continued printing and issuing guerilla notes in 1945? A lot of the notes I browsed thru were in mint or near mint condition. Could some party still be printing guerilla notes today via the original plates or newly fabricated plates?

Mining an old auction catalog

By Charlton Meyer

I hope your bride is well now. I have been keeping up with her thru the MPC daily reports. I may not collect the items that have the attention of the informal membership, but I still enjoy reading about what other people collect. I know that you are awaiting results from the Knight sale (me too), so this is a good time to email you.

The other day I was doing my once a decade clean-up of various things that should have been thrown away years ago and I came across this auction catalog. Lot 1001 may have some interest to the avid collectors (maybe not). The description read: 1943-1944 complete set of 5 specimen booklets of Forbes Lithograph Corp. Specimen Booklets of Allied Military Currency as follows: 1) Austria Schilling Currency Series 1944, no serial numbers, 50 Groshen, 1 Schilling and 2 Schilling, all measures 4 1/2" by 2-5/16", in brown cardboard covers printed SPECIMENS/OF/ ALLIED MILITARY/ SCHILLING CURRENCY. etc with descriptions 2) Supplemental French Franc Currency, Series 1944, all serial numbered 00000000, in denominations of 2, 5, 10, 50, 100, 500, 1000, and 5000 Francs. Following are sizes of the notes with the notation that the 5000 Franc note was never issued and exists only in specimen form. 3) Committee French Franc Currency, Series 1944, all X prefix serial numbers in denominations of 50,100, 500, 1000, and 5000 francs. Descriptions follow with a notation that the 500 and 5000 franc denominations were not issued and are found only in specimen form. 4) Italy Lira Currency, series 1943 and 1943-A, *(star) prefix serial numbers all ending in A, in denominations of 1,2,5,10,50,100,500, and 1000 Lire, all perforated SPECIMEN. Descriptions follow. 5) Germany Mark Currency, Series 1944, - (hyphen)prefix serial numbers in denominations of 1/2, 1,5,10,20, 50, 100, and 1000 mark. Descriptions follow.

The 5 categories are in 5 specimen booklets and were formally from the family of William Dawe, who supervised their printing and assembly in 1943.

The lot sold for $13,860.

I don't know if this info is of any interest, but if so, I will bring the catalog with me to Memphis later. Please acknowledge receipt of this email.

Editorial

Robert Dawe is the son of William Dawe discussed above who was a foreman at the Forbes plant during World War II. He was largely responsible for the manufacture of a large part of the Allied military currency issued by the Allies during and after the war. Robert wrote several articles about the work of his father. These articles appeared in several places then were the basis of much of the information in WWII Remembered.

I corresponded with Robert during the late 1970s, but have not heard from him recently. I believe that the specimen books went unsold in the auction, but afterwards were sold by the auctioneer privately to a dealer. I believe that it was Mel Steinberg. [Mel, do I have it right?]

Initially Robert insisted that the mark booklet included a 10,000 mark note. When I challenged him on that, he did not provide any proof. Even though I was certain that he was wrong, he was adamant and because of the special nature of the situation, I thought that it was possible. Even after I checked with the BEP, I still had a small amount of hope that he might be correct . Of course when the booklets were sold, the doubt was taken away.

If you are a Fester heading for Port Clinton, please be sure to carry the hotel phone number with you [(419) 732-7322 and my cell phone number (419) 349-1872 in case of transportation or other emergency. Rest assured, if you call the hotel, you can ask for me or any Fester that they know who we are]

I am afraid that Lake Erie is frozen so physical training cannot include open water swimming. In light of that, we are forced to cancel physical training for Fest 4. Hopefully, we will have better luck next year.

I am also pleased to announce that the souvenir set number two of the Fest money issued for the opening of the ANA Museum WWII exhibition has been located. This set was donated by Gail Baker to the scholarship fund. It is being added to the Fest auction. If you are interested, you may bid even if you do not find it listed on the auction listing. Simply make it clear that you are bidding on this set.

Howard Daniel

Dear Editor,

During the holidays, I was able to browse thru some Philippine Guerilla/Emerg. notes. Very curious about the different issues. I thought these notes were only used during the time period that the Japanese troops occupied the Philippines. I thought that once the various area/islands were liberated and occupied by allied troops, the guerilla money was discontinued. I have a couple of questions. Were there certain regions that continued printing and issuing guerilla notes in 1945? A lot of the notes I browsed thru were in mint or near mint condition. Could some party still be printing guerilla notes today via the original plates or newly fabricated plates?

Dear Editor,

I refer to Marcus report re Chicago, and feel that I must correct one point re the state of my health. I did not have open heart surgery.

I had my thiroid removed and also had a pacemaker inserted. Still, I have spent 4 weeks in hospital over the last two and a half months which is not recommended for one's sanity!!

Unfortunately due to this situation, I shall not be attending the Singapore Show in March nor will I be at Maastricht in April The flights are just too long.

Finally I must confess my jealousy at not being able to attend the gathering this weekend at MPCFest Do have a geat time everyone and I shall try to get to one in the future best regards
Tony James

think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

On the Road Again

By Larry ?Ski? Smulczenski

Leo May arrived at my house on the evening of Sunday, February 16th to start our prolonged trip to Fore Fest. Some of you don't know that Leo had an operation four weeks ago that put a band around his stomach reducing the quantity of his intake. It also has severely limited the type of food that he can eat to a soft almost liquid diet. A good example is that he has his eggs scrambled rare. That is akin to the Texan who eats his steak rare, throw it on the grill, turn it over and if it quits moo-ing, start eating. In Leo's case, it's throw a couple of eggs in a skillet, flip them over and if they quit cluck-ing, put them on his plate. That's the way he eats his breakfast these days, but to his credit he has lost over 40 pounds and gets around a lot better. The first time I saw Leo with his shirt off, I did however think that the Miami Soprano Mafia had gotten him in a crossfire as it looked like five slugs from an Uzi had hit him. It is amazing how a major operation like this can be done through five holes, each the size of a quarter.

We got on the road for Chicago and CPMX bright and early by Leo's standards (about 10AM) Monday morning. There was a little concern about running into some sleet and snow but it never materialized. Three days and about seven antique stores, flea markets and militaria shops later we pulled into the Holiday Inn O'Hare where the CPMX show was held. After getting everything unpacked and saying hello to old friends, the first major order of business was to look at the auction lots in Lyn Knights sale. As Fred said in one of the Grams I read before we left home, it was a fantastic wish list. There isn't a collector around that couldn't find something in that selection of notes that he wanted to add to his collection. I was no exception. There were dozens of lots that I would have liked to have but I prioritized it down to about ten with hopes that I might at least win one or two. It was a thrill to again see up close and touch the notes from the Marv Mericle collection. I had seen them numerous times, but knowing this was the last time that they would be together as a group was a little sad. On the other hand, knowing that many of them would go to a new owner that would in most cases cherish them as much as Marvin had was a great feeling.

Dealer setup at CPMX started at 10AM Thursday morning. Almost immediately, thrilling finds were being hailed on the floor. I was lucky enough to come up with my share of goodies to "Make my day" as Clint Eastwood would have said. I'm going to leave those for a future Thursdi as I can write for sometime about those. Thursday passed very quickly and before you knew it, it was time to head for the Lyn Knight Auction of foreign paper money. As usual, Lyn provided a super buffet of edibles prior to the start of the bidding for all participants. The bidding was delayed for one hour until seven o'clock because of a glitch in the catalog where on one page the start was listed as six o'clock and on the very next page, seven o'clock was published. To make sure that everyone that wanted to be there for the start had that chance, Lyn started the actual call of auction lots at seven PM. As is customary in all Knight Auctions, the pace of the call was fast and furious. You couldn't doze or have your attention diverted from the sequence of lots or you would miss the opportunity to get a lot you were interested in. I thought bidding was strong for the notes of some countries but lax for others. It appeared that Korea was very strong, especially between two bidders on the floor as were the large group of notes from the Philippines. To contrast that, to me it appeared that most South American material was weak. In general, however the auction appeared to do well. I considered myself very fortunate to add three of the lots that I had my eye on to my collection. I could have had a few more except for a certain fellow from upstate New York who I couldn't compete with. I got a lovely 100 rupee, Government of Ceylon note, S/B 1226, in uncirculated condition except for a couple of pinholes. It has a 24 June 1945 date on it. I also won a nice uncirculated specimen of the 25 Gulden Netherlands East Indies Liberation issue. This is a variety of the one World War II Remembered lists as 5106s since the word SPECIMEN on the face is in blue while on the back it is in red. My final prize was lot 1150, the 5 livres from Syria and Lebanon (Levant States) with the location Damascus printed on the note. This note is illustrated as number 1974 on page 158 on WWII Remembered. The note, however, is listed as being dark brown in color when it actually has a green face and a blue, almost purple back. I was not to add to my POW chit collection because the &#x2191; guy from New York who wanted them more than I could afford.

The Marv Mericle sale on the second night was a barn burner. The auction hall was almost filled to capacity. My guess was that there was 4 to 5 times as many people there as the first night. There were folks there whom we never knew had an interest in MPC. The bids started high and continued to be raised. To me, the amazing part was that the winning bidders number announced continually changed. What I'm trying to say is that it definitely wasn't the same person winning all the lots. Everyone wanted to have a selection from the Mericle collection. Fred has already expounded on the record price garnered by the Series 541/$5, so I won't go there, but when it was all over we all marveled at the strong showing MPC made in this auction.

Last year I told you about the guy that crashed through the fourth(?) floor window of the Holiday Inn at CPMX and landed in the hospital. Well, this year one of our own Gramsters was unfortunate enough to end up in the hospital for a couple of hours because he tried to be a good Samaritan. Brian Giese tried to keep the elevator door at the Holiday Inn open for a person that was late getting on. The door, however, wouldn't stop and poor Brian ended up with the middle finger of his right hand broken in three places. It is difficult for a right handed person to use only his left hand, especially when that right hand is throbbing. The amazing part is that he got little sympathy from hotel staff or management.

There will be more from Fest and Chicago in the Thurski's to come.

If the Fest had ended today, I would be thrilled about how much fun it was. About 15 Festers were here today. I have not seen any notes change hands, but I have seen and heard lots of wild things. Of course there were a few travel glitches, but most were met with cheerfulness and defeated soundly. I hope that tomorrow goes as well from this perspective.

I have to tell you one little follow up on Ski's travel gram. The 5 livres from Syria and Lebanon (Levant States) that he is so happy to have purchased was intended for me. By that I mean, I intended to purchase it. The fact is that I simply forgot that it was in the Thursday section of the auction. Now I am trying to get it from Larry. If he has not told you the story of how he passed on a great WWII French colonial collection, he should. It is based on that pass that I am trying to convince him that he does not collect such things and that I should be allowed to help him!

Dear Mr. Schrier,

As you can imagine, I am very familiar with the sorry about the poor treatment, but we are skeptical about the challenge coin. Sounds like you forgot it.

You might have tried ?the dog ate it.?

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 863 Tuesday March 4, 2003

Boling Honored

The third lifetime achievement award to the military money hobby was awarded to Joseph E. Boling at MPC Fest IV. Boling's many contributions to the hobby were cited in the award ceremony. Boling is coauthor of World War II Remembered, the standard reference of the hobby. He has exhibited on this subject many times at local, regional, and national conventions. As most of you know, he writes a weekly column for the MPCGram.

He has taught two ANA summer seminars in this area with the third coming up in a few months. He has served the larger hobby in many additional ways. He served as president of the International Bank Note Society and continues to serve as its treasurer, and advertising manager.

Boling was awarded a unique silver medal that was made from the convention medal. Previous lifetime service awards were made to Elmer Smith (2001) and Larry ?Ski? Smulczenski.

The Boss Honored

At MPCFest IV American Numismatic Association President John Wilson recognized the efforts and services of Judy Schwan to numismatics in general and military money in particular. She was cited for tolerating the eccentric behavior of Fred Schwan. Judy is a 25 year member of the association.

Jackson Barracks Military Museum
by Howard A. Daniel III

My Fall 2002 issue of "On Point" magazine published by The Army Historical Foundation has an article; "Jackson Barracks Military Museum" by Elizabeth Oliver (Director, Jackson Barracks Military Museum). It is a very likely source of information for my research projects of Gramsters!

Jackson Barracks was created in 1832 and named after Andrew Jackson. The museum was established in 1974 by the Louisiana State Legislature and opened in 1977. Its collections include uniforms, insignia, equipment, flags, banners and historical documentation, plus many other items. It is located between St. Claude and North Claiborne Avenues in New Orleans. Which was also the location of a holding facility for WWII German POWs captured in North Africa.

Located in Jackson Barracks' Area A is Building 53, which is the military history library, which includes reference and microfilm. I am sure there are many items in this library of interest to Gramsters! It is open Monday through Friday from 0800 to 1600 hours, but closed on federal and state holidays. Admission and parking are free.

You can contact the museum at 504-278-8242 or email to jbmuseum@laarng.ngb.army.mil , or visit the museum's website at <http://www.la.ngb.army.mil/dmh/jbmm.htm> . The author of the "On Point" article about this museum and library is also the Director. I would highly recommend that you address all emails to her. Good luck and good hunting to you Gramsters living close enough to New Orleans to do some research there. I want to see several articles by you in upcoming MPC Grams about your visits and discoveries there.

It has been another busy day in the Fest aftermath. On Sunday evening Tom Warburton described to me and a few other left overs some wisdom from years of experience. He described how it is much better to get to the airport early and lounge there instead of reading the paper at home then rushing to the airport. The wisdom of this is quite obvious.

However, the wise one should know when the airplane is scheduled. This morning a few hours before I was to pick him up, I got a frantic call waking me exclaiming that the plane was two hours earlier than he had thought. Could we make it?

In a frantic rush we did. Along the way at a toll both when I had trouble finding the required ticket (I offered the toll taker three different Pennsylvania Turnpike RECEIPTS). Tom opined that my car was a black hole too. At that point I stated that I thought that we should stop for a top flight breakfast. Tom immediately amended his comments to say that it was a very nice black hole!

We made his flight time.

Dear Editor,

EVERYONE, PLEASE SEND ALL PICTURES TO ME FOR POSTING ON THE WEB SITE!!!

DOUG

doug@papermoneyworld.net

Dear Editor,

I just would like to commend you and the rest of the staff for the BEST DAMND! Numismatic event that I have ever attended!!!

For those that haven't attended one yet for what ever the reason? Please do yourself a favor and take the time off as soon as you know the date. I will pay your fest fees 100% if you do not agree with me that it is the best numismatic event you ever have been to! AND I MEAN IT!!

It was my first fest and one that I almost didn't attend because I did not know anyone, and was apprehensive but the minute I stepped in the building I was welcomed like family and had the time of my life!

I know that us MPC guys were a special breed but this puts that term in the history books as the best damned guys on the planet, when it comes to camaraderie and every fester taking a personal interest in each other isn't that what mankind is all about! I was so impressed that I will take on any assigned duty that is put on me for the next years fest (to put my share in) that is how much I believe in this event.

Fred and all of the people that were in charge of this years event my hat is off to you I have put on many large conventions some with budgets of over $50 thousand dollars and over 5,000 people but they have nothing on this educational and fun event! From the moment you arrive there is this lightning bolt of excitement building and then the fun begins, even the educational presentations were fun to watch! Even though its not about individuals the fest is tops individually its the guys telling their stories of a lifetime all in one room that make you want more! And all the different characters that the fest offers! its the " Leos" the " Skis" the " Carlson's " the " Harold's" the " Al's " the "Marcus's" the " Russ's" the "Bob's " the " Joe's" the "Marv's " the " George's " the " Jack's" the "Doug's " the " Phil's" the "John's " the "Freyser's " the "Tom's " the " Bill's " the "Gary's " the "Cameron's " the " Sam's " the " Ron's" the " Wes's" the " Wilson's" the "Ed's" the "Warner's" the "Tiffany's" the " Wendell's" the " Sparkey's " the "Bill's" the " Cuneyed's " the "Steve's " the "Ian's " the " Nick's" the " Jane's" the " Louise's" the "Judy's" the "Robert's" I hope I've gotten all of you? And how can I ever forget these two Leading men for making it a fun fest " David Seelye" for his great donations making it exciting and interesting and the Commander himself thanks " Fred" and all of you for the greatest time I have ever seen in a numismatic event ever!~!~! if not for all of you! It would have been just another numismatic event!

Thank you to all of you for the great time and the hospitality that you have showed me! I am a lifer now! see you all at the next fest!

Kevin Neidy

Dear Kevin,

I assume that I can put your down for next year? [I have done that]. Let's get one thing straight, I am the battalion clerk.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Boy! I bet that was a hell of a ruckous with all of ya'll in a contest! Tell Kroll to practice up before he enters a contest!

AMANDA SHEHEEN

Dear Editor,

With arrivals spread out over 10 hours on Friday, the afternoon events were haphazard at best. The bourse was a problem with 40 people in the room.

Consider these suggestions;

Arrival suggested on Thursday with events starting 10AM Friday with a 2 hour bourse. This allows time for "local drive in's to arrive. With most everyone there on Friday, the shuttle drivers would not miss out on anything.

The bourse to be held in a guest room. (The one closest to the atrium would be ideal). If there are fewer than 30 expected, just cancel the room and "we" can "set up" in the room at different tables, as 2001-2.

The bourse first would allow the collectors to see the for sale items, and we could lock the "security" room and not worry about watching our stock.

The early bourse time would let the dealers look at the collectors dupes during the remaining time. The collectors swap, buy/sell during the whole event anyway. It would allow the collectors to see what's for sale at what price. If they don't buy from dealers or trade/buy from the other collectors at the FEST, it's easy to contact the dealers after the event.

Any time any place for FEST V. Just let me know, where, and I'll be there.

David

Dear David,

There were no scheduled events for Friday afternoon! However, you have a very good idea there. Next year we will have a bourse on Friday from noon through 7pm or so. This bourse will of course be open to Festers, but it can also be open to others who might want to come to the bourse, but might not want to stay for the Fest (although we will take registrations on the spot). This is one of the best suggestions that we have received.

Mr 691 Strikes Again

All participants at MPCFest IV received souvenirs from that mysterious figure known as Mr. 691. The souvenirs are pieces of Series 691 MPC mounted on a piece of an actual crate used to ship Series 691. The unique items were gifts from Mr. 691 and greatly appreciated by all.

If that was not enough, Mr 691 kept with the theme and provided a bigger version of the same item for the auction with the proceeds going to the summer seminar scholarship fund. This was a full series of 691 mounted on a board. Adding interest to the sale is the fact that it sold to Tom Kotch who was not in attendance and bid blindly because no description was available before the actual auction..

Fest Report

By Joe Boling

I arrived at the United counter in Cleveland Sunday afternoon ninety minutes before flight time, and was told that my flight was "tardy." But, there would still be time to make the change in Chicago to a Seattle -bound flight (the other option was to rebook right then through Denver, two hours later than the Chicago flight).

The posted twenty minute delay became a forty minute delay; then we sat on the taxiway for twenty minutes being de-iced. Final departure time was 70 minutes late. I landed in Chicago at the same time my next flight was supposed to be leaving. Hoping that it was also a bit delayed (flights get late as the day wears on), I ran the half-mile between one end of concourse C and the same end of concourse B (running down escalators, up stairs, around the moving walkways that are too narrow to pass on), arriving at my outbound gate while the aircraft was still sitting there, but with the jetway retracted--FLIGHT CLOSED. Grump. Next flight 155 minutes later, but standby only; next confirmed flight (on which I had already been rebooked--the United folks ARE efficient about taking care of the victims of their delays) another two hours after that. Nothing to do but wait.

The flight I was on standby for was asking for voluntary bumpees--not very encouraging about getting on. But (and even though they did use some of those bumpees), there was apparently a first class passenger who was a no show, and at the last possible minute they put me in that seat (having sent all the other standby passengers away to wait for the late flight). So, I had a pleasant trip back and got a lot of reading done, but would still have rather arrived in Seattle before 2300. The really weird circumstance was that my baggage was already here when I went to the carousel, locked to a cable on the floor in the baggage claim room. How could the bag have made the connection in Chicago when I was unable to, even by running the entire distance between gates? Beats me. I'll have to check myself through as a bag next time (but that super bug zapper they put all the bags through now might not be too pleasant).

And the fest? You want to hear about that? No, I didn't think so.

Well, all right, just for a minute. The auction generated a bit over $5000 for the scholarship fund; get those applications in NOW; the deadline is very near. If you don't have the format, see the papermoneyworld.net website. The total auction proceeds were over $9000 (the difference being the spread between donated lots and non-donated lots). Some interesting prices realized are (buyer's fee of 10% included): lot 22, France 1000 franc war bond SB771, $33 (cheap); lot 27, Burma 100 kyats Ba Maw (P21a), $110 (a bit low for wholesale); lot 29, Norway 2 kroner government in exile (P18a), $170 (the grade is not shown in the catalog, and I did not inspect this piece; based on the stated catalog value, I assume it was unc); lot 31, LOGEX series 560, $16 (now I know how much to ask from David Seelye for my LOGEX collection - hee, hee, hee); postcards picturing Roosevelt dam (there were several of these; after the first one went for $85.25, apparently driven by scholarship fever, they settled out around $25); lot 39, series 691 $20 female vignette, trimmed to oval shape, $77; lot 46, 50-sen ro note, unc, $110 (about right, as there is a hoard of indeterminate size someplace in China); lot 54, series 510 50c, position 39, $42.90 (that's $39 plus juice; if you don't know who collects 39s, inquire); lot 63A (set of three specimen fest bonds, denominations $40, $400, and $4000), $717.90 (many bidders chasing that lot); series 681 fractionals signed by Girard T Law, the seaman standing next to the flag on the submarine's sail, $68.20, $74.80, $110. and $110; lot 97, Ministerie van Oorlog ceramic 10c token, unsold on a minimum bid of $55 (incl fee); lot 105, three- piece set of MFC euros, all serial #1 replacements, $115.50; lot 106, BEP printing of AMC yen one- yen note, C-C block, unc, $33; lot 129, series 521 $1 with autograph of Jayne Mansfield, $154; lot 131, two Chief Ouray checks, $198 (surprised me); lot 140, series 661 10c specimen, opened at $2000 and closed at $2500 (to a mail bidder); lot 142, "Rendezvous with Destiny" MFC series 002 notes, serial #2 set (donated by Gail Baker), $1400 (the prominent collector of #2 notes let the prominent collector of #1 notes win them). The auction ran about two hours.

Wow, it looks like AOL members might now be receiving the Gram after weeks of interrupted service at best. If you are an AOL user and are receiving this Gram after such interrupted service, we would like to hear about it. We also hope that you can find a way to complain to AOL.

I expect that the problem has been solved because Doug Bell just went to the trouble of isolating the AOL addresses (101 of them) so that we could try to work this out another way. As soon as he did this, the indications changed. I think AOL heard that we had a workaround and wanted to punish the initiative. (No favor goes unpunished).

If you are an AOL user, you might want to consider the following to guarantee uninterrupted service: 1) the MPCgram is posted at papermonwyworld.net after a few days, 2) we highly recommend that you create a supplemental address at Yahoo, Hotmail or some other free email provider and then register that name with the Gram. As a special service to AOL victims, er users, we will send additional copies of the Gram to the supplemental addrss at no charge. If you miss the Gram for a few days at your AOL address, you can check the alternate address.

Thank you for everything, and welcome back!
Fred

Dear Sparky,

I just cannot put anything over on you guys! There was no 862. It was just another blatant attempt here at HQ to try to make money, but you guys always catch me. Since we have been busted, all subscriptions will be extended by not one, but two issues.

Dear Editor,

What happened to the Gram? This is the first I've seen in weeks.

Fest Travels

By Larry ?Ski? Smulczenski

Well, I finally got home yesterday (Wednesday) after 17 days on the road. I was rapidly running out of clean clothes so it was time to get home. We all had a fantastic time on our trip up north and saw many, many great notes. It was however, good to be in 70 degree temperatures instead of the zero degree temperatures that we left on Monday. But I'm not going to dwell on the weather for this Gram. I am going to retell a little tale that Harold and I related to the group at Fest since there are many of you out there that weren't fortunate enough to be present at this event. So let this be known as the tale of the box.

The last time Howard Daniel was in Viet Nam, he commissioned a native painter to produce paintings of the various notes of MPC Series 692. His plan was to get these paintings to the Fest so they could be auctioned off. He had them boxed up in a package that was about four foot high, by three foot wide, by two feet thick. Howard felt he was going to take this box on the airplane as carry-on baggage. Of course he was terribly wrong as the cute little ticket agent told him that it had to be checked and that would cost him an additional $109. Try as he might, Howard wasn't able to get her to change her mind. So he paid the charges and Howard and the box were on their way to Virginia. Howard then planned to take the box to FUN and let Fred take it back to Port Clinton and hold them there until Fest. What is the line about "the best made plans of mice and men?" Yep, Judy got sick and Fred didn't make it to FUN. So the box ended up in our room (Harold's and mine) and the next thing we knew, we were loading it on Harold's truck for the trip to LA. That's Lower Alabama, for all of you who are unfamiliar with this part of the world. We experienced a little rain coming through the panhandle of Florida, but the box arrived undamaged in Mobile, Alabama. There it sat for six weeks until Harold started his trip up north to CPMX.

Since I was traveling with Leo, Harold wrapped the box in some plastic to protect it from potential rain, sleet and snow and took off for Chicago. So again the box ended up sharing our room. On Friday night, Harold decided that he was going to drive over to Minnesota to visit his Dad, since he was relatively closer than he is in Alabama. That left me with the box. There was no way that I was going to get that box into Leo's vehicle as Leo travels with a lot of stuff. Fred said that his car was also loaded as he had recently bought a new printer and that box was still in the back seat. That left it up to us to somehow make room for our box. Running the passengers seat in the Buick full forward and consolidating a couple of the piles in the back seat we were able to squeeze it in there. The box was finally on its way to Port Clinton.

When I checked into my room at the Holiday Inn Express in Port Clinton, I found that the box had beat me there and was taking a nap under the covers of one of the beds. Since I had arrived before Harold, I took the other bed and let him have the bed that the box was occupying. The box again shared our room until Friday afternoon, when all the Festers had arrived before we opened it. Everyone got to see the 692 paintings. They were quite good and all were sold in the auction to the same bidder. The box was saved and returned to LA stuffed with bags and baggage, a little worse for wear but still in one piece. I think Harold is going to keep it as a piece of Fest memorabilia.

There have been a lot of Fest stories that have already been written in the Gram, and I'm sure there will be a number more written in the weeks to come. But did you know that one of the Festers ended up in Clinton, Ohio instead of in Port Clinton, Ohio? Seems he didn't have his navigator with him.

Finally, one of the Festers left Port Clinton to visit friends in Bowling Green, Ohio. He and his wife checked into a motel and the Fester carried his luggage into the motel. Then panic! His large leather briefcase was missing. A quick call back to the Holiday Inn Express in Port Clinton, found about eight of us still there, still talking about notes along with his briefcase. Then his wife realized that she had left her jewelry locked up in the small safe provided in each room. The safe had been cleared but the jewelry was locked up in the managers safe. So the Fester had to drive the 70 miles back to Port Clinton and make a red-faced appearance at the Post-Fest prior to visiting with his friends.

So that's a few more tales from the Fest.

While we are fighting AOL, we must also fight pilot error. I seem to have sent 865 to never never land. Did anyone receive 865? Then I made things worse today by unintentionally killing the backup. Not good. I can recreate most of it with some help from the authors. Al Glaser, please send me your Fest comments again. Dick Freyser, if you can resend or recreate your two short letters, that will be great. Cameron, can you send your letter again? Thanks.

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

I finally made the phone call to AOL. I was told that the email system was having a series of problems and would be fixed by Friday (March 7). I was told in no uncertain terms that it was not a Spam problem.

You know how those conversations go - the immediate assumption is that they are the expert and you have barely evolved past the Neanderthal stage. Therefore they talk down to you and nothing you can suggest could possibly have any value.

We shall see.

Swiss Compensation Office

By James Downey

I recently came across a certificate from the Swiss Compensation Office dated October 10, 1947. The certificate itself is plain text on a blue security background. The text of the certificate reads as follows:

The Swiss Compensation Office, acting upon instructions of the Swiss Government, certifies that no national of Germany or Japan as defined in paragraph 6 of the letter of November 22, 1946, from the Secretary of the Treasury to Federal Councillor Petitpierre, has or has had an interest in the following securities since the respective dates on which the Swiss freezing regulations were extended to Germany and Japan.

-10- (ten) common shares The Pennsylvania RR Co.

Certif. Nr. 917333 = 1/10

Nominee : CREDIT SUISSE

Zurich, Oktober 10, 1947

s/SWISS COMPENSATION OFFICE

The certificate is a memento of one of the lesser known financial aspects of World War Two: the treatment of assets of neutral and other non-belligerent nations by the Allies.

In order to put a stranglehold on the ability of the Axis countries to finance the war using non-belligerent countries, the Allies took a number of extraordinary measures involving the assets of the non-belligerent nations. As an example, Swiss assets in the United States were frozen in 1941 and remained frozen until 1946.

In 1943 and 1944, the United States and Great Britain issued "Gold Warnings" to the non-belligerent countries. These declarations brought to the attention of the non-belligerent nations the fact that the Axis countries were plundering the gold reserves of the countries they occupied and counseled them against purchasing gold from the Axis powers as it was likely to have been looted. The Allies announced that after the war they would not recognize any gold transactions made by the Axis during the war and would seek to return all looted gold to its rightful owner regardless of who had possession of it.

At the Yalta Conference, the Allies determined that German reparations for the war would be set at 20 billion dollars. They also adopted a principal that all German assets located outside of Germany would be confiscated to pay the reparations.

After the war, there was a great desire by the Swiss to resume normal commercial relations with the Allies including the unfreezing of their assets in the United States. In 1945, the United States, Great Britain, France and 15 other Allied nations (not including the Soviet Union or any other Eastern European country) formed an Agency to deal with the issue of reparations. This Agency also negotiated with Switzerland. The Allies demanded that all Axis assets held in Switzerland be liquidated and the proceeds turned over to the Allies. The Allies also demanded the Swiss turn over to them all gold purchased by the Swiss from Germany during the war. In return, the United States would unfreeze Swiss assets.

The Swiss were initially reluctant to meet the Allies' demands. They could see no legal basis for the confiscation of German owned property and they had no intention of turning over any gold without being compensated.

A compromise was finally reached after weeks of intense negotiations. The final agreement consisted of the following:

Switzerland agreed to pay the Allies 250 million francs as settlement of the gold issue. Assets belonging to Germany or German nationals living in Germany were liquidated with one-half going to the Allies and One-half being retained by the Swiss. The German owners would be compensated in German currency.

The secrecy of the Swiss banking laws made it difficult to trace assets in Switzerland. The Swiss Compensation Office was created to carry out the task of identifying and liquidating German assets. The Certificate identified above was required in order to sell assets held in Switzerland. As the text of the Certificate identifies, the Swiss Compensation Office was certifying that the stock certificate that accompanied it was not owned by a German or Japanese national and could therefore be sold and the proceeds paid out to its owner.

The provisions of the compromise were greatly unworkable and problems developed from the start. Finally, in 1952, the parties worked out a new arrangement in which Switzerland paid the Allies 121.5 million francs as reparations and the Allies renounced their rights to German assets in Switzerland. West German agreed to reimburse Switzerland for the reparations. In exchange, Switzerland agreed to release German assets up to the first 10,000 francs per person. Owners of assets that exceeded 10,000 francs received two-thirds of the amount in excess of 10,000 francs. The remaining one-third was paid to the West German government in order to recover the 121.5 million francs paid to Switzerland.

Anywhere, Anytime

By Al Glaser

I Hate this time of year. I have just concluded the holy trinity, F.U.N, CPMX, FEST. Here I sit making sure my prescription for anti-depressants will last until Memphis. Four long months before my next opportunity to have a FESTing fix. Once again, battalion clerk Schwan and staff came through with a tremendous event. As a veteran Fester, I can't help but laugh every time I think of the 1st time Festers arriving and having that "deer in the headlights" stare on Friday as they witness other Festers trying to out bid one another on some scraps of paper known as MFC. Looking for specific serial numbers, errors, overprints, etc. They have to be wondering what they got themselves into. Of course by Saturday evening, they are buying, selling, trading as if they had been coming for years.

I was sitting in the lobby at Fest headquarters next to Tom Warburton Friday morning with new Fester Ron Waddell and veterans Wes & Rod Hardy. Tom mentioned to me he brought some of the MFC he had from prior events, he was very underwhelmed with them and was wondering if I thought anyone would be interested in buying them. He said, "I don't really want the damn things, I don't even know if they have any value to anyone.?" Ron Waddell perked up and said, "Well, I might be interested, what do you have?" Tom brought out some euros from the 2002 Maastricht show in the Netherlands. He asked what I thought they were worth. I said probably face value plus 50% which meant for a 1,5,10 euro set, you would pay around $25.00. Ron looked puzzled (deer in the headlights stare) he couldn't understand how you could value something at 50% over face that didn't really have a face value, this was basically play money. Tom's interest was now peaking, he had no idea they were worth that much. Ron was having a problem deciding if he should or shouldn't buy the set when Harold Kroll happened to walk by the table. I was looking for credibility for the price I had quoted Ron so I asked Harold if he thought $25.00 was a fair price. He said," NO! Their worth a hell of a lot more than that!" Now Ron is more confused, and Tom is becoming more interested in the whole thing. Harold decides to auction off the set of notes. "Do I hear $30.00?".....30 says Rod....35 says Wes. After a couple of minutes the bidding was closed at $45.00 with Wes Hardy the proud new owner. Ron, having no idea what has just transpired, tries to buy the remaining couple of euro notes Tom had. Tom is now fully awake, and decides to wait before he releases the remaining notes. Ron, who could have bought the set for $25.00, now realizes he can't even own a set for double that amount only five minutes later. By Saturday afternoon, Ron was buying and trading like a veteran. Tom, who less than 24 hours ago knew nothing about the value of "these damn things,? was actually becoming a "market maker" on a $20 star note with serial number 2. He was explaining to Harold, who collects sn2, how he arrived at a price of $60.00 for this note. Harold obviously had created a monster...You just had to be there.

I have already put in my request for leave with the high command for next years Fest. I don't expect confirmation on said request until the diamond necklace gets back from the appraiser. As I have said in the past, Anytime...Anywhere.

I had an interesting meeting yesterday with the manager of the Fest hotel. I have some good news about dates and opportunities to discuss in the next few days. Today I want to discuss something else.

Customer feedback is very important to Holiday Inn. The company has established an elaborate system to evaluate customer service. If you are a Fest and received good service (as I think we all did) at the Port Clinton Holiday Inn Express, please call 1 800 HOLIDAY and report the good service!

If you had poor service or are unhappy for some other reason, of course you can report that as well, but I am sure that Kim Cladwell (the manager) would like to hear about them directly. She may be reached at 419 732 7322.

Report from Iraq?Almost

By Murray Hanowich

Congratulations on another successful and eventful Fest. I have been able to catch the Gram irregularly while on my "Tour of Duty" in the Gulf. And by that I mean my "duty" to "tour" all Central Banks in the region. Now that I have left Qatar & Bahrain I thought that the Gram subscribers might be interested in some data on the current Propaganda Leaflets being dropped in Iraq. I know it is almost impossible to add to the depth and breadth of the combined knowledge of 'Gramville' but let me try. There seems to be 3 types of leaflets dropped over Iraq. The first "drops" were in October of 2002 and it has escalated into February with an estimated 8 million pieces raining down on the Iraqi countryside. I have just seen photocopies so far.

One leaflet has a F18? and an anti-aircraft gun and a radar pictured with the text in Arabic: "Iraqi ADA (Air Defence Artillery)beware! Do not track or fire on Coalition aircraft!"

Second type: Shows a truck and grader with a blown out section of road with the text in Arabic: "Military fibre optic cables have been targeted for destruction. Repairing them places your life at risk."

It seems that Iraqi visas are very easy to come by these past two months as I have met several Japanese who were given 2 week visas. I tried for a visa last year from Cairo and was refused, but this year when I inquired in Abu Dhabi, I was given the OK (as long as I entered via Jordan). Unfortunately I can't make the trip, but sure wish they were as accommodating last year when I had the time and chance. This weekend is the Zimbabwe-Rhodesia Numismatic Society's 40th Anniversary. There will be a bar-b-que and get together here in Harare. I have heard of a WWII Peppiat Pound Propaganda leaflet with Arabic script on back (the one Joe Boling wrote about a few Grams ago) that is in a collection here.....hopefully I can snag it.

Just a side note: I have learned of two new books have been published on the North African war. I don't expect they will have anything new to add to the AMC, MPC, Yellow Seal, etc. etc. data, but may be worth checking out from a library. "Alamein" by Jon Latimer (Harvard University Press) & "An Army at Dawn: The War in North Africa, 1942-1943" (Henry Holt & Co.) Both books focus on the El Alamein offensive on October 23, 1942 through to the collapse of Axis resistance in Tunisia.

Looking forward to seeing everyone at the Maastricht-Valkenburg Show in April.

Editorial

The black hole has been destroyed?fortunately no one was hurt! Phil Goldstein stayed after the Fest for a few days with the sole purpose of dismantling the Port Clinton Black Hole. To be honest, I did not think that it could be done. Now I must say that I enjoy using the desk here in my office. To be honest with you, I did not know that I had a desk!

I thought that Phil's main agenda was to paw through collections, inventory, dupes, and the like looking for wayward orphans. He did adopt a few of those, but mostly he just worked and worked hard. The results are amazing. Most people think that it does not have a chance of staying this way. To them I say, you are correct. I am going to use this jump start to really get things going in an orderly way! To Phil, I say again, thank you. Judy says that you should come back?that is the greatest praise that there is.

Ok, I must tell one other story about this event. Rather than leave Phil at the motel on the night after the Fest, I took him home to save the $45 motel fee. Judy was sleeping but awoke at 2am to find evidence of someone in the guest room. She claimed that I had not said anything to her about this economy measure. She then worked herself into such a state of shall we say excitement that she could not go to school on Monday.

Judy retires from teaching in June. At this point, every day of sick leave that she does not use will be paid at a rate of $140 so my economy measure cost us almost exactly $100. This and a thousand other stories (many of which you have heard) are going into a book that I am writing entitled Travels with Judy.

=====

Dear Editor:

I have suggested this before, but here we go again. How about a mini-fest in Colorado Springs in early July? Maybe just six hours or so for some of us can't make the other Fest!

Larry Gibbs

Dear Larry,

Well, I always think that a mini Fest is a good idea. You have it within your power to organize this. It does not require the approval nor even cooperation of the battalion clerk. If you come up with the hook for this one, you can certainly promote it here in the Gram. The hook that Doug Bell used was a MPC barbeque. The Dallas II minifest was a last minute thing and was just a bull session. There is no end to the possibilities.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Thank you for the two-for-one #867 gesture for us AOL folks (probably a rare Gram issue sent in duplicate with two different block numbers...errr...sender e-mail addresses). Anyway, had a wonderful time at Fest IV, so sign me up for Fest V (although I'm STILL not collecting MPC...well...not yet anyway).

As a result of my "spectacular" purchase of the Deutschenvolksgassenmasken-1000 in the auction, however, I am collecting German home front items including Winter Relief (WHW) stuff, ration coupons, national lottery tickets, and other stuff found in "World War II Remembered." I assume that will qualify me as being a member of the Brotherhood even though I'm collecting things from the "other side?"

Guten Tag!

WW

Guten Tag yersef,

The side does not matter much but we only recognize NUMISMATIC items. On the other hand we look forward to having you back for Fest V.

Does your seminar conflict or compliment the military money event? We would love to have you as a tar?, er student.

Editor

Dear Editor,

HELP!!! It appears I'm not receiving all the MPC

Grams. I seem to be getting around 1 or 2 Grams a week. I have very little contact with other MPC collectors. I f necessary, email 2 Grams.... that should increase my chances of receiving one or the other!!

Also, I tried adding notes to the AMC listing on Dougs new papermoney data base. It seemed it wouldn't accept my entries. Any advice?

Finally, I donatd a MPC note to the ANA museum. I made the donation last fall and I have a receipt of donation from the ANA museum rep. (Mr. Connell ?) (Series 481, 25 cent note).

Keep up the great work with the Grams and contacts/communications!!
PK6

Dear Mr. 6,

You have been victim of the AOLGram Trap. We suggest that you create another email address w/hotmail, Yahoo or similar free service, then register this address with the Gram. You will receive the Gram at both addresses and not be charged for the second one.

I was relieved to find that your 481 25 cent MPC is listed in the museum collection. The use of [] makes it a little confusing for which we are sorry.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I was just at a public auction Saturday when they said "sold", then found out they had two different tie bids, so they reopened the auction with an apology explaining their error. These were very well seasoned professionals (even though they were out here in cowpatch "cheesehead" country).

Cheers,
Colin

More adventures in chasing notes

By Joe Boling

The last time I wrote about my personal collecting quest, I had reached Indianapolis on my first tour there (1969-70). Following Indy, I went to Fort Riley, Kansas (1970-71). It was while there that I finally decided to try pursuing MPC (at that time I was not yet specializing in Japan; I was still collecting notes and coins of the whole world). There were not as many shows around Riley as there had been near Indy--I could not find a show someplace within 25-30 miles on almost any weekend of the year. But there were enough to keep me broke.

I don't remember the town nor the series, but I ran across a dealer who had an older $10 MPC (probably series 471 or 472) priced at just a bit above face value. Remember that these notes were worthless after conversion and particularly when removed from the theater of issue, so paying even face for them seemed very extravagant. But the piece was in decent condition and I recognized that not many would have been saved, so I sprang for it. Having done that, it was a quick trip down the slippery slope. I contacted Ed Hoffman and started buying then-current VN series in sets with last two numerals matched (that was the way many FRN dealers sold district sets, and Ed carried the practice over to MPC).

During my tour at Riley I participated in two REFORGER exercises--REturn of FORces to GERmany. This was a scheme cooked up when we were kicked out of France in the mid-1960s. Unit sets of material were placed in controlled- humidity warehouses in Germany, and entire divisions would be designated to fly in and pick them up should the Soviets come chugging through the Fulda Gap. I was assigned to the 1st Infantry Division, and we had POMCUS (Prepositioning of Material Configured in Unit Sets) scattered all along the Rhine (my pickup point was the Germersheim Depot). I went on REFORGER in fall 1970 and fall 1971. After picking up our tracks and tanks and trucks, we did maneuvers through central Germany, ending at Grafenwoehr for tank gunnery. Following that, we might get a two day pass before moving everything back to Germersheim, putting it back into storage (a real chore), and flying back to Kansas.

I was able to scoot down to Munich on the train each year to visit Albert Pick at the Hypo Bank. Of course, I was also trying to pick up whatever obsolete US notes I could while I was in Munich (refer back to my earlier columns about such availability during the mid-60s). I knew that the Hypo- Bank did not sell such notes back out through their foreign exchange window; Herr Pick had them being held for the bank's collection (either for accessioning, or for sale to finance other acquisitions). Nevertheless, I thought I'd inquire. Much to my surprise, the teller brought out a large stack of large- size US, including a $5 legal tender woodchopper note, a type I had never before been able to buy in Germany. When I indicated that I would buy the whole stack, he took it back and conferred with someone else, then returned and told me, sorry, it was not for sale--any of it (not even the obsolete small-size). I'm sure it was my greed that queered the deal; had I asked for just a few pieces, I might have been able to get them. C'est la vie. I then asked for Herr Pick, and had my meeting with him. I don't recall getting any notes in foreign exchange on that trip, even at the other large banks that had previously been good sources for them.

Near Fort Riley is the town of Manhattan, on the main street of which there was a coin dealer whose business name I have long forgotten. Two summers ago I was plowing through Eldon Leasure's stock in Colorado Springs and came across some stage money. I mentioned that I had bought similar notes many years before from a dealer in Manhattan. Mrs. Leasure, who was showing me the stock, replied that it had been them--they had had that store at the time. I was amazed to find that in 2001 they still had pieces in stock that I had selected from in 1970--more than thirty years before. But since I had sold my stage money to another collector during the years that I was pursuing Japan, I was happy to be able to replace those pieces in 2001.

To be continued.

It was a great disappointment at the Fest to cancel physical training. The location is ideal for a morning swim, but solid ice makes it difficult to swim and even to run. We certainly do not want any injuries before the auction! It was necessary to cancel the swims two out of the four years so we figure that something must be done.

We can get the hotel under favorable conditions through May 2, 2004. We have studied the calendar and consulted with a few Festers via telephone and we believe that the best time for Fest V is April 23-25, 2004. This should eliminate conflicts with Long Beach and the midyear ANA, but of course there will be some other conflicts. It also uncouples the Fest from CPMX.

We want (and need) your comments promptly on this.

The worst part of April 2004 is that we would have to wait 13 months between Fests instead of 12. Well we have a solution for that too. The same rates are available now through May 2, 2003. We can have Fest V in April 2003 then Fest VI in 2004. I have tentatively booked the hotel for 12-14 April 2003 for Fest V. I am now coordinating with the IRS to postpone tax filings one month for 2003 only. That should not be too much of a problem. When we get that approval, we will confirm the hotel and other plans.

Dear Editor,

The Introduction to Paper Money summer seminar class which I hope to teach (one never knows how many will sign up) was expressly scheduled to not conflict with the Military Money course so that I can attend.

Congrats to the Lady Boilermakers who won the Big Ten Tournament last night, beating the "hated" Ohio State Buckeyes 67-65!

Wendell

Dear Wendell,

Great, we look forward to working with you at the seminar. Be sure to take your challenge coin (don't leave home without it) and your paybook.

The Bilermakers thing might bring new meaning to ?Rendezvous with Destiny.? Should we expect a new souvenir overprint on MFC 031?

Ah, it just hit me, that probably means that we can use your fancy/high tech projector in our class! (please)

The Shrinking Black Hole

By Phil Goldstein

After reading Freds report of my efforts to help reduce the mass of the Port Clinton Black Hole, I just had to add my 2 cents....

As we all now know, before the Fest, I made a commitment to Fred (and Judy) to organize the PCBH, as many of MY items from my collection had been sent for either digital scanning for the new books, or sent for possible sale, among other reasons. After several months when they had not been returned, and Fred lost track of them, I ran out of tolerance for his situation. Since I could not wholeheartedly expect him to take any initiative, I had to bide my time until the Fest, and do it myself.

Immediately following Fest, as Fred previously stated, I was invited to stay at Freds house, (albeit without the knowledge of Judy) and the following morning, I was up at 08:30, and immediately set to work. I started by making a PATH at the very least to his computer without walking on various notes/receipts, manuscripts, or what have you.. among this rabble, were various uncashed checks, money orders.. I just kept throwing a dirty look at Fred everytime I found one, who, might I add was the most useless of help, as he was busy getting on the computer doing the Gram, and creating things for the next Fest. After bumping into him several times, I eventually told him to vacate the premises, and he complied. This was accomplished in about 4 hours. It was in this mode, that after moving his office chair, of which, one of the casters was on top an empty Priority Mail envelope, and that being on a 5"x 8" currency holder containing what I feel to be some of the holiest of holies: the 641 .10 cent ladder note: J12345678J and the 641 .25 cent solid note: J11111111J

I sat on the floor cross-legged, in dumbfounded shock. I immediately let out a string of blue streak cursing, and Fred came in and asked, "what as the matter?" I stated, "This is a disgrace! If you cannot at the very least take better care of this irreplaceable material by jamming it in an album or a box, then he don't deserve to hold it." He chuckled in that Fred Chuckle sort of way. This led me to stop working on the floor for a few moments, and attempt to locate his MPC album. After finding the one that contained the fancy SNs and like, I put away (after kissing them goodnight) the ladder and solid. I knew he wouldn't let me take them home as a foster parent quite yet, so I don't even think I asked.

Needless to say, I found many irreplaceable and high value notes just laying on the floor (in currency holders at the least): unc 691 $20's, POW chits, Gasoline Coupons, 1000 franc AMC unc, MPC & AMC replacements of every sort in any kind of condition, you name it. I just kind of piled it up, until I could get to it. The reason for this is, I had to do the noisy part of cleaning during daylight hours so I wouldn't disturb Judy's sleep. Sorting notes and reorganizing albums is quiet work, so I saved that for late night tasking.

After completing the floor path task, I began sorting his pile of books by catagory: chess, computer, publishing, aviation, WW2 History, etc. Fortunately for me his floor to ceiling bookcase runs the entire wall, and although mostly full, I could place almost all the books where they belonged. Will doing this I found a pile of blank pages and dividers for his albums. This was such of an important find to me, you would be amazed, I needed them to reorganize his albums, and had been agonizing over how to do it with the support material. Anyhow, you would be surprised how much floor space was now open, that's when Judy came to tell me to get ready for dinner, she was in shock. Wide eyed and open mouthed shock. and a smile crept upon her face, as the light bulb went off over her head, and she said, "pick up all the paper clips, and debris because tomorrow, I'll break out the electric broom." Fred sighed, and left the office.

We went out to dinner with Leo and a pleasant time, but I wanted to get back to the BH and make more progress. We returned home, and I jumped right back in both feet, both hands, a few garbage bags. I circular filed all the empty envelopes, crumpled balls of paper, and unmistakable refuse. While in the progress of doing this, naturally I found unopened envelopes. With Freds permission, I opened them (some enveloped postmarked from 1998). I found many requests for books, want lists, more checks and money orders, notes for trade, etc... How this man became so famous and such an important part of the MPC community and remain so unorganized, is beyond me.

It's getting on 21:00, and Judy informs us she going to bed, which is a polite way for her telling Fred "your going to bed too" He went to bed, and I shifted into album reconstruction mode. I took all his MPC albums, the batch of empty pages and dividers, and began to consolidate and reorganize. He had fancy SNs, Low SNs, errors, replacements jammed in every album, in any which way. One album (surprisingly) which didn't need fixing was his multiple printing regular and replacement set. Here, shockingly enough he was well organized. But as for the rest of the albums, I had to work on them. Work work work, and I look at my watch, and it's now 02:00, and I'm done:

All his low SNs are in one section, all his errors in another, all his fancy SN's in another, all his fancy replacements, in another. In another album, his Series 661 Progressive Proof Set had all the notes from one denomination jammed into one pocket. I set out by separating each color from each denomination and displaying then in the same format for all note. It was here I also discovered within this set, that the light blue underprinting for one of the denominations was missing. I panicked, and looked but to not avail. I would have to wait until morning to bring it to Freds attention.

At this point I was getting an invitation by Mr. Sandman, so I hit the sack.

Stay tuned for my next installment of the Shrinking Black Hole

Editorial

I found myself expending most of my editorial in the response to Ski's letter below, so I will have to squander a topic early.

Yesterday, David Seelye and I came up with what we think is a spectacular idea. You might (should) recall that we have decided to expand Fest 2004 to include a nearly full day of bourse on Friday. Unlike the rest of the Fest, this will be open to the general collecting public.

David was pushing me to get the Fest dates into the respective calendars in the print numismatic media. Of course we intend to do that, but this is a little early. Anyway, that got us thinking about the data that goes into such listings. On of the items is comments about entry fees. While most numismatic events are free a few charge admission. That is where the lightning struck.

Instead of charging admission, we can/will PAY collectors to attend the bourse! How about that for a unique and innovative approach! Here is where you come in to help brainstorm the thing.

We could pay something like a $2 FRN or we could pay in military fest certificates. If MFC is used, we could overprint some as ?souvenir admission passes? or such terminology. These would only be issued as admission tickets and any extra shredded in public (as with all MFC). If the admission is only paid to nonfesters those receiving them should find the attention that they receive about their MFC/admission tickets quite interesting.

We need and want to know what you think.

One other item. Today is absolutely the last day to get an advertisement in the first-ever (official) Bank Note Reporter MPC issue. This issue includes lots of good stuff on MPC and military money: news, articles, features, advertising. It will be a collectors item in its own right. Call Krause publications NOW.

=====

Dear Editor,

Lets quit playing games with the date for Fest. It has been the week after CPMX for the four years we have had it and it has worked out well. If Long Beach is more important to some folks then Fest, let them go to Long Beach.

Larry

Dear Larry,

Yes, the proposed changes unlink the Fest from CPMX. I have always felt that that was a good fit, but then again for the past two years CPMX has left many check books with their low balance warning lights blinking. Neither Long Beach nor the ANA mid year conventions are the major reasons that I (reluctantly) support a change to the April date. The main reasons are the terrible complaints that have been lodged by certain southern collectors about the PC weather in Feb/March. Although I did not take these complaints too seriously, I thought that there was an underlying seriousness. While there is no guarantee that late April will not bring a snow storm, it generally is quite nice in PC about that time. However, the biggest reason that I think April is better is that one of these years CPMX and the Fest will be cancelled by a winter storm. See also below.

Editor

Good Morning Editor,

April is fine with me!! Maybe I can skinny dip then!!

Nick

Dear Nick,

Yikes! The possibility of seeing you skinny dipping is moving the Fest back to January!

Editor

Dear Editor:

Another note regarding the reopening of auction lots. I don't think I have been to a major paper money auction in the last 10 years or more that this has not happened at least once, often after several lots more have gone by.

Ian A. Marshall

Dear Editor,

Just a PS to the story about the MFC horse trading, all the proceeds went to the Scholarship Fund although I must admit it has given me ideas about starting a geriatric Travel Fund for the support of those unable to remember their flight times.

Thanksagain for a great Fest.

Joe Boling (the play) a Review

By Alex Samuels

For those of you who missed Joe's solo performance last night for his final class in Susy Schneider's (sp?) Original Works class: Shame on you. He would have gone to see you.

There were other performances that I will say nothing about, because I know Joe will post something about them. This is a review for Joe Boling.

My God! It was funny as f%*#. If you think that the 400+ shows he sees a year is a good example of his obsessive compulsive disorder, you aint seen nothin' yet. I don't want to get into specifics here, because he needs to perform it at the Fringe or something (and when you see him, tell him you want that to happen, trust me, you do). He discusses the Boy Scouts, the Army, numismatics, theater, the books he's written, cookies, and the myriad other things that fill the 19 waking hours of a man with OCD (actually, I think he calculated that he gets 5 hours and 16 minutes of sleep per night).

If you like Joe, this show will make you love him. If you think he's a little scary, well, get ready for some serious fear.

If you don't believe me, ask Rob West. He was sitting a couple of rows in front of me, and I saw him have no less than 3 orgasms in the 25 minutes that the show took.

Oh! I almost forgot. There were props. Joe Boling as a prop comic! I'm telling you people, make him perform this elsewhere. You won't regret it.

Afterword by the reviewer:

You will get your opportunity to see him do this. There are too many people interested in seeing it at this point. So based on peer pressure alone, he will have no choice.

Editorial

If you have not figured out the above review, it is of Joe Boling's performance as Joe Boling. Theater is one of Joe's other passions.

You will not believe this one. Well, perhaps you will. I received a call today from a Fester who received a check from me at the Fest. He said that the check had bounced. I did not think that that was possible?especially after I examined the account on line. Off to the bank I went (not the same bank that would not sell me an HH bond, by the way).

I print my own checks. It saves money and I like doing it. For the Fest I went all out. I created checks in the name of the Fest Auction Account with the Holiday Inn Express as the address. The final touch was that the checks were payable in military fest certificates.

It seems that since 9-11 banks have some new regulations about examining checks. This one met a threshold for amount that required examination. It seems that the check violated all kinds of rules as to the name on the account etc., the the payment in MILITARY fest certificates really set them off! That check and another did not bounce but were returned with the notation ?refer to maker (me).?

The bank has promised not to return any of the others that have this text, but I cannot be sure for awhile. For now, I want to get those two checks for the archives!

Black Hole Attack II

By Phil Goldstein

So now it's Tuesday 3/4/03, I wake up, it's about 9:30 a.m, after pulling a late nighter organizing Freds MPC albums... As I've said in my last installment, I discovered that two light blue underprintings from Fred 661 Progressive Proof Set are missing..

Fred is up, in his office and working on his computer. I bid him a good morning, and proceed to tell him of my discovery of the missing underprinting. He turns around nonchalantly, and says cool as a cucumber, "it was probably not missing, just misplaced..." I sit down on the floor (remember now it's clean!) and I start showing him how I displayed each note from each denomination in it's own slot in the page. He's very impressed, and when I get to the denomination with the missing note... he gets a puzzled look upon his face.. After a few moments of pondering, I turn the page to the next denomination, and he says, "there's your missing notes." I look carefully, and sure enough there are the two missing note... They were mistakenly placed with the wrong denomination. I (mistakenly) assumed the notes were properly sorted by denomination, just not displayed properly. That goes to show you what happens when you assume! :o) I show him the other albums, with the new sections and displays, and he comes away very impressed... He knew his albums were a wreck, just I guess he didn't have the incentive or the time to do it. I label the album spines and then put them away on a shelf.

Now, after picking up all the notes that I found, which were: on the floor, jammed in several "in" baskets, stuffed in various envelopes and what have you, a pile of rather large proportions has grown on another of his tables, and it is threatening to topple over onto the floor. I decide it is time to get them put away. I start sorting the notes into basic piles: MPC, AMC, WW2 Issues, Military Exonumia (Checks, Fuel Coupons), Local Postcards, POW/Concentration Camp...you get the idea. This undertaking is by no means a small one. It takes me the better part of three hours to sort all the notes. Just when I finish it, I find another pile somewhere.. or Fred would hand me a group. While looking for all the notes I could, I came across a fairly modern two line conference phone with speaker setup, under some papers between his fax machine and wall. Since Fred uses the handset on his fax machine often, the cord on that was in a sorry state, with about 2 usable feet of stretch. I take a break from note sorting and I throw Fred out of the office for a few minutes and run a telephone line to his desk. I mount the phone upright on the vertical supports of a book shelf next to his desk, so he could work at the desk and talk at same time. He has one empty modular jack in the 3 way splitter out of his wall. I thought, "wow, thats is luck!" I plug it in, and test it. One line works the other doesn't. So much for luck. I try switching handset cords but that don't work either. Fred says thats peculiar, cause it worked when he disconnected it. I try one more thing: I take the 3 way splitter out of the wall and plug the phone directly into the wall jack. Bingo! Two lines... The splitter, while being three way, has a single two line split and two single line splits. So I swap the fax machine into a single line and plug the desk phone into the two line slot. A few minutes later the fax machine rings. It's hooked up to Judy number! That won't do Fred says! So I tell him, tomorrow I need to go to a Radio Shack and get the proper splitter, and while there, I'll get two new handset cords.

So now, it two hours later and we go out for lunch and stop by his brother Brad who owns Swan Dry Cleaners of Port Clinton to pick up my dry cleaning. Yes MPCGram readers: I save up all my dry cleaning all year long and bring it with me to the Fest so Brad can do the cleaning. It saves me a 40 minute trip to my nearest dry cleaners where I live, not to mention (and perhaps more importantly) Brad accepts MPC Fest Certificates as payment!! I think he is the first business establishment in Port Clinton (or any business establishment anywhere) to honor an issue of paper money not of US legal tender.. LOL! While there we schmooze the daily shenanigans on the stock markets, and then head to Leo at the Holiday Inn.. Then we head to a quaint coffee house for a cuppa, and an informal and inpromptu chess meet with Cuneyd. (That's pronouced "June-Eight" for those of you who don't know him) Judy meets us there and we have a light dinner there. She tells us she has Wednesday off and Fred sighs. It's after 7 pm, and we get home, I'm back in his office, and back at work.

Finally all notes are put into some sort of container. While I could stop there, I cannot. I have "look for" lists from various people, who have notes missing in action in the Black Hole. I find a couple, but the really important ones elude me. This takes an hour or so. I then start sorting all the MPC notes in this 5 x 8 box I've assembled, by series and denomination.. I take out all the replacements and put them in a seperate 5 x 8 sleeve. Fred mentions something about removing all the obsolete computer equipment and putting them in storage. We pile all that up in a corner of the office, and box up all the miscellaneous cables. Then it's bed time for Fred and he excuses himself. I continue working on the notes and progress to the AMC boxes and seperate by country of issue. Then, my eyes start getting heavy... I decide to turn in, and I doze off and my dreams are filled with MPC and AMC notes.

Next Installment : Wednesday 3/5/03 - The great computer move!

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor:

Just a comment on the Propaganda leaflets. A friend of mine has been on two different tours in the Afgan area and he has sent me a total of 16 different leaflets, so far. Don't know what they say or mean, but they are interesting anyway.

Moe Letlow

To all Festers,

Due to an oversight, I did not get a listing of everyone's email address so I could bug you about sending a serial & position number listing of all your Fest Certificates including 031. I think I spent too much time looking for 7's. Anyway, please send reports to thetrader.2@cox.net .

Thanks Al

Phil: On the cleaning of the black hole, you did great, but forgot one thing. When Fred goes to the post office, he sometimes makes a stop at the warehouse (black hole #2), and also when he gets home, he puts the car in the black hole #3 ( the garage). Did you think to check for mail left unattended in #2 and #3. Looks like you may need another trip of two or three days for that project. You may need three or more days just for #2!! Looking further along, you might have check his other living quarters (his car).

FEST AUCTION

By Harold Kroll

Results of the auction held at MPC Fest IV were great, actually phenomenal with $5,000.00 being raised for the scholarship fund. Thanks to all that donated items and to all the bidders, without either this would not have been possible. This leads into some comments and thoughts concerning how the auction was run.

I attend about 5 paper money auctions a year, bid in several mailbids sales and attend 12 to 15 auctions a year for my business. There are several general guidelines that makes an auction work smoothly and they are understood by the bidders without much fanfare. The auction is run by the auctioneer, he may or may not have other people working with him to watch the crowd and be sure to get each bidders bid as he/she raises their hand or bid card. This is sometimes called watching the ring. If for some reason the auctioneer misses a bid and calls the item sold and one of the ring watchers has taken a bid from another bidder, the auctioneer can make one of two calls, he can reopen the bid between his bidder and the ring watchers bidder only or he can reopen the auction to the floor. In the case of a late or slow bid when a bidder decides to raise his/her bid card or hand when the auctioneer is saying sold, the usual sold call stands and the bidder is reminded to get the hand or bid card in the air so it can be seen. More lots have been lost from bidders who hesitate when bidding and this is where some bidders get upset, I have been guilty of this myself. If you are bidding in an auction, always raise your hand or bid card high in the air so it can be seen by the auctioneer or the ring people. If you have doubts about what you are bidding on or the bid being asked for you can ask the auctioneer to clarify bid or item. If you bid on the wrong item do not wait for several lots to be auctioned off before bringing this to the attention of the auctioneer, in most cases if you wait to do so you own the item. The auctioneer is sometimes referred to as the judge as he has the last word concerning every item being sold. This holds true when it comes to all preprinted catalogs and literature mailed out advertising the sale. Any corrections, deletions and changes take president as announced by the auctioneer prior to sale starting over anything advertised previous to sale time. The auctioneer is working for the seller and his main concern is to get the most he can from the bidders in the auction for each and every item he is selling. It is also his responsibility to make sure all bidders understand the rules of the auction as explained prior to sale start time. Last but not least, all bidders should know and understand the rules if they are going to participate in any auction. This brings up the confusion about bidders having lots resold at the auction.

While several of us were at the ANA Summer Seminar two years ago we also attended the YN auction and saw something that we thought was a terrific way to help the YN'S raise more money. A high bidder would win a lot and the tell the auctioneer to resell the item, stating wrong lot bid on or whatever, the auctioneer would bid off the lot again, this item may be bought and sold several times before one bidder finally keeps the lot. What was misunderstood at the fest auction was that each time a bidder won a lot and told the auctioneer to resell the item, the high bidder each time the lot was resold also paid for the item, so one lot would bring in several bids making more money for the YN'S. A few of us did this at the fest auction to raise the dollars for the scholarship fund and it was not explained enough for all to understand what was taking place. I do not think any lot was returned except for this reason and in most cases after the lot had been sold several times it would be given to a YN at the auction or fest.

Overall the auction was a big success and it accomplished the goal we were all after, funds to promote this area of collecting. The auction ran less than two hours, but we have to look beyond just the auction by itself. Larry Smulczenski and Phil Goldstein were the coordinators of the auction and they need to be applauded for their great work involved in setting the whole thing up. This auction did not just come together overnight, calls for donations were sent out in the fall of 2002 to get this thing rolling. That was the easy part, but after that the donated items begin to arrive and they come in all kinds of fashions, single pieces, groups, mixed lots, etc, now the hard part starts. When Larry was at the FUN show in Orlando he received quite a lage amount of items for the auction, the donations were great but all this had to be sorted out, identified, labeled and readied for listing in the catalog. I don't know how many hours or evenings he spent getting all the material ready for this auction but it involved a lot of both. He was still working on this while at the CPMX show in Chicago a week before the fest. Phil was putting the auction lots on the website as they were finished and there was a lot of discussion between the two of them on getting these lots put together. Larry served as the auctioneer for the auction and Phil had the easy part, recording all the bids and bidders, collecting all the money and disbursing payments to the sellers, just kidding Phil. Both did a FANTASTIC job, and the results speak for themselves. Congrats to both of you.

The auction had a purpose and it was accomplished but in the same vain it was supposed to be a fun thing. If some feelings were ruffled or thoughts of losing a lot stung a little, who was really at fault. Did you as a bidder do your best to get the auctioneers attention, or did you have that last micro second urge to bid as the item was being sold and missed out. There are times when a bid gets overlooked and it is not done intentionally, it just happens. From the observations of attending the auction it was run close to the above mentioned procedures and would be glad to attend another one in the future. I know there will be some rebuttal to this article but that will be good for future use while attending any auction

To use a phrase from "Mr. Get A Life" ANYTIME-ANYWHERE.

Editorial

Marcus Turner went to the coin show of the Indianapolis Coin Club today. His column will appear tomorrow. Of course I agree with most if not all that Harold has to say.

There have been a few comments directed at the letter writer who complained about the auction and about my decision to run it. Even the letter writer stated that he whished that he had not sent it. Here is where I disagree. I thought that the letter was good. If someone has a complaint it is much better to air it in the hope/expectation of resolving it than carrying it around.

Dear Editor:
I read your extremely short editorial in Gram 872. Of course you make a good target.. Do you think you would be such a good target if you were normal? Which of course there are no normal MPC collectors..

Phil

Dear Phil,

Yes, I think that was the record for short editorials. Sometimes I balance that with the longest response to a letter?but not this time.

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

It was amazing this morning to see an MPCGram in my "Inbox"! MSN has always properly sent it to my "Junk" mail slot. Did you change some code in the email to make the MPCGrams seem like "normal" email? Phil's work in and around you is fantastic! Can I hire him too? My office, library, dining room table, breakfast bar and several other places are also covered with mail and stacks of other stuff for him to work on. There are some "military" Southeast Asian pieces in the mess but nothing like the number in your stuff, so he might not be interested. I have sent about ten inputs to you for the MPCGram in the past month that have not appeared in it. Are they still in your "Inbox" or do I need to resend them? And the last item is that it appears the Army does not want me (yet) and I will be at the Charlotte ANA. The NI meeting is at 11AM and the IBNS meeting is at noon on Saturday for all of the Gramsters who can make them. Please bring one or more items for show and tell! See you in Charlotte! I hope.
Howard

Dear Editor,

Loved the story on the auction checks. Banks simply have no sense of humor.

Making the checks payable in Military Fest Certificates was a stroke of genius. I can just see the VPs (everyone in a bank is a VP) scurrying about trying to decode the secret terrorist message.

The article on Joe Boling, the Play, was outstanding. I would make a real effort to see it. To tell you the truth, what would really stir me to action is "Joe Boling on Fred Schwan"

Bush Establishes Medals for Global War on Terror

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON, March 13, 2003 -- President Bush has issued an executive order establishing two military awards for actions in the global war on terrorism.

The president signed the order March 12 establishing the Global War on Terrorism Expeditionary Medal and the Global War on Terrorism Service Medal.

A White House spokesman said the medals recognize the "sacrifices and contributions" military members make in the global war on terror.

The Global War on Terrorism Expeditionary Medal will be awarded to service members who serve in military expeditions to combat terrorism on or after Sept. 11, 2001. Operation Enduring Freedom is the prime operation the medal may be awarded for. Personnel assigned to operations in Afghanistan and the Philippines are examples of service members who will receive the award.

The Global War on Terrorism Service Medal will be awarded to service members who serve in military operations to combat terrorism on or after Sept. 11, 2001. Operation Noble Eagle is an example of the type of operation the medal may be awarded for.

The awards do not take the place of the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, established Dec. 4, 1961, or the Armed Forces Service Medal, established Jan. 11, 1996.

"Any member who qualified for those medals by reason of service in operations to combat terrorism between September 11, 2001, and a terminal date to be determined by the Secretary of Defense, shall remain qualified for those medals," the executive order reads. "Upon application, any such member may be awarded either the Global War on Terrorism Expeditionary Medal or the Global War on Terrorism Service Medal in lieu of the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal or the Armed Forces Service Medal."

Indianapolis Coin Club Show Report and the 692
?Test Note?

By Marcus Turner

Today ( Sunday) the Indianapolis Coin Club held their second annual coin show. Yes, this is only their second show despite the fact the club was founded in 1939. My day started at 5:30 am with a mad dash to have breakfast with my father (with whom I was sharing a table). We made it to the dealer set-up with time to spare, so I took a quick preview of the dealers tables. Keep in mind that this is a very small local show. My preview took an entire 10 minutes. I was not surprised to see that I was the only person on the bourse floor that any MPC to offer at all. In fact any paper money was in short supply and demand at this event.

The only fester to attend was Wendell Wolka . Jim Luckey , the club president just happened to have been a paymaster in Germany back during his military career. Although not a collector himself, he has handled a lot of MPC and certainly likes to keep up with what is going on in the wonderful world of military numismatics. I took a couple of minutes out to tell him about MPC Fest IV. During the course of our conversation I presented him with one of the (many) challenge coins. He was familiar with the concept. At that very moment Wendell walked into the room. I immediately asked Jim to challenge Wendell before he spotted me. This would really be exciting since the two had never met before. Needless to say Wendell appeared to be completely dumbfounded to have been challenged by a complete stranger and more importantly was caught without his challenge coin. Shame? Let's all hope that Wendell remembers to bring his challenge coin to St. Louis for the Central States Show next month!

One of the more informative encounters I had at the show was with world coin dealer Tim Vest. I had heard his name thrown around quite a bit among the Hoosier MPC collectors over the years but this was my first time meeting up with him. Tim is significant to the MPC community because he was dealer who first brought the series 692 "Test Note" to market. I can already hear Fred all the way up in Port Clinton, moaning and groaning about my "Test Note" terminology. This is an issue that we debate regularly.

The notes were first found by Tim in 1991 at a very small monthly show on the north side of Indy. It is commonly referred to as the "Second Sunday Show" held at the 71 st street Knights of Columbus. A gentleman came to the show with several of these notes which he ended up selling to Tim. The notes in question contained the design of the series 692 $1 but were printed in one color only. Light blue was used on the face and brown was used on the back. The note contained no serial or position numbers and the lower right corner was clipped.

http://aes.iupui.edu/rwise/banknotes/u\_s\_mpc/UsaMpcP87-1Dollar-\(1970\)-Test\_f.jpg-Test_f.jpg)

http://aes.iupui.edu/rwise/banknotes/u\_s\_mpc/UsaMpcP87-1Dollar-\(1970\)-Test\_b.jpg-Test_b.jpg)

They have been a great source of mystery to collectors for many years. I have also received reports that a couple of weeks after the notes were sold at the show, so 19 pieces anonymously showed up at the Army Finance Museum which was located at Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indianapolis. These notes quickly found their way into serious MPC collections.

The second sighting of the mysterious series 692 "Test Note" came from world paper money collector Ron Wise. Ron attended the same show in 2001 and had met a gentleman who gave him one of these pieces. For those who are not familiar with Ron Wise, he has one of the premier world paper money galleries on the internet. His site consists of over 14,000 scans of world paper money and is the official photo gallery of the International Banknote Society. His site can be found at: <http://aes.iupui.edu/rwise/>

After speaking with Ron about his encounter with the gentleman I decided to attempt to track him down myself. It took me about two weeks to find him. Rather than calling him I sent a letter to which he promptly replied. We immediately made arrangements to meet at were else but the Second Sunday Show. He brought his entire collection with him which primarily consisted of U S Federal Reserve notes. Tucked in back of his collection were a total of 6 "Test Notes."

I managed to buy 5 of the 6 as he wanted to keep one for his own collection. He also had a variety of Vietnam era MPC as he indicated that he was in charge of pay operations for the Vietnam arena. What exactly his title was I do not recall but can hopefully get in touch with him again to find out.

So what exactly were these notes? He worked for DFA Sat Fort Harrison and indicated that around 1984 he walked into a room one day to find someone from headquarters going through stacks and stacks of these notes. The person indicated that the notes had been in storage with the series 691 and 701 and the special notes were prepared to examine how the notes aged. I am speculating that the test designers anticipated that series 691 would be issued before series 692. He asked if he could have a few of the pieces and went about his business.

Obviously this eyewitness account certainly does not exactly explain what the notes are, but does indicate that a study was conducted. I have been trying for several years to find a copy of a report that might explain the purpose, methodology and results of the test, but with no success to date. In talking with Tim this afternoon, he indicated that he was told the exact same story some 10 years earlier than I.

When I found the remaining notes in 2001 I accounted for some 15 individual pieces. After my discussion with Tim today we can identify 17 pieces total. I have verified with the gentleman that he was NOT the person who anonymously placed several examples at the Army Finance Museum .

So what is the terminology battle all about? Fred insists on referring to the notes as "proofs." My argument is that these notes were designed for the specific purpose of running a test. They should therefore be classified as "Test Notes." I do concede to Fred that I did make up this new term, but its use is quite appropriate. Neither of us have been able to find any good glossary of paper money terminology, so if anyone out there knows of one, I would sure love to find out what the definition of "proof" is?

Wow, Marcus can sure deliver zingers! My comment about being a good target must have had wide-spread effect. First, Marcus' article is wonderful including lots of unpublished info. As Marcus says, he and I have talked at great length about this terminology issue. Although Marcus apparently does not consider it good there is a glossary in The Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates. Here is the definition of proof from page 384.

As part of the manufacturing process, many different trials are made to test some aspect of the process. The critical characteristic of a proof is that it is of an incomplete note. Examples of proofs: artists proof, plate proof, printers proof, progressive proof, and composite proof.

That seems reasonable enough to me. If the proof notes in question were used as Marcus says, I would not have any great problem in calling them test notes. They would still be proofs and I believe that that term would be better.

Actually, as implied in the above definition from a not-good glossary, all proofs include an aspect of test.

There is an interesting twist to this. If the notes had been complete (that is with serial number) it could be argued that the note was in fact a test note, but not a proof note. There is an interesting contemporary item.

Some Series 691 notes were withdrawn from the finished stocks for testing in the 1980s (or earlier). It was from this group of notes that the few $1 notes first leaked to private collections. In the MPC book, I called these pieces test notes. The important distinction was that these were finished notes, so they clearly were not proofs.

I look forward to thoughts by Marcus and others.

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I wrote earlier today about the 872 arriving in my regular "Inbox" and not my "Junk" box for emails. There must be something in the new 872 code because the resent 871 arrived in my "Junk" box. If you did do something different with 872, keep doing it because it appears that it makes the email systems think it is real email and not junk.

Dear Editor:

Phil's latest article is very good. He is an excellent writer. Of course the concept of you two spending "quality time" together stretches the imagination. Of course YOU are a good target, what is your point?

Dear Editor,
Where is Gram 873?

Sparky

Dear Sparky and all gramsters,
Busted again! There was no Gram 873. It might have been skipped as an underhanded attempt to chat subscribers of their justly deserved copies, or it might have been a simple oversight at headquarters. We are asking for an investigation and UN vote on this.

More adventures in numismatics (continued from gram

By Joe Boling

Shortly after my second such trip to Germany, I moved to Seattle to start my MBA at the University of Washington. DA had delayed my educational assignment until after that second REFORGER exercise, not allowing me to go to UW at the start of the fall quarter. The UW business school was not happy about having me come in out of cycle, but I explained that it was that way or not at all. They reluctantly agreed, and I ended up taking the first year's economics, accounting, and linear programming courses out of order. It didn't seem to hurt my progress to the MBA; I had all but one course finished in five quarters, and loafed in electives for the sixth quarter leading to graduation in June 1973.

In those days there was a monthly coin show at the Seattle Center. Both Milt Blackburn and Bill Henderson were setting up there selling coins; neither was a paper money dealer yet, though Bill had started to handle some paper with his coins. Milt was specializing in Arabic countries; since that was one of my special interest areas (having lived in Morocco for two years), he and I did a lot of business. Those were the very earliest days of the Krause world coin catalog, and I was continually sending in updates on new dates observed in emissions for Arab countries.

In one of my earlier columns about my position 8 collection, I said that I could not recall which of the $5 keys I was still lacking when I sold my first MPC collection to Fred in 1974. I remember now that it must have been the 471 $5, because at one of those Seattle Center shows, a rival collector was making the rounds ahead of me and he found one (I don't remember who was selling it). Having missed that one, I never found another before selling out.

I remember going into a coin shop in downtown Seattle and finding a box of unsorted, unpriced paper money. The dealer was reluctant to sell any of it, not knowing how to price it. I went through and selected a large stack of notes, then laid them out on his counter in piles according to what I would pay for them (from about a quarter to $6 or $8 per note). Seeing my obvious knowledge about relative values of the pieces, he accepted my offer and I went home happy. I don't remember anything that was in the pile except a Moroccan 5000 franc note (no, not the ABNC wartime piece - a 1950s- era piece from when I was living there).

On another occasion, I went into a pawn shop in Tacoma and found some Japanese pre-Meiji coins I needed (needed, not wanted--you true collectors know what I mean). But one of them was counterfeit. It was a fairly good piece if genuine (worth $30-35 at the time), but I offered him $7.50 as a fake. Again, he was reluctant, but in the face of my knowledge about the other pieces he had, he agreed to accept my judgment. When I got home and started accessioning the day's purchases, I noticed that the gold fineness of that issue was only .123; a circulated piece could easily have the surface gold leached away, leaving the silver-colored alloy as the predominant feature. (The metallurgy of pre-Meiji gold/silver alloys is complicated; email me if you want to know more about how they made the coins look gold when they were mostly silver. They weren't plated.) I decided that I had bought a genuine coin after all, so I went back a few days later to give him $25 more for the lot. When he recovered from his shock, I had a dealer who would always put items back for me until I could check them.

I am off to the Charlotte ANA convention in a few hours. I hope to have some adventures to report either while there or next week in this space.

Editorial

The person who filed the ?complaint? about the auction. Yes, you are sometimes in jeopardy of having your letter published even when you do not intend for it to be published. I do not think that I have ever published a letter when it was specifically requested not to be, but all others are subject to publication. I am sure that it is obvious that we select letters for publication because we feel that they will provide something positive to the Gram. This might just be an opposing or humorous view of something. In this case, I felt that the first letter did several important things. First, it allowed for explanations etc. of something that had bothered a Gramster. It is far better to air something like that than to error by not publishing it.

I like to believe that I am sensitive enough to recognize when identification of the writer is unnecessary and potentially undesirable, but if you think that there might be any doubt and wish to remain anonymous, please be sure to make this clear.

Finally, your letters are subject to editing. This might be for clarity, length, or possibly even whim. Indeed the letter about the auction below had one point removed that did not seem to contribute to the point at this time. I might also point out that in this particular case, I would have been less likely to remove the point if the identity had been divulged.

I look forward to your comments on these editorial policies (remember, I am an easy target!)

Aside to Joe Boling, have fun at the ANA, we hope for some news reports from the show.

Fred

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

Please help with a challenge coin question. Marcus's article about a stranger making a challenge to Wendell prompted this request. I was recently challenged and lost the challenge as my challenger had never heard of any 'Two Step' rule. I recall there was a two step rule that afforded the challenged to take up to two steps to retrieve his challenge coin. Is this a valid rule or is it something made up? I'm sure I heard this at a prior Fest. Looking for clarification. Thanks

Dick Freyser

Editor,

In reference to Harold's fine article on auctions let me concur with his well deserved congratulations to both Larry and Phil for the efforts they put in this years auction as well as in past years. While giving congratulations, lets not forget Harold for all his great efforts as well. If not for him we most likely would not have all the Souvenir Cards.

I still do not wish to be identified by those that do not know that I am the one who wrote of my 'serious complaint' about the auction so editor please do not identify this writer if it's published. First let me say, I wrote this and mailed it on the complaint 'Disposition Form' supplied in our Fest packet (Festers know which form I'm speaking of, the one where the second half of the form already has an answer to your complaint. I don't have one in front of me but it's something along the line 'Complaint Denied').

I did not intend for this to be published. I was just voicing my minor (minor now, but a little more than that at the time) displeasure of one lot being lost by me. Fred was kind enough to give me a heads up that he planned on publishing it in a Gram and gave me an opportunity to comment further. I did not object to it's publishing but why my additional comments never were published only the editor knows (DIDN'T I READ SOMETHING IN GRAM 874 ABOUT A NUMBER OF COMMENTS BEING SENT TO THE GRAM NEVER BEING PUBLISHED? I'M SURE THERE ARE SEVERAL OF US THAT CAN SAY THE SAME. BUT ISN'T THAT THE EDITORS JOB?) The main thing I wanted to express was that this was nothing more than a hiccup. I mentioned to Fred that I wish I had not written the complaint. One reason, I did not want it to cast any doubt on the absolutely fantastic time I had at the Fest. Although it was serious in a sense, I was unhappy about the way I lost an auction lot. It was written on the humorous complaint form to try to keep it in that vane. It did serve a good purpose in that I now understand why there were a few auction lots returned. I didn't understand what was happening and in my letter that was not intended as a complaint but more of an observance. Now that I fully understand it, I kinda like the idea. I totally agree with Harold's article and I'm pleased that he seems to agree with my point:

If for some reason the auctioneer misses a bid and calls the item sold in the case of a late or slow bid when a bidder decides to raise his/her bid card or hand when the auctioneer is saying sold, the usual sold call stands and the bidder is reminded to get the hand or bid card in the air so it can be seen.

Finally, make no mistake, I fully intend to continue to participate in all Fest auctions without any hesitation. The auctions are without a doubt one of the many great events held at MPC Fest. Thanks for allowing me to say a little more about this.

Name Withheld.

Dear Judy,
Thank you for writing again.

Scholarship Deadline

Tomorrow is the last opportunity to apply for a special scholarship for the ANA military money scholarship. According to project coordinator Marcus Turner applications will be considered promptly after the deadline.

Fellow MPC and PSYOPS troopers:

By John Cheney

This is the story of The Vietnam, Project at Texas Tech University. The Texas Tech representative Steve Maxner was kind enough to join our PSYOP (Psychological Operations) Reunion Group at our last meeting in Maryland summer of 2002. We meet every two years to discuss the current state of PSYOPS and the services efforts in that area. The next meet will be at Ft. Bragg, N.C. home of the 4th PSYOP Group (One of the units I served with in Vietnam) in year 2003. The Reunion Group is donating its collection of PSYOP material from Vietnam forward to Bosnia to the 4th PSYOP GP museum.

I donated some of my collection to the PSYOP Reunion Group and the bulk of it to Texas Tech University. Mr. David E. Seelye was kind enough to estimate the value of my collection at over $10,000. It contained the following and more:

American leaflets, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong leaflets, reports, administrative documents, issues of the Vietnam Observer, Vietnamese and English language newspapers, maps, Vietnam, Bosnian and South American maps as well.

You can access this material and others donated to the project at: <http://www.lib.ttu.edu/vietnam> The Vietnam Archive at Texas Tech University:
?Collects all documents and memorabilia related to the Wars in Southeast Asia and the collective experiences of those affected by the wars; preserves this archival material in a state-of-the-art facility located on the campus of Texas Tech University; encourages the dissemination of information from the archive to all who are interested in learning more about this critical time in the a United States and world history; promotes the study and understanding of the Wars in Southeast Asia.

The Oral History Project

?Preserves the recollections, perceptions, and perspectives of individuals who participated in the events surrounding the Wars in Southeast Asia through recorded interviews.

To facilitate the collection of recorded interviews, The Vietnam Archive has a fulltime Oral Historian who conducts interviews with veterans and others whose lives paralleled the Wars in Southeast Asia. Interviews are recorded using digital equipment and are conducted in person, over the phone, or over the Internet depending on the individual needs of the participant.

The Oral History Project helps create a more complete record of the American experience in Southeast Asia by adding recorded personal recollections to the documents, photographs, slides, maps, periodicals, books and other materials collected by the archive. The recollections, perspectives and perceptions of men and women a\who served in Southeast Asia, or were active on the home front, are an invaluable resource for present and future students and scholars.

The GUIDE

The Guide to the Holdings of the Vietnam Archive contains a list of the interviews and other material and is available, free of charge, to any individual interested in learning more about the Archive's holdings. More detailed information on many of the interviews and collections, including transcripts of interviews, finding aids, and inventories for most of the collections can be found online at the Vietnam Archive at Texas Tech University, web site.

Editorial

Today is an important day. It is the last day to submit an application for a scholarship to the military money seminar. Ok, I guess that the deadline is actually tomorrow, but no matter how you look at it, time is short. Unofficially, I hear that there are about 7 applications. That is wonderful. Before the Fest, I think that there were not applications! Heck, the seminar is not all that far away! I have some ideas for this year. I guess that we have to have some new ideas because we have the added advanced class.

In spite of having some ideas, we can use some more so if you have some thoughts, please send them.

Fred

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor

Please sign up John V. Craig of Pallmetto,Fl for MPCFEST V.

David

Dear David,
Great job, Welcome John,

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,
PK 6 asked if some JIM was printed after the war. Yes, it was printed in Indonesia by those fighting the Dutch for independence. I am not sure about other places, but in Indonesia it was printed, then overprinted by the various Indonesian forces.

Brian Giese broke a finger in an elevator at the Chicago Show while holding the door open for someone? I would love to see this good looking woman because he let an elevator door almost take off my foot at Memphis. Only kidding.

I know he is not eligible for the Purple Heart, but could you see that he at least gets the Purple Finger! He is one of the good guys in numismatics and deserves an award, but please do not tell him that I said that.

Series 004 - Number 877 Thursday March 20, 2003

See You in Charlotte

By Howard A Daniel III

Please remind everyone who lives close to Charlotte, NC, and/or will be attending the show to visit me at the NI/NBS/IBNS club table 1312. I am located right to the left of the main entrance to the bourse. I have a bunch of Philippines material on display (not for sale) to publicize the Philippine Collectors Forum (PCF) at the ANA Convention in Baltimore on August 1. If anyone has MPC or other military "stuff" from the Philippines, please bring it to the PCF for show and tell, and to update the major catalogs if it is not cataloged.

I will be moderating an Numismatics International (NI) (world coins, tokens, etc.) meeting at 11AM on Saturday here in Charlotte in room 216B, then one for the International Bank Note Society (IBNS) (paper financial instruments of all kinds) at noon in the same room. Please bring a nice piece to these meetings for show and tell. That is all for now. I want to see Gramsters here in Charlotte!

The first ever (official) Bank Note Reporter MPC issue is on the street. We have not seen a copy here at headquarters (always the last to get the word), but we have received some feedback that it is being well received. Of course we look forward to its arrival (as we do every month to the arrival of the BNR). Heck, I am looking forward to the arrival of the second special MPC issue in 2004! We will no doubt comment when it does arrive, but we would love to have your comments too!

Finally, if you do not subscribe to the Bank Note Repoter. Now is the time! We have not financial connections with the paper (other than customers of each other), but we whole heartedly recommend it to all Gramsters. Go to www.Krause.com.

=====

Dear Editor

Regarding the Advanced Class of the Summer Seminar, I propose - without coordinating this with any of the other advanced students of course - that they outbrief the results of their research during the Thursday afternoon session. Also, to tie into Warner's idea of having a talk at the Colorado Springs Coin Show, if a few advanced students were still around on Saturday, they would give the same talk there.

Cheers,
Sparky

Dear Sparky,

Yes, you are correct about the beefing of other students based upon individual research. That is an essential. The coin show idea might get involved with the previously mentioned minifest. Lots more thought needs to be given to these ideas.

See You in Charlotte

By Howard A Daniel III

Please remind everyone who lives close to Charlotte, NC, and/or will be attending the show to visit me at the NI/NBS/IBNS club table 1312. I am located right to the left of the main entrance to the bourse. I have a bunch of Philippines material on display (not for sale) to publicize the Philippine Collectors Forum (PCF) at the ANA Convention in Baltimore on August 1. If anyone has MPC or other military "stuff" from the Philippines, please bring it to the PCF for show and tell, and to update the major catalogs if it is not cataloged.

I will be moderating an Numismatics International (NI) (world coins, tokens, etc.) meeting at 11AM on Saturday here in Charlotte in room 216B, then one for the International Bank Note Society (IBNS) (paper financial instruments of all kinds) at noon in the same room. Please bring a nice piece to these meetings for show and tell. That is all for now. I want to see Gramsters here in Charlotte!

The first ever (official) Bank Note Reporter MPC issue is on the street. We have not seen a copy here at headquarters (always the last to get the word), but we have received some feedback that it is being well received. Of course we look forward to its arrival (as we do every month to the arrival of the BNR). Heck, I am looking forward to the arrival of the second special MPC issue in 2004! We will no doubt comment when it does arrive, but we would love to have your comments too!

Finally, if you do not subscribe to the Bank Note Repoter. Now is the time! We have not financial connections with the paper (other than customers of each other), but we whole heartedly recommend it to all Gramsters. Go to www.Krause.com.

=====

Dear Editor

Regarding the Advanced Class of the Summer Seminar, I propose - without coordinating this with any of the other advanced students of course - that they outbrief the results of their research during the Thursday afternoon session. Also, to tie into Warner's idea of having a talk at the Colorado Springs Coin Show, if a few advanced students were still around on Saturday, they would give the same talk there.

Cheers,
Sparky

Dear Sparky,

Yes, you are correct about the beefing of other students based upon individual research. That is an essential. The coin show idea might get involved with the previously mentioned minifest. Lots more thought needs to be given to these ideas.

Series 691 and 701 to Destruction?

Destruction of MPC Series 691 and 701 has been going on at Anniston Arsenal, Anniston, Alabama for a few weeks or months. This information became available to collectors when news reports to this effect appeared in the local Anniston news paper and on CNN television.

Since the destruction became public knowledge, a controversy has developed about the desirability of the destruction. Unconfirmed and very recent reports indicate that the destruction has stopped, but this is unconfirmed and no additional information about final disposition are available.

The remainder of this Gram is basically a discussion of this matter.

=====

Editorial

Basically the above story about the destruction of MPC Series 691 and 701 appears in the April special MPC issue of the Bank Note Reporter.

I first learned of the destruction a few weeks before the Fest when Gramsters forwarded comments about the newspaper and CNN stories to the Gram.

Of course I was interested. I talked to one other collector who had also been notified because of the story in the Anniston paper. I knew that I should do two things about this news: 1) I should peruse finding additional information about the reports, and 2) I should write a story about it for the Gram.

Basically, I did neither. It was a critical time for me. Judy had just finished two months of illness; CPMX and MPCFest were bearing down on me.

The items that I had received were not suitable for cutting and placing in the Gram as news. In order to do it right, I had to do some work. Even if I had the facts (which I did not), I would have to spend some real time working on the story so I procrastinated.

After the Fest, two interesting things happened. I had to rush to prepare items for publication in the first ever special MPC issue of the Bank Note Reporter. I was contacted by government employees about the matter of the 691s and 701s being held and potentially destroyed. It seemed to me that it was reasonable and appropriate to run this news item in the Bank Note Reporter rather than first in the Gram because of the very special timing of the first ever MPC issue. I also felt, that for the first time I had something to report that was not better known and reported by other collectors.

My decisions seem to have created a firestorm of criticism directed at me. The criticism seems to be based upon two things. The first is that I could or should have made a report in the Gram (or at the Fest) about this. Guilty. I hope that the above discussion helps explain that. I also need to point out that other collectors who knew more than I about this elected not to write anything for the Gram about it.

The other criticism seems to be that my position that the notes should not be destroyed is wrong and is to the detriment of the hobby. This criticism is much harder for me to understand. I do understand that those of us (self included), who have sets probably believe that it is in our financial best interests to have the balance of government stocks destroyed. That I can and do understand even though I do not completely agree with it.

There are many reasons that I would like to see the destructions stopped and the notes saved. I would like to verify the sheet layout of the second printing high values. I would like to track the serial numbers of replacements in bundles (in relation to the adjacent regular issues). I would like to study the packaging verifying the statements that Marcus Turner has made about this aspect. I look forward to reconstructing sheets (at least trying to). I would like to learn the answers to questions that I did not know that I had! Yes, I would like to see (and possibly own) errors, replacements, low numbers, matched sets, crates, boxes labels and other things.

I can guarantee that release of the stocks will not wreck the MPC hobby. I guarantee it. The release may well change the hobby, but it will not wreck it.

Collectors who have sets now probably will lose some value (although this is uncertain since we do not know just what is in the hoard). On the other hand, these same collectors probably would have the opportunity to see, own and enjoy many additional notes. They probably could own entire boxes of notes and give them away to interested parties. The notes might wind up being given away as premiums to millions of people who attend a movie about Vietnam. Heck, these that are given away might be overprinted with advertising about the movie and become collectable items in the decades ahead. Millions of notes might be distributed to schools as part of a history curriculum. We might be able to build a bunker out of MPC boxes in a Vietnam (Korea) reenactment.

Yes, notes would become very common (cheap). That is the nature of hoards. Other consequences are far less certain. I hope that one of the consequences is a lively discussion here in the Gram.

Hello Ed,
Thanks for writing. By now you know that this issue of the Gram centers on the matter of 691 and 701 destruction. Here is an interesting twist. Your statement about 63 vs 70 million notes was not known to me until your letter. It seems to me that someone else was withholding that information!

Controversy Swirls about 691/701s

The brief story in Gram 779 and the April Bank Note Reporter has generated emotional responses from many collectors. The positions are extremely varied. The remainder of this Gram is dedicated to this topic. Additional comments will be very welcome.

Editorial

Because of the excitement about series 691 and 701, I thought that I should check to see what we said about the destruction of these in the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates. I found the subject addressed in two places. Marcus Turner discusses these issues in his Adventures in Collecting article on pages 146-148. His very last phrase of the article is telling: ?the remaining notes are supposedly intact.

The other place where the status of remaining stocks is mentioned is in the catalog section. There the comments are sparse. We state that the first printings were destroyed after they were determined to be unfit. For the second printing of 691 we say that the balance may have been destroyed. For series 701 we say that the first printing was destroyed after being determined to be unfit.

I guess that this is about as accurate and complete as we could have written in 2001.

Since then we have learned some other things. We knew that some significant quantity remained because a collector reported in the Gram seeing the crates moved from Fort Harrison.

Mister Editor,

A little discussion on the destruction of the 691 & 701 series of MPC.

I, for one don't own a set or even a single note from either of these un-issued series. But being a ragpicker, I certainly would like to.

As with other government operations, nothing you or any one else has to say about it, they ( Government) are going to do what ever makes the least amount of sense.

Case in point, as I am sure you are aware, a few years ago, our government destroyed several million of the series 1966 and 1966 A $ 100.00 notes. They didn't ask me if this was OK and went against my wishes, and shredded every one of them. Of course, you can still find one if you want, at a some what inflated price.

If the Fed would have just opened the vaults and sold these notes to the collecting public at only a few dollars above face value, they could have made a very hefty profit. But NO!!!

That would make to much sense.

SSDD, Same Situation, Different Day.

Lord help us.

Jack H.

Dear Editor,

The gram is a very unique and serving tool that assists all of us. I am beside myself as I read the attacks and grumbles of the readers of this tool that benefits us all. This type of insult must get discouraging? I my self am in the market right now for several of the notes that are possibly being destroyed. But even as I have been shopping around not one person has pressured me to buy or to my knowledge concealed anything to the contrary? But as I read this issue of the gram I cant help but to consider the countless thankless hours that you and your support staff have put in to keeping us all in the loop, let alone all that you have done for my favorite pastime(MPC) saving me and others countless hours of study and agonizing research. Please don't allow this barrage of ignorance to discourage you from all that you have done and are doing. We are all human and we all have our own issues to deal with and in time will make mistakes. Did anyone forget that this publication is FREE! when you start paying for your gram you have the right to dictate what's in it by not buying it or voicing opinions that matter! But when a group of people make oversight to certain issues for what ever reason it is not our job to be the captains of the MPC world and make criticism of their thankless efforts! I cannot imagine the sacrifices that all of you have made of time and money. Any information that you have passed on through the greatness of our gram is reason for thankful opinions not insults. I am sorry that these weak insults have come your way. I commend all of you that VOLUNTEER your time to keep us all informed if and when possible. For those that feel that its their job to insult you, I say let them start making a gram and see the sacrifices of time and resources that it must take to put this FREE informational tool that we all enjoy. So my hats off to all of you and your staff of volunteers and thank you very much for all and any efforts that you guys poor into this very unique and successful newsletter that we call our Gram

I am a Gramster and proud.

Kevin

Dear Kevin,

I will address the financial issues of a free Gram soon. Thank you for bringing up this mater.

Editor

Hello Gramsters! [two letters combined]

Re: 691 /701 notes..... I was led to believe that these sets and singles were to be destroyed! I have spent several thousand dollars on replacements as well as first printing and second printing sets, and extras! IF these were released it would be a "stab in the back" to all the MPC collectors who bought them in good faith!!! Based on the fact that there destruction was forthcoming. I can only see one possible way they could be released as a "worst case scenario," that would be to PUNCH CANCEL them!!!! But I still am against this! Look how worthless the British military certificates became! Nobody even looks at those in junk boxes! Also, I just bought a "replacement" 691 $1, for quite a bit last week!! I feel betrayed not being informed that "anyone" would stop destruction, let alone not "warn" our community especially at the "Fest" even though I wasn't there. This MPC collecting community is "too small" Tens of thousands of dollars would be lost by this move to make "who" so happy!!! The government, or "Fred's information survey?" He will find the information if it's that important! The 63,000,000 notes, where are the collectors?? Bad move and I think they should BE DESTROYED or at least destroyed with some being CANCELED and perhaps sold, this would prevent total financial destruction of our fellow MPC collectors who bought sets and singles (uncanceled!)! Where is your loyalty???

Was there a Gram # 878?? If so could you please resend it? If not did it contain info on news about the #691 /701 destruction story???

Last received Gram #877. I have 20K invested in what was suppose to be "donated To the S.O.S. $2000 per set! (50 only?) (paid much more!!!!)??

This is/WAS the ONLY reason ANYONE would gamble and BUY such sets!!!! How can you say, "lets 'NOT' destroy" them NOW and make them totally WORTHLESS!!! Are you crazy????? And without a vote from the MPC community as to how and why if any reason they should be prevented from destruction!!! What about selling a handful of canceled sets at a modest price for the masses!!

THIS would still allow the other 62.9 MILLION to be destroyed! There is no reason to save that MANY!!!!..... Gone too far Fred!!!! Your loving follower..

Guy M. Araby 40 years a collector and dealer!

Dear Editor,

I don't want to overstate it, but I am very disappointed in your failure to share the information about Series 691/701 with the rest of us in a timely manner. I have been researching this very issue for over a year, and if I had found out any of this information, I certainly would have shared it with my fellow Gramsters. I do have several letters and memoranda related to this subject from the late 1990's, which I will send to you for a postmortem.

David Klinger

Dear Editor,

I agree with your position regarding the description of these notes. As far as what you knew and when you knew it, I accept your explanation regarding your decision to keep it to yourself for a while. Rumors are too difficult to stop when the information to squelch them is incomplete. Easier to stop a rumor before it starts than after, anyway...

Having said that, I do agree that those who have expended considerable sums for the privilege of being the first to own an item will yelp a lot when suddenly many more of that item become available. However, it should be apparent that any 'scarcity' of these items had to be known to be artificial. When I first heard of the existence of these notes, I was led to believe that the notes then available were ALL that existed, that the remainder had ALREADY been destroyed.

I do not accuse the initial distributors of these items of evil intent for I believe they thought this initial information was correct. As stated by a US General today regarding the Iraqi Liberation, "The first report is usually wrong."

Your ideas regarding their eventual distribution are in line with my own thoughts. I remember when bags of 1904-0 dollars were released in the 1960's. The holders of the few of these that had been distributed in the years between 1904 and the early '60's were outraged; however, has the Silver Dollar market crumbled?? No, it hasn't. Why should one want to collect something impossible to obtain? There has to be a sufficient supply of a commodity so that the collector will feel able to obtain an item or else the interest evaporates. A case in point are the Official Bicentennial medals in precious metals, too few for interest in things as significant as the commem coins for the Pan Pacific Expo of 1915. The mintages are similar be 'way less "valuable"...

Any way, jusy my $0.02 worth.

Oh, BTW, wha' happen to #878??

Jay in Garrison, TX

Dear Editor,

If you (or anyone) were able to stop the destruction, bravo. I think that it is a great and important development.

Phil

I sent in a letter verifying that I had seen a report on television concerning the destruction? Why was that report never published or at least discussed?

I can always use my set as toilet paper.

Thanks for nothin Fred

Tim

Dear Tim,

Thanks for writing (both times). I am sorry that I let you down. After receiving your first letter (and some others), I wanted to research the item by seeing the news item (and other things too), but still have not gotten that done.

Fred

I have read the comments regarding the destruction Series 691 and 701 MPC. I have to agree with you. All collectors know that hoards are a part of the business. I have little sympathy for those who may have purchased these notes at high prices especially when most knew the government was still holding millions of the notes. A true collector should be upset about the destruction of any collectible. Those who decry the halting of the destruction of the government's stock of notes are merely lashing out because their own commercial expectations may not be realized. Their attitude is simply "I paid a lot of money for mine and I'm going to make sure everyone else does, too." Anyone who maintains such sentiments has lost touch completely with what it means to be a collector. At the same time, I do not believe that the collector market should have any bearing on whether the government destroys the notes, continues to store them, or makes them available to the public; although I recognize that without the collectors market, the last option would be a moot point.

Dear Editor,

I am not in tune with the powers that be to know who knew what when on this issue [691/701]; however, I think you are taking a lot of undeserved heat. If things are as you described them and there were many others who knew of this matter, they were just as derelict in not bringing it to light. Those who criticize your not having raised the issue are likely the same people who are critical of your position regarding the notes' destruction. I believe they remained silent to ensure the notes' destruction by preventing the general collecting community from not pressuring the government to do otherwise. If the debate is merely one of destruction vs. preservation, they are certainly entitled to their opinion as you and I are to ours. I would trust that both sides of this debate would see it for the disagreement in philosophy that it is and nothing more. Those that criticize your silence are misguided since bringing the issue to public attention would likely have produced the same result at an earlier time. I suspect their motivation for the public criticism of you is to point fingers and make sure that the world knows who may be responsible for diminishing the value of their collections in order to pressure you to change your position. It will be a great loss to the collecting community as a whole for you to do so. Please run this letter in its entirety.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 881 Tuesday March 25, 2003

The U.S. Cavalry Museum

By Howard A. Daniel III

Edward A. Mueller reviewed "The Fort Riley Sesquicentennial 2003 Calendar" in the December 2002 issue of the Army magazine, which is published by the Association of the U.S. Army. The "calendar" is a history of the Fort with 30 pages in it, so it more a booklet than a calendar. I was speed reading through the review and expected to go through it without stopping, but my eyes caught "payroll". The sentence is "the fact that the first set of officers' quarters at Fort Riley (1855) had built-in payroll safes."

But the review had something worthwhile for Gramsters because I think the U.S. Cavalry Museum at the fort probably has some information and pieces of interest to them at it. Who lives near Fort Riley and can see what they have there? The museum is sponsored by the U.S. Cavalry Association and you can reach them at P.O. Box 2325 , Fort Riley, KS 66442-0325; 785-784-5797; or www.uscavalry.org to make an appointment. The calendars are $14.95 plus $3.00 if you want one, but you will have to contact LJack@networksplus.net (Jack Lowell) for it.

Report on Charlotte

By Joe Boling

As usual, there were precious few world paper dealers at the Charlotte ANA event, and one of the ones who did come seemed not to be interested in selling what he had (apparently he thought had bigger fish to fry, though I never saw anyone who came to his table getting any attention from him--then he pulled out Saturday night, after telling me to come back Sunday (the third time he had put me off).

Leo May was prominent on the corner just before the food concessions--all he had to do was keep people from spilling their drinks all over his stock as they returned with their food and stopped to kibitz. Although he hailed me several times to show me one treasure after another, all I bought from him was a Series 1943 AMC 2-lire note with serial number A33888888A--for a pittance of $4. Elsewhere on the floor I spent over $1500 for items to go into my specialty collection, only one of which was a matching piece for one already owned (a Confederate $100 of 1861). Absent were Lyn Knight, Mel Steinberg, David Seelye, CAA (though Len Glazer was at the Heritage table, I did not see any notes), Lowell Horwedel, Len Harsel, Bill Henderson, Leon Thornton, Jim Warmus, and many others whom we habitually see at paper money shows. Present were Tom Denly, Harry Jones, Dave Berg, River Hollow, the Kagins, and a few others with primarily US paper (Denly still has a good stock of world).

Howard Daniel was holding court on the club midway, which was before one entered the bourse, so it was easy to steer novices to him or to John Parker at the SPMC/SCCS table to have their paper offerings looked over before directing them to an appropriate dealer on the floor. Ditto for any world coins. Quite a few "general public" walked up to the exhibit chairman or me, tabulating scores nearby as chief judge, to inquire about where they might take their little hoards and groupings. Howard ran meetings of the Numismatic Bibliomania Society (the best-attended of his three meetings), Numismatics International, and the IBNS (the least well-attended meeting, with a total of four). I could not attend any of these because I was tied up as chief judge all day Saturday.

There were 38 competitive exhibits from 29 exhibitors, more than double the loads for the previous conventions with competition (those numbers were 10/10 and 17/11 in 2001 and 2002). None of the winning exhibits was a paper money display, though one got a lot of laughs. John Parker had not printed out his text and labels before coming to the show, bringing instead a portable printer of some sort. It choked on the paper he was feeding it and froze up, leaving him with 1.5 pages of text (the last badly mishandled by the printer), and no captions. Kinko's was unable to read his file. He hand-lettered a brief explanation and placed it with the floppy disc containing his exhibit into his last case. The exhibit was a stunner, consisting of security printer advertising materials showing their capabilities. He promises to have it in better condition for Memphis.

Word of warning to exhibitors--label your copies. All it takes is a one-line sentence saying that the backs of the notes shown are photocopies, or that the notes in cases x and y are replicas, or some such wording, to avoid being disqualified.

I had only one apprentice taking the judge's certification program, so I was able to see three plays while there. Two were within walking distance and the third was at a college twenty miles north of town, for which Howard Daniel graciously loaned his Honda CRV (even though I chided him for buying it a few years ago, because Consumer Reports had found some objectionable handling characteristics during their testing).

I did not have the impression that it was a busy show. ANA says 5000 people came (but they also claimed 700 dealers--they must be counting every sub-sub-junior table hack that the big boys brought--most of the tables I visited did not have even a second person for coverage).

Next spring is Portland--y'all come.

When the talk about the 691/701 hoard started, I had a bunch topics for discussion here. I even had written some or possibly all of them down, but now (of course), I cannot find the list.

Oh well. I saw Olier North (of Contra fame) on cable a few nights ago. The talked about short snorters even though he did not use the term. He was (is I assume) in Iraq. He described the leaflet campaign then mentioned that some troopers had asked him to autograph some of the leaflets. Sounds like a short snorter to me.

Dear Editor,

I have a friend that works at Anniston Army Depot. emailed him tonight to find out any info that he is able to divulge. Will let you know
Steve Payne

Dear Steve,

Thanks. We look forward to any news.

Editor

Dear Fred & Gramsters,

I've been in this hobby for way too long now and I can tell a few stories myself of paying deeply for certain items for my various collections over the years that can be bought for peanuts now - which I do buy when I can add interesting varieties to those original "treasure chest" items. This is offset by other purchases I have made that have increased considerably in value over the past few decades. It all comes down to fate, part of being a serious collector and not knowing in the least what will happen in our uncontrolled marketplace tomorrow. I always refer to it as an educational experience, sometimes rather costly indeed.

Cheers,
Colin

P.S. 4 grams received since just past noon yesterday.

Dear Colin,
No charge for the extra Grams.
Editor

Dear Editor,
I bought some stock in some tech companies. Everything was going OK until you started mucking around with your computer. This came to a head over the weekend when you violated the trust of so many other computer users. This morning the stock market crashed and I lost a ton of money on my tech stocks. What are you going to do about this?

A collector

Dear Gram,
My take on these two unissued "issues" have always been somewhat suspicious. At Memphis a couple years ago right after their "release" a collector (Dealer?) showed me a 691 $20.00 note, AND a Replacement note with matching Serial Numbers, except, of course, the replacement lacked the suffix "D". Right then I knew some had access to a huge quantity of these notes to be able to put together such a set.

Also initially I thought that all these notes would be confiscated. I was wrong and I think that says something about the government's lack of concern and the deterioration of the government. Think about it. If this would have happened 20, 30 years ago the Secret Service, FBI, the Pentagon, would be doing some serious investigating. And now for them to sell off more "legally" is, in my opinion, a sad state of affairs. The Mint and BEP are now in business selling collectibles that should never be. What would you think if they reprinted all the back issues of MPC and sold them to collectors. Just like when the Buffalo Dollars were sold out a couple years ago they were considering re-issuing them until a huge clamor erupted amongst the dealers and collecting community, and they decided not to.

I have been anti-Mint and anti-BEP for many years now. When they started setting up at shows selling everything from bags to coin jewelry I knew things were getting out of hand. What the hell is the mint doing selling coin jewelry and competing with free enterprise? Ever wonder how much it costs to send all those employees from the Mint or BEP to attend a major show, hotels, food, transportation? Hell I do not care how much they sell, I guarantee that they do not turn a profit after it's all over with. But, hey, the government can operate like that, they do not have to show a profit like a real business does.

Back to confiscation: How can a company paid to destroy government property (yes, even very sensitive material) get away with losing control and have these original notes being sold to the collector's market. And it does NOT impress me one iota that the proceeds all went to the USO or Red Cross. How many more is this individual sitting on? Over the last couple years since their "release" I have on several occasions obtained these notes in trade from individuals close to Mr. 691. What kind of deal is that?

Am I mad that these notes are out? No, not really, as I think they are really beautiful, but that does not change my mind about how they got out or that they should have been confiscated. Was it a good thing for MPC? Who knows, but it certainly upped the ante for completing a set of MPC.

Mike Cummings

Hello Gramsters!

I can't believe me eyes and ears! Why would anyone want to save "millions / 60+-!!!!!!millions!!" of notes, so the few dozen of collectors who couldn't afford them or didn't or wouldn't take the opportunity to buy them can have them for FREE! That's not right!!!! We were led to believe that these notes were on the chopping block!!!!!!! OTHERWISE NO ONE WOULD have spent $2000 originally, per set, or over $4000 on the secondary market! AND then the remainder sold to hundreds (the extra #691 $1, and $20!) of NEW collectors. The whole IDEA was to keep them a somewhat a SCARCE COLLECTABLE! AND NOT FREE TOILET PAPER! Even if 10,000 notes were saved, that would totally, destroy the FAITH I once had in future offerings because of so many LIES! This MPC collecting community is just a few hundred strong!! NO one else gives a "hoot" about MPC or saving them!! NOBODY! except some junk box stuffers! Stop this madness now! And VOTE for destruction or at least a minimum/ maximum of no more than a few thousand sets, "PUNCH CANCELED" to be sold with funds being donated to the RED CROSS or the U.S.O.! AS originally planned!! Don't destroy the faith and pocket books of "our MPC community! WHO DOES THIS SERVE! and APPEASE?? WHO????!! The "jealous", or cheap , who can't stand it that they don't have any thing invested in this and this is there FREE TICKET!!! BULL! Do the right thing!!! AND GET REAL! PROTECT OUR INVESTEMENT , this also could bring the whole MPC market into a tail spin as a result of this!

Guy M. Araby 40 years of experience in this business!!

First Distribution of 691/701

By David Seelye

In reply to Larry Gibbs' letter about a "select few," I beg to differ. When I heard about the availability of the sets they were specifically available to collectors. Dealers were specifically not invited to purchase sets. I sent the letter below to all on my mailing list.

I have some feedback that several collectors took advantage of this opportunity based upon my letter. Certainly, conditions have changed, but a large part of the community had a chance at the notes.

Dear Collector,

I am sending this letter to my MPC mailing list advising them of an opportunity to add to their collection. This is literally a once in a life-time deal. If you have read the June issue of Bank Note Reporter and the article by Marcus Turner starting on page 26, you know what I am talking about. For those of you who haven't read the article, you should go to the local coin shop and buy the issue.

The article deals with the information about the two series previously shrouded in mystery series 691 and 701. I'll not say more, the lengthy article is a gem. What is not stated in the article is that a total of 50 sets of notes will be made available to collectors at a cost of $2000.00. A set being 8 notes; 691 $1.00, $5.00, $10.00, $20.00; 701 $1.00, $5.00, $10.00, $20.00.

To order a set you should call Doug Bell at xxx-xxx-xxxx to reserve your set. Then send him a cashier check or a postal money order made out to either the RED CROSS or USO. That's right! The "Deep Throat" wants the money to go to charities that help servicemen! If you need a payment plan, call Doug and ask. I suggest that you call ASAP. I cannot stress enough the importance of this. There are a few 691 $1.00 and 691 $20.00 that are "extras." What their fate, cost etc., at this time I don't know. These are the facts as I know them today. This letter is written as a service to you, my customer. I wanted to make sure that you knew of this now, not in 3-4 weeks, when it was too late to act.

Any questions? Just give me a phone call, and I'll be happy to talk with you about these events.

Editorial

=====

My April Bank Note Reporter?the first ever special MPC issue?finally arrived. We did not get much in the way of front cover coverage, but we sure did get lots of space.

From memory let me see if I can remember the MPC items:

1. long letter from Carlson Chambliss analyzing MPC values.
2. 2. wonderful article by Marcus Turner introducing MPC collecting
3. article by me on the Fest with side bar stories on Boling receiving the MPC life time achievement award and Marcus Turner winning the national MPC collector championship
4. article by Pete Huntoon on the use of the Mt. Ranier vignette
5. article by Carlson Chambliss on Hawaii and North Africa notes
6. story by Schwan on the Mericle sale
7. substantial advertising.

8. ah yes, I nearly forgot the controversial story onf 691/701 destruction.

I would say that this is quite a wonderful issue and a good first attempt at an MPC issue. I am already looking forward to next year.

=====

Dear Editor:
I think David Klinger's finding of the internal memorandum from the General Counsel, Defense Finance and Accounting Service (DFAS), dated 15 July 1996, was great. Having some experience with DOD surplus property disposal, I found the process outlined to be quite logical.

What caught my eye was the last paragraph noting that "the regulations governing MPCs require that at least two reserve MPC series be maintained ....."In my research of the regulatory basis of MPC I have repeatedly asked this question and have received no answer to date.

W

Dear Editor,
I agree wholeheartedly with Mr. Hunter! If there is anyone out there who can't relate a story about getting in early and getting burnt it's because they just fell off the turnip truck! The 1996 memo says it all, now how to get it implemented?

Jack Glass

Dear Editor,
Re: 691/701 notes.... Funny, I had just sent a letter to the MPC Gram thanking all the Dealers for helping me achieve my complete collection of MPC's. All this in good faith, based on the fact that the 691/701 notes were all being destroyed and only 50 sets were being saved and sold.
I have invested a lot of money on the 691/701 notes and now you are telling me they soon will be worthless. I'm not very happy about this at all.
I also spent a lot of money on the 651 Fractional set. Next you will tell me there is a hoard on them and soon they also will be worthless.
So now my financial investment for my kids and grand-kids are now worthless -- Thanks a lot. I'm not a very happy gramster.
I have lost a lot of respect for MPC Dealers who just wanted to make a lot of money from us little guys.
Fred, you got to help do something about this. Help have the balance of the 691/701 stock destroyed . Don't wreck this hobby for us. Think of the loyal little investors.

The Wham Paymaster Robbery

By David Klinger

Last summer after the ANA seminar I took a side trip to Globe Arizona, on the Salt River to visit Theodore Roosevelt Dam, which had only recently been identified as the dam on the back design of the MPC series 692 $20 note. While in the visitor's center discussing this design, someone asked me if I had ever heard of the Army Paymaster robbery which occurred not too far from Globe in 1889. I had not, so I started my research on this very interesting and convoluted event. I then drove through the area where the robbery took place in the Gila Valley near Fort Thomas. The landscape in this entire area of Arizona reminded me of a John Wayne movie location. When I got home I found the Internet full of references to this story.

"The great Wham Paymaster Robbery has almost disappeared from the public mind, but it remains one of Arizona's great mysteries. Shortly after midday on May 11, 1889, a band of robbers ambushed U.S. army Paymaster Maj. Joseph Washington Wham (pronounced Wham, as in bomb) and his military escort along the Fort Grant-Fort Thomas Road about fifteen miles west of Pima in the Gila River Valley. Following a hard-fought gun battle, the bandits made off with more than $28,000 in gold and silver coins. The daring robbery and the subsequent trail of suspects in the heist created a sensation throughout the Southwest. Questions of guilt and innocence, and of what happened to the money, still linger more than a century later."

The above quotation is from an article by Larry Upton: "Who Robbed Major Wham?", The Journal of Arizona History. The remainder of this article was drawn from various web sites and from the book: Ambush at Bloody Run: The Wham Paymaster Robbery of 1889 - A Story of Politics, Religion, Race, and Banditry in Arizona Territory, by Larry Ball

"He was on his way to pay the men at Fort Thomas, Camp San Carlos, and Fort Apache. Wham, William Gibbon, his clerk, and Pvt. Caldwell, his servant and mule tender, rode in a dougherty, a canopied ambulance, driven by Pvt. Hamilton Lewis, 24th Infantry. The payroll, exactly $28,345.10, in gold and silver coins weighing about 250 pounds, was locked in an oak strongbox and stowed in the ambulance. The remainder of the escort, occupied an open wagon driven by Charles Mermairt, a civilian employee of the Quartermaster Dept. James LaRoy Saline, a civilian teamster, and a Mormon from Pima, was originally scheduled to drive the escort wagon. For reasons that have never been explained, Mermairt replaced him at the last minute. Sgt. Brown and Cpl. Mays were armed with .38 caliber revolvers, while the two cavalymen held carbines and the seven infantrymen carried single-shot Springfield rifles. Wham, Gibbon, and the two drivers were unarmed." The 24th Infantry was the famous unit of black soldiers called the Buffalo Soldiers.

"As the wagons rolled out, Frankie Campbell, a black female gambler mounted on a big bay horse, joined them. Wearing a bright yellow, tight-waisted blouse, a billowing wine-colored skirt, and a large floppy straw hat decorated with a red paper rose and red velvet streamers, she was headed to Ft. Thomas so she could be on hand when the soldiers got paid."

"Major Joseph Wham and his escort were attacked by a dozen outlaws near Fort Thomas, Arizona Territory. After wounding more than half the soldiers and driving off the rest, the outlaws simply walked away with the entire payroll. A posse of lawmen rounded up various suspects who were later charged with the sensational robbery. Most of these suspects were Mormons with political connections and the accused men were defended by the famed lawyer Marcus Aurelius Smith. Major Wham and his men were unable to identify any of the dozen defendants in court and they were all acquitted. It was widely claimed that political pressure from the acting governor allowed the thieves to go free." It has been said that Frankie Cambell saw the faces of some of the robbers but was never called to testify at the trial.

In reporting the robbery to the Secretary of War, Major Wham described how his "party was ambushed and fired into by a number of armed brigands" The major stated that a large boulder weighing several tons had been rolled onto the road by the robbers to block the progress of his small convoy and that as his escort was making ready to remove it "a signal shot was fired from the ledge of rocks about fifty feet above to the right, which was instantly followed by a volley, believed by myself and the entire party to be fifteen or twenty shots. The officer reported that a sharp, short fight of more than 30 minutes followed, during which time 10 members of his escort, eight of whom were wounded, two being shot twice, behaved in the most courageous and heroic manner."

Two of the Buffalo Soldiers were awarded the Medal of Honor for their part in the skirmish. Major Wham reported that Sergeant Benjamin Brown, made his entire fight from open ground. Brown's Medal of Honor citation reads in part that "although shot in the abdomen, he did not leave the field until again wounded through both arms." Corporal Isaiah Mays was also awarded the Medal of Honor. Near the end of the gun battle he, without the knowledge of Major Wham, "walked and crawled two miles to Cottonwood Ranch and gave the alarm." Marshal Meade swore, after conducting an extensive investigation, that "I am satisfied a braver or better defense could not have been made under like circumstances." A survey of the ambush site testified to the intensity of the battle. "Three mules, still in their traces, were dead; the others stampeded, and the harness cut into pieces. Along with the shattered strongbox, Wham's valise had been cut open. The valise containing the payroll vouchers was gone. Finally, the men rounded up four mules, spliced some harness together, and made their way to Fort Thomas. Sgt. Brown was left in the field with Frankie Campbell to nurse him, and brought in later."

There are many details of the event which are wrapped in folklore and legend, which makes it difficult to sort out fact from fiction. One of the best overall accounts, in my opinion, is by Larry Upton in a presentation he made to the Arizona Historical Society in 1999. It can be seen at the following web address:

<http://www.wham.org/UptonRob.htm>

When the members of the Mormon community were acquitted in the trial, others were accused through rumors, including off duty soldiers, other gangs around the West, and one reporter years later, claimed that Frank James admitted that he and his infamous brother Jesse committed the robbery. Of course, that was highly unlikely, since Jesse was killed nearly eight years earlier! But that did bring up an interesting aside for my research, since while running down that false report, I discovered that the James brothers were indeed involved in another Army Paymaster robbery. Phillip Steel wrote about it:

"On March 11, 1881, US. Army Engineer Paymaster Alexander G. Smith picked up the government payroll as usual at the Florence, Alabama, bank and started back to their camp on Bluewater Creek some 15 miles up the canal from Florence. He was approached by three men who were later identified as being Jesse James, who had been living in Nashville as John Davis Howard, Frank James, also living in Nashville under the name of Ben Woodson, and Wild Bill Ryan, who used the alias of Tom Hill. Drawing their guns, the party relieved Smith of his saddle bags, his personal watch, and $221 from his purse. The saddle bag contained $500 in gold, $4,500 in $50 bills, $20 bills, and smaller currency. They tied Smith and forced him to accompany them until midnight, at which time they returned his watch, overcoat, and $21 cash and then released him." On April 17, 1884, Frank was brought to Huntsville, Alabama, to stand trial for the paymaster robbery (Jesse was already dead). Frank James was found not guilty, although seven witnesses had positively identified him as being one of the three robbers. The concept of jury nullification has been around for a long time.

Back to the Wham affair, I think that they had the right men on trial for the Wham Payroll Robbery. Some locals were even said to refer to the robbers as "Latter-Day Robin Hoods" (interesting play on words). There is even an art connection. Frederick Remington, the famous artist of wild west scenes, painted a rendition of the Wham affair called: "Holding up the Pay Escort". It can be viewed at the following web page along with a picture of the men who were tried for the robbery:

<http://www.jtraintours.com/serv01.htm>

If this were a movie, the trailer might read:

Major Joseph Wham died on 21 December 1908, and is buried in Wham Hill Cemetery, Marion County, Illinois. The two Buffalo Soldiers who won Medals of Honor : Sgt. Benjamin Brown died on 5 SEP 1910 and is buried in Washington, DC; Pvt. Isaiah Mays lived until 2 MAY 1925, and is buried in Phoenix, AZ. Nobody knows what happened to Frankie Cambell.

Dear Editor,

At the summer seminar, please include asset allocation among the different series and denominations, market timing before the hoards, and tax implications of trades as collecting MPC is an investment and not a hobby.

Cheers,
Sparky

I was one that paid a good sum for the 651 Fractionals. Am I unhappy that the price has gone down? Yes, but that is part of the world of collecting. I have some other notes that have gone up much more to offset the down side of the 651s.

For the 691/701s...I was one of what I consider to be a lucky one to have purchased the notes for $2000. Yes, there were only supposed to be 50 sets but who knows, certainly not me. I did not consider it to be an investment as much as I did an addition to my collection. Someday I will probably sell the collection and hopefully make some money. I was part of the first 50 to buy the sets only because I was a very small part of the MPC community. At that time I had never spoken to Fred, Phil or anyone else. I hadn't even been to a Fest yet.

Am I concerned about a hoard of 651s showing up or of the non-destruction of the 691/701s? Not really. I am in the hobby for the fun of collecting and I very much enjoy the fellowship and friends I have made on the computer, phone and at the Fest.

Bill McNease

Hello Gramsters!

This [possibly release of 691/701 stocks] will not serve anyone in the MPC community! Everyone who bought these sets, were told that they were slated for destruction OTHERWISE nobody would have bought any! All value is based on "scarcity" There wont be any if these are released! By the millions to be sold on what?? "TV" for just $29 a set and then rip off the public!!! As tens of thousands of worthless sets come back into the coin stores, to dealers who will tell them there are millions and are worthless!.. Just remember the British Military certificates!!! THEY ARE TOTALLY WORTHLESS! AGAIN who does this make HAPPY???? Who are you saving these for???????? WHY does anyone WANT TO HURT the MPC COLLECTORS who trusted the "inside community" to handle this very problem!! Why now "RUIN" what has worked so well until now (a stable market for these)? Why is it that only THOSE who don't own sets "want to set them free" and those who "do" certainly don't! Let's just reprint all MPC and everyone can own a complete set for $29! I doubt if that Larry would go for that! Anyway common sense and forty years tells me this is the bad idea, serving "no one who is truly and MPC enthusiast!" It only would serve profiteers who DO NOT COLLECT or deal in MPC the most!! I can only RESTATE my last to Letters (arguments for there destruction!) I have seen this scenario before over and over again! This only hurts the integrity of those who "sold" these sets! And who perpetrated the "limited sale" of this whole sales campaign! I am shocked that anyone can't do the math! AT LEAST ADDRESS the CANCELATION concept of the "re-released" sets and this would appease everyone who owns sets LIKE 50 + sets at $4000++ each over $250,000 alone in sales to less than "200+-" deeply involved MPC collectors! I still say destruction is the best answer! And Fred should reconsider this concept as to what damage to his fellow collectors and NEW collectors who trusted his NEW BOOK! RARE!!! $3500! for first printing $5 #691 !!! etc per note! Next year! 5th edition!! #691 set! $1.00 each!! AND NO ONE WILL care "what" sheet position they are now! 'Cause they will be so "turned off" We would lose many new collectors! Again saving 10,000 or so sets and canceling them is an only realistic answer that "bests" serves the active collectors as well as the "novice adventurers" who want a "souvenir set" Please reconsider my arguments!! And "Fred" knows I have the "utmost respect" for him!! This is simply a debate on the issue! He is thinking of the "fun" of researching them rather than the financial effects of the whole mess! I am thinking of the WHOLE MPC MARKET!! as an investment and its effect on it's future! I will survive because this is only a fraction of my holdings! But why should I let this happen without a fight! I know I am RIGHT! Time will tell!! The Gram is in concrete for history to tell! Guy M. Araby!

Dear Editor,

About the argument on the destruction of MPC by the U.S. Government.

Just a comment on the concept of purchasing a rare item. Among my many military collections is a vast one of propaganda postcards. I have written about a dozen articles on them for various publications. Among the rarest is a group of "kriegspropaganda" that the Russians used against Germany during WWII. They were impossible to find for about 40 years. In the early 90s they started to come on the market and I bought something like 21 of them (catalogue price $1300) for about $800 each. I was damn happy. Then the Berlin Wall fell and the USSR went into the toilet. Some Russians came here with a supply of them (looted from their archives no doubt) and you could buy them from $300-500 each. My original source in England wrote me a very apologetic letter and actually asked if I felt that he had taken advantage of me? I replied that I was more than happy to pay the price at the time and he was not to blame for geophysical world politics. Hey, you spend your money and you take your chances.

On the same theme, the government does not guarantee you a profit. I am also a propaganda stamp collector with a prize-winning collection. In 1962 the government printed a Dag Hammarskjold stamp. There was an error sheet with inverted color. The owners of that sheet had an item worth maybe a half-million dollars. They foolishly announced their find. What did the government do? It printed a few million inverted stamps so that everyone could have the error. The original owners sued and lost. Moral? Nobody is guaranteed a big payday. Collecting MPC is like playing the stock market. They may go up for 50 years, but you have to be ready to lose it all tomorrow. There are no guarantees.

Herb Friedman

Dear Esteemed editor/battalion clerk/Fest host,
Re Fest V, have the dates been confirmed? and what are the costs ? Please advise so I can start saving up!

Thanks,

Roger Urce

Dear Roger,
Well, you might have offered an opportunity to either change the topic of controversy or to add a new one. After a discussion here in the Gram the Fest has been moved later in the season to April 23-25, 2004. Registration will probably be $148 barring any unforeseen defense appropriations.
Your reservation (below) was the first entered for 2004 so you better start your savings program.

Editor

Hi Fred:
Thanks for distributing the Vietnam token and price list at the FEST.
You are welcome to publish the list in the gram. Can provide an updated list via email attachment if you would like.
Glad to see the FEST changed to April. May try to make it in 2004.

Thanks,
ED

Dear Ed,
If you send the updated list via email, we will put it in the Gram. We would be excited to have you come to Fest V. May I put your name on the reservation list?

Editor

Dear Steamed Editor,
Where are the Grams? The last one I received was No. 867 on March 3- have they been published since? If so, it would be nice to see what's going on. Any help along these lines would be greatly appreciated.
Neil S.

Dear Neil,

Wow, it seems that the AOL gods must be interfering again. Drat. We will implement a contingency plan, but are not enthusiastic about the possibilities until AOL gets it house in order.

Editor

Dear Gramsters,

It was "investors" and not "collectors" who have destroyed coin collecting with their "slabbing" ect. Now we see the same thing creeping into currency collecting. MPC collecting should be a hobby first, and an investment second. What happened to the thrill of the search? Is it all only about money now? Guess I should start collecting match sticks or something that people can do for fun and education. It doesn't all have to be about money. I say release the 691/701 notes for all who want them to get them, not just those who could afford to buy some of the "stolen" few sets.

All of us paid into the tax pool that paid for their printing! Sorry David, have to disagree on this one.

Larry Gibbs

Dear Editor,

Does it bother anyone that on the FRONT PAGE of the Bank Note Reporter it says MPC DESTROYED? This is obviously problematic. What does the Bank Note Reporter think about this gross inaccuracy?

More on 692 $1 proof/test note

By George Fitzgerald

This is in response to Marcus Turner's comment on the 692 $1 MPC proof or Test notes, as Marcus calls them, in MPC gram 875. I purchased two of these 692 $1 MPCs at the Indiana State Coin Show in the early nineties; it might have been as late as 1995. I believe that I bought these from Tim Vest at $25 each. I have purchased several items from Tim over the years, mainly coins. I then bought a third one from another dealer at that same show for $30. I talked to Marvin Mericle about the pieces and he told me that he had one but wanted a second piece for collection. I told him that he could buy one for $30 but he stated he would only give me $25. I sold it to him for the $25 and I found later he sold it to Fred Schwan for several hundred, I believe that was several years after I sold it to him. I showed my pieces to Fred at the 1996 ANA and I could see the saliva coming out of Fred's mouth. This is why I think Marvin's sale was after my trade with Fred. We agreed to a trade for a 651 set of the minor pieces plus a lot more money. He wanted the piece then and I told him no until he came up with the 651 set. We made the trade in early 1997 and he gave me terms to pay for it over 5 months.

Marvin and I purchased a 651 10-cent piece in an auction several years ago. Later on I was offered a complete set but only purchased the 5, 25 and 50-cent notes for a complete collection. This time Marvin, myself and a third person from Fort Wayne, purchased those three pieces. This meant that Marvin and I owned 3/8 of the set and the third party owned 1/4 of the set. We offered the set to several collectors and dealers with no luck. I finally made a deal with another collector from Fort Wayne but he did not have the funds for the total price. I made a deal with him to take in several pieces in trade---a MPC replacement and another 692 $1 proof or test note MPC. This means that I had owned four different pieces of these proof or test notes. This fourth party had a second note and Marvin had a third note which was sold this year with his collection, this means I knew that there was at least 6 notes. This trade was difficult since I had to allow more in trade for the pieces then I wanted to give. Because of the problems in the trade with both partners and the fourth party, I felt that I had to offer Marvin the proof or test 692 $1 MPC for a nominal fee. Marvin did buy the note. It turned out that the MPC replacement has appreciated a great deal even though another one was found about the same time as the trade.

Editorial

I loved George's description of the deals on the 691 proof note. We all have lots of stories like that. Some of them are small victories, others are of opportunities missed, and even of deals gone very bad. I have told many of mine and will continue to do so, please share yours with us! We want to hear them all!

=====

Dear Editor,

Fred DOES give good advice!

Suggesting that AOL customers get a Yahoo freebie account for e-mail has kept me timely informed with the grams. Sometimes I get the gram both places, sometimes only Yahoo, BUT I do get them all now!

Thanks, Fred, for good advice!

Don

Dear Don,

Thanks for the praise, it seems that these days I need it! I must remind people that after they set up a non-AOL address, that they must subscribe to the Gram with that address. I may run your letter for several days because if AOL does not delivery this Gram, those readers will not receive your advice.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I wrote Fred earlier about this idea. Apparently is has been lost in the PCBH.

I don't think it would be too hard to set up a non-profit organization like the MPC Fest, Inc. or something like that.

The advantages would be that travel to the meetings would be tax deductible as would all contributions to the scholarship fund.

If this sounds of interest, lets talk.

Bill McNease

Dear Bill,

I certainly agree with the essence of your idea, especially as it relates to scholarships. However, it might just be easier to declare ourselves a religion! I believe that we already display many of the characteristics of a devoted congregation.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Since the media is always going for public opinion polls, why doesn't the MPCGram have a poll of subscribers on which side they take on the destruction of these two Series. Do you agree with selling the specimens (in some organized fashion) or destroy the total quantity?

Ron Waddell

Dear Ron,

I gotta admit I like the idea of a CNN-MPCGram poll! In fact Doug Bell has the ability to run these polls at papermoneyworld.net. Possibly he can run this question. Certainly we will run it as a news item if he is able to do that.

Editor

Dear Steamed (and pressed) Editor:

The 691/701 discussion certainly reach a new level of energy. Three great letters that deserve reinforcement. Colin calls this "an educational experience, sometimes rather costly indeed." A very balanced statement.

Mike Cummings very astutely observes that someone must have access to a large number of notes in order to assemble some of the sets of matching serial numbers, etc. The rest of his argument is equally compelling. This suggests the marketplace is not in possession of all the facts. With 20-20 hindsight I would never buy a stock based on these facts (and lack thereof).

Another opinion is expressed by Guy who says we must "protect our investments". Anyone want to buy tulips from Holland?

In the interest of full disclosure (a unique concept in this discussion), I bought some of these notes and I must admit, as Harold Kroll says, nobody held a gun to my head.

To Destroy or Not Destroy

Papermoneyworld has posted the ultimate question relating to the balance of MPC Series 691 and 701: should the remaining stocks be destroyed or saved for collectors? You can (should) enter your vote at papermoneyworld.net by clicking the link below. You will be given results immediately and results will be posted here in the Gram as well.

Hunting Season

By Warner Talso

All collectors experience some exciting moments when they find a treasure. This is a recent experience I will share with you. I have been fascinated by the history of postwar Germany as it is told in currency reform. For example, we all know the story of how the Soviets caused inflation in postwar Germany by printing an excessive number of AM mark notes. So the other Allies initiated currency reform on 20 June 1948 and the Soviet immediate response was the Berlin Blockade which led to the Berlin Airlift. Further note that, according to SB, the Soviet zone then introduced their provisional currency reform on 24 June 1984. The 24th of June being one of the more important dates in history to Festers/Gramsters/Seminarians.

So I have notes representing the major currencies (and history) of postwar Germany, except barter units. Ski showed me his outstanding collection barter units at the FEST and it further motivated me to make acquisition of some of these notes my next goal.

So, last Thursday I visited a local coin dealer. We have three dealers in Albuquerque and I have seen (and bought) everything they have and little changes over time. We are not in the numismatic mainstream. I was driving by and a short stop seemed appropriate just in case. I asked Jim if he had anything new MPC. He said nothing new since the last time I stopped by. I asked if he had any new military currency - making sure he understood the full scope of my interest. He said no. Wait a minute, he had some new notes I might know something about. He brought out three absolutely pristine Frankfurt barter units. 5, 50, and 100 units. My knees got weak, my vision blurred, I all but drooled on the notes. Talk about a rush! He asked me if I knew what they were and what they were worth. I babbled. I stuttered. I finally communicated that they were barter units and I would have to consult SB to estimate their value. Turned out he had a copy of SB in his books for sale stock. We looked them up and I shuffled my feet, cleared my throat, and squeaked out an offer. He then announced that he had promised first refusal to another person. And promised me he would call if that person did not want the notes. What a roller coaster ride! I am now sitting by the phone like a dateless teenager.

It turns out that he got these notes in the estate sale of a retired Army nurse. These were from the lot that I got my 461 and 471 notes from almost two years ago. They had been sitting in a box he had not inventoried until recently. Imagine.

Editorial

=====

The barter units mentioned by Warner are some of my favorites. In 1976 I tracked down Robert Branigan who created the Frankfurt notes and is the signor of the Series 1946A notes. I interviewed him on July 4, 1976. Obviously, that was a memorable day. It was at a coin show in Clearwater, Florida.

The story of that interview appeared in the Bank Note Reporter shortly thereafter and was possibly the most popular story that I have ever done. Collectors commented to me about that story for many years. It (the story) was the basis of the listing in WWII Remembered. If you have not looked at these listings recently, I suggest that you have a look.

Harold Kroll has a good followup story on these notes. I hope that he will share it with us soon. (are you there, Harold?)

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

Regarding Bill McNease's suggestion to set the fest up as a non-profit, thereby making donations to it tax-deductible. That is not necessarily so. Most likely the fest would be deemed a fraternal/social organization, a 501c(4). Those are non-profit and tax-exempt organizations, but donations to them are NOT deductible. MOST coin clubs fall into this part of the IRS code.

To have donations be deductible, it has to be a 501c(3), generally an educational organization. It is a lot harder to get a 501c(3) determination letter from the IRS than to get a 501c(4) letter.

I did not receive Gram 884

Joe

Dear Joe,

So it looks like my suggestion of creating a religion will be the best way! OK, there are other possibilities. For sure (one way or another), money given for scholarships can be made into an educational donation. That can be done now by donating the money to the ANA instead of the in-house fund, but then the scholarships are not earmarked for the military numismatics seminar. I have talked Gail (Baker, ANA PIC (person in charge)) and Marcus on this and believe that after the two of them work together this summer that something can be worked out to help along this line.

Editor

Hey, Editor:

I have just re'c'd the April BNR [this week] w/a few pics of you. You've gained weight. If it's from illness, I won't make fun of you; however, if it's from being contented and [very] well fed, I will refer to you for a while as 'Dear Well-Fed-itor.'

Are you OK??? I am concerned 'cuz I care.

As far as the 691/701 and any other controversies are concerned, don't let the bastards wear you down. You have plenty of support in the hinterlands...even if it is just Deep East Texas...

Jay in Deep East Texas; i.e. Garrison, TX.

P.S. While I've never met her, Judy must be a real princess... She puts up with you and the rest of us...

Dear Jay,

Thanks for writing, but do not worry. The picture was not me. I saw the same pictures and wondered how they could have possibly made that mistake of using the pictures of the old fat guy identifying him as me. Really quite embarrassing. Guess that I better do something about that (BNR using the wrong pictures).

The Boss will be pleased to read your comments.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I received one [gram] today at my AOL address, so it was not blocked, but maybe you sent it differently??

Don

Dear Editor,

Please send my GRAM to [alternate address]. I only receive one about every two weeks now thru AOL.

Gram Ceasing Operation?Last Issue Tomorrow, no refunds

After four series (years) and nearly 900 issues, the MPCGram will cease publication tomorrow. Gram 889 will recap the history of the Gram and include some features that are on hand. It will also include some comments on the potential destruction of MPC Series 691 and 701. The publisher cites personal problems, see also editorial below. Additionally, the publisher states that he believes that everything that it is possible to discover and publish on MPC and other military money has been published by now, so the usefulness of the Gram would be decidedly reduced in the coming weeks. He also thanks everyone who has contributed time, and energy (no one has contributed or otherwise sent money) to the publication. Unfortunately, he states that no refunds will be sent for unmailed issues.

Other closely related enterprises will also be closed effective tomorrow. These include papermoneyworld.net and BNRPress. MPCFest V is cancelled. All of these enterprises are for sale. Interested parties should send trucks of money (not cancelled with holes) to the PCBH.

Series 7XX Designs Discovered

by Sarah Morrow

Just wanted to let everyone know about my recent discovery at work. Paul, my husband, told me I should send in a letter to the Gram. He served over in Viet Nam, and brought back a couple of the 692 fractionals when he returned. It was not until he went to a gun show a couple of years ago that he found out people actually collected MPCs. Of course, his first purchases were to get all the 692 notes, and then he started buying the other ones. After about six months, he stumbled across Mr. Schwan's book at a flea market, and that's when he really got hooked.

Anyway, I work at the BEP over in the Annex Building as a clerk typist, but looking forwards to retiring in 2 more years. As part of my ?and other duties as required,? I do an annual clean out of the files, boxing and storing anything that won't be used for the next couple of years, if at all. We store everything for seven years, then after that, it gets sent to the burn facility. So down to the basement I go with my two boxes of files behind me on the moving cart. Like my home, I couldn't find a place to put the boxes in the storage room, so I had to start moving stuff around to make room. While moving some boxes, I came across one from 1995 and moved it off to the sides since it should have been destroyed earlier this year. Finally, after rearranging about 10 boxes into a new packing pattern (my husband would have been proud as he always gets upset whenever I pack the car for a trip), I grab the old box and start loading it onto the cart. I must of tripped over the wheel or something as I stumbled, dropping the box and splitting its side.

Inside the box were files from Kenneth Wyrum that he must of had in his possession when he retired in 1995. Kenny was an engraver here. Lots of memos and other ?business as usual? files in the box. However, one of the items scattered across the floor was a letter from Cecil McCoy, the curator of the BEP's collection. In the letter she thanks Ken for sending in the sketches he drew up for Series 711 MPC notes. Someone, maybe Kenny, had crossed out the 11 and made them Series 7XX. Anyway, the sketches showed the reverse of the $10 and $20 note. On the reverse of the $10 note is a picture of the Astrodome. On the $20 note, there's a picture of a football stadium. Paul says it looks like Soldier Field, but I really don't know. I looked through the rest of the box, but didn't see any other designs. I tried calling Cecil when I made it back to my desk, but he is on annual leave now. I will try to get a hold of her next week sometime to get more information. Also, if you want, I'll try to get a scan of the two notes later this week and send it in.

Hoard Found?Glaser Hospitalized

From reports by Steve Swish and Mrs. Glaser

Steve Swish is traveling in Asia. Because of his new MPC passion, he followed up on old contacts and hit the jackpot. He located a former finance officer who now lives in Asia. This gentleman had kept various souvenirs of his service. Included in the hoard are specimen books of MPC Series 461, 471, and possibly 472 (report is confused on this matter). The 471 booklet has had the $5 denomination removed, but is otherwise intact. These early series are also represented by hundreds of various denominations in various conditions. The biggest surprise (by far) in the hoard is a partial bundle of Series 541 $5 certificates. Most are gem uncirculated, but a few have corner dings and the like.

Steve has been able to get photographs of some of the hoard, but has not been able to get ANY of the notes. Photographs were sent to papermoneyworld.net where they will be available Tue evening (after about 6pm eastern).
www.papermoneyworld.net/541pack.jpg

www.papermoneyworld.net/591.jpg.

Steve also sent copies of the photos to Al Glaser who is now recuperating in a local hospital. His wife reported that she was awakened by Als uncontrolled screaming. She called 911 and reports that doctors say that he will recover and will be released in a few days.

Editorial

I am sorry to say that I am worn out. I have simply had it. Miss a Gram for a day, get complaints. State an honest opinion get criticized. Grams too long. Too Short. Complain because your name does not appear in the Hot Contact List. It does not stop there. Have the Fest in February, complaints. Change it to April, complaints. Friends of 30 and of 3 years do not talk to me. Here is the best one of all, try to make a little money on any of these projects (or even recover costs) and people go ballistic.

Gram, Fest, Seminar, scholarships, website (papermoneyworld.net). I am finished. Call it retired. I will probably keep collecting after a break. I am uncertain about the books. Everything is for sale: Gram, Fest, (guess I cannot sell the seminar) website, book copyrights.

Yes, it has been fun over the decades. As many have learned over the decades it is the people and the hunt that make it such a joy, and I have had plenty of good times in that way. In the future I expect that I will remember the good times, but the anger and bitterness recently has gotten me down. It is time to leave.

TOKYO, March 31, 2003

Dear Fred,

I have been following with great interest the story and comments about the Series 691 and 701 notes. Now I have sort of a dilemma of my own. Perhaps you could ask the gramsters how to best handle this situation as it is really tormenting me. (I have gotten very little sleep the last few nights)

A week or so ago I visited Camp Zama, an Army base about an hour out of Tokyo. I was once stationed there in the early 1970's. I attended a flea market on base and got to talking with an old Japanese gentlemen who had worked at Army finance for more than 40 years. After I told him that I was very interested in MPC notes, he recalled with great fondness the days when he had issued these notes. He then invited me over to his house for sake and I accepted.

When I arrived and after we were on the third large bottle of sake things started to get really interesting. In one of his closets he had a medium size trunk and asked if I would like to see what was in it, and I replied, sure.

I could not believe my eyes when he opened the lid of this heavy cherry wood trunk! It was like a treasure chest! In it were stacks and stacks of original CU packs (with the bands intact) of long ago invalidated MPC notes, original packs just as crisp as the day they were sent to Camp Zama. Most were wrapped in furoshiki, a Japanese style cloth made for wrapping and carrying items.

Being in Army Finance all those years he knew that these notes were no longer convertible and wondered if I could use them in some way. I immediately replied that I could surely put them to good use, perhaps make a display out of them or use them for educational purposes.

Well, I got them, and after arriving back in Tokyo following a long taxi ride which cost more than 30,000 Yen (it was impossible to bring this heavy trunk on the train) I opened the trunk in my office and began to take an inventory of just what I had. It is incredible to say the least. Spread out on the floor in front of me was the most beautiful assortment of colors, truly remarkable!

It appears he only saved $5 and $10 notes. He told me that on every conversion day there were always a few fresh unissued packs in the finance vault that were not destroyed with the other notes, but were listed as so. As these began to accumulate he had a problem in what to do with them, so he just began taking them home and putting them in that cherry wood trunk. That trunk had been in his family for generations and he told me that a century ago his family had been very rich and the trunk had been overflowing with kobans, obans, and the like.

After taking an inventory here is what I have:

Series 521 $5.00 Packs X 12 (That's 1200 CU Notes!)
Series 521 $10.00 Packs X 9 (That's 900 CU Notes!)
Series 541 $5.00 Packs X 10 (That's 1000 CU Notes!)
Series 541 $10.00 Packs X 8 (That's 800 CU Notes!)
Series 591 $5.00 Packs X 13 (That's 1300 CU Notes)
Series 591 $10.00 Packs X 18 (That's 1800 CU Notes)
Series 611 $10.00 Packs X 23 (That's 2300 CU Notes)
Series 611 $5.00 Packs X 18 (That's 1800 CU Notes)

As a rough estimate I figure there is $35 million dollars worth of MPC here. And that does not take into account the numerous replacements interspersed throughout (one pack is ALL replacements--Series 591 $10.00!!) After knowing you all these years (and you being the big kahuna of MPC that you are) I need your advice as to how I should dispose of these notes.

And in the most fair manner possible. I know you'll come up with something, maybe go into partnership and through you we could disperse all these at top prices over a period of a few years. I wonder if you'd be inclined to take on such a venture?

Or, should I just dole these out a couple at a time on eBay and through direct offer, list one or two in the gram, "First Check Gets It" and let the money roll in?

Or should I do the honorable thing and let everyone get a shot at a $100.00 a note and have them make their checks out to either the Scholarship Fund or The Old Serviceman's Retired Association? The latter would be a nice touch.....I think.

Or would it be better to simply burn them all and let them go up in smoke as they correctly should have on one of those long past C-Days?

Please help???????

Sincerely,

Mike

Dear Mike,
I feel your pain. Before the recent discussions in the Gram, I would not have known what to do, but now I know. After studying these notes in detail, you should drill two holes in each note. In that way the value that we have in our current notes will be maintained and still we will have the notes for new collectors. Wait, here is a better idea, drill the notes with one, two, or three holes. This makes three varieties of each so that we will have even more to collect.

Editor

Dear Editor,
I am not one to normally get into a heated discussion but I have been reading about the 691/701 sets .I could not just sit by and not add my 5c worth. Glad to hear the fact that the destruction has stopped for the time being. I think there is so much knowledge that can be accumulated from the two series of notes still in crates and unissued. First of all why punch holes or do anything to deface the notes if they are ever released. If there are 50 sets out there (which I think there are more), why can't all the serial numbers and denominations be accumulated (which would be information that everyone has so in the future if one of these sets is sold on the market, the price would reflect the fact they are one of the 50 sets ). Then if the others are released at least the MPC collectors know what the serial numbers are for the original 50 sets. Anything outside of that is valued accordingly. I'm sorry but I just can't believe that a collector would want to destroy an opportunity that comes only once in a lifetime because: 1. Someone told them a tall tail about the availability of an item, or 2. It will devalue their investment. How many questions have not been answered about all of the previous MPC series? Here we have 2 chances( series 691/701) to answer as many questions as we care to research and the best that can be said is destroy them.

Hang in there Fred,there are a few of us out here that would love to see the 691/701 series saved and researched for posterity.

Dear Gram,
Please renew my subscription. It seems that either you've stopped publishing or have thinned the subscribers. It has been several weeks since my last gram.
Len

Dear Len,
First, Howard Daniel reported that you were hospitalized and had some miracle procedures (bypasses or something). Welcome home.
You subscription is up to date, but AOL has been withholding your Gram. We have been fighting this problem. One suggestion is for you to create another email address at a free site like Yahoo or hotmail then using that for your Gram subscription and possibly for any contraband mail that you might want to hide!
We are trying other things too, but we are not certain that we can beat AOL.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 889 Wednesday April 2, 2003

New reports

By Joe Boling

I have recently begun email correspondence with an Israeli collector in Beijing. He is obtaining some interesting material.

I believe I mentioned before that the locally printed Manchukuo 100 yuan note (SB79) is starting to show up (not the fakes, but originals). Now some printer's waste is also appearing, and some doctored printer's waste. An example with TWO serial numbers (same as the earlier Japanese-printed version) appears to be intended to circulate or to fool collectors; there should be only one serial number, at the top. Another example has two notes joined, incompletely printed. Beware of paying high prices for examples of this note, especially if they appear to be error notes.

Another item he came up with is a 1945 note from Meng Chiang payable in Central Bank of Manchou notes. It's hard to know what this was created for, and why CBM currency were specified, rather than Meng Chiang notes.

He has been offered a ten-yen ro note. Until recently that denomination remained scarce; this is the second I am aware of in a few months (one UNC, this one fine).

An interesting British YMCA (Shanghai) chit (same shape as US chits, but I don't know the dimensions) says This Coupon Good For / 1 / One Cent / in Trade / at British / Forces / Y.M.C.A. / Great Western Rd / Hut / Jessfield Park / Hut / Shanghai. Brown on brown.

April Fool, yes, the news story about the end of the Gram (and all of the other enterprises), the editorial about the same and most everything in Gram 888 was a spoof. Certainly the stories about the hoards were also jokes. I do not think that there was anything serious. I just reviews Gram 888. The only non jokes above the calendar were the letters from H and Len H and the answers thereto. Overall, the jokes were received in the good spirit that they were created. The phone rang within five minutes of 888 hitting the mail. A few others called, many wrote. Most wanted to confirm that it was an April Fools joke. A few were taken in completely. I feel a little guilty about this last group, but as I said above even most of those have taken it well when they learned that they had been duped.

By far the best news from my point of view is that we have some great letters to share. Those have started today and will continue at least through tomorrow. For those who were fooled, we will withhold all indications of name, but we are glad that you wrote. Frankly, it was heartwarming to read many of the letters. Thank you. Doug Bell points out that one of the links to the fantasy notes had a typo. We had it as <http://www.papermonworld.net/541.jpg> when it obviously should be www.papermoneyworld.net/541.jpg.

MAIL CALL

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I am from the old, old school that every numismatic piece should be saved for future numismatists to own, so I would very much like to see the 691 and 701 pieces saved from destruction, whether they are in my collection or not.

There is a similar experience coming up for Vietnamese paper money collectors. My Democratic Republic of Viet Nam Coins and Currency book has a Pick-unlisted 1969-dated 20 Dong note that was known to be unique at the time my book was published in 1995.

Last year when I was in Viet Nam, another one was offered to me for over $1000. I said I wanted to think about it. Within two or three days, two others were offered to me. When I asked for the block and serial of each note, I determined that a brick of at least one thousand pieces was the source for all of them.

There was and is a chance that the Vietnamese national bank and/or Ministry of Finance will close down the leak of this note and burn them like they did with the Pick-4A and 37A notes for the Republic of Viet Nam after 1975, but I have a feeling that they will allow them to keep coming out. So I told my sources, and other collectors I knew to be interested in them, that I would buy the first one offered to me under $200.

I have seen this note selling for $500. to $1000. each, but lately, I have seen a few being offered on eBay starting at $150.00 with the source in Viet Nam. So far, all of them have been bid up to over $250., but as more and more come out, they will eventually sell down to double digits each.

I will still honor my word to buy the first one offered to me for under $200., and fully expect it to fall to a double digit value, but I have bought many other pieces for double digit values that are now worth three and even four digit values. But if they all went to junkbox values, that would still be alright for me, because I am not collecting them for their retail value, but for their historical value and the pleasure of owning a piece of history.

Howard A. Daniel III

Hello gramsters! Why can't everyone be happy???? There were 50+ sets sold through proper channels! The money was directed to the Red Cross, or U.S.O.! $2000 a set and some singles! This was decided so that they WOULD BE SCARCE and DESIRABLE! That was the FINANCIAL reason everyone bought them along with filling out there collection. NOW someone wants to stop destruction!! Knew this!!!! Has $6000 invested???? WHY?? for selfish reasons?? To get some "errors" or build houses out of "empty crates"?? Hand them to "school children?" to drop on the streets!!!! Get real! A Sham!!!!!!!! If this is truly and educational venture!!! I'm sure Fred could get permission to take down all the information "needed?" he so desperately wants, by OVERSEEING there destruction! Wow! He could answer all those important questions Phil stated! And if it is "saving them" that is so important, THEN save all you want .....CANCELED! (I suggest 1,000-10,000 CANCELED sets) and sell them at $29 each! MONEY going to RED CROSS or U.S.O.! THIS SATISFIES everyone who wants them!!!!!! AND PROTECTS EVERYONE who already owns them and went through proper channels originally and "ethically." I invested $20,000( 1st and 2nd printings + replacements,etc.) not $6,000! I am building 3+ sets for my children, grandchildren and my retirement! PAID RETAIL/ $4000+ per!! WHY destroy the "fellow MPC collectors financial investments" when you can stop it and SAVE THEM???????????? No excuses! If all you want is to save them (MPC), then SAVE A FEW!! "CANCEL THEM"!!! The money doesn't line anyone's pocket but the "Red Cross or U.S.O." Everyone wins, no one gets hurt! And the "RARE" sets STAY RARE! The after market on the canceled sets would be FUN! DON'T ruin it for us and those new collectors on "ebay" right NOW who are bidding on them!!!!!!!! PLEASE! RECONSIDER the fate or our hobby!

Guy Araby!

Hello Gramsters and Fred!..... If this is an April fool's Joke!! You Got me!! Just like "AL" did! But if it isn't a joke.....I can't believe me eyes! WE love you Fred! You are the reason we all have the tools and books, for collecting MPC.... the Guru! WE held you to a "higher standard" than the average "coin hustler" dealer/ mentality. Everyone wants /and has seen dollar signs whenever we can! We all want to make a buck! Honestly, you are really hurting the ones who love you! YOU can change it all with a RE-consideration! destruction, overseeing it, perhaps a legitimate way to withdraw a few sets for sale or educational purposes?. You could get permission to view destruction, perhaps photograph! And perhaps a handful of errors, etc. given by the "government" as a token of good faith! Just remember one thing I heard recently, "It's not how much money you have!!!! It's how people will remember you when your gone!!!" How do you want to "go out?" like this?????..... I think not! Do the right thing, reconsider! We know you could!!! And we would forgive you!!! I hope I didn't offend you or anyone ! Speaking from my heart! This is my "mpc" family! I want to be here! I need my comrades! Guy! Best regards!! ((If this is a joke, you don't have to run it!))

Guy Araby

Editor, being April 1st, are you serious or is this, a come on? Also being April 1st, is the Japanese story true?

Regards
A Gramster

Dear Gramster,
No the story from Japan was not true, but I think that drilling the various holes in all hoard notes is a good idea!

Editor

Dear Editor,
I've been receiving the Gram for only a few months and have greatly enjoyed it. Sorry to see it go, but I understand from the shots that have been taken at you recently.
Wish you the best.
Thank you very much.
Jim V.

Editor!
I just ain't buying it! I do not believe for one minute that 889 will be the last gram. I also do not buy the series 7XX story or the trunk story. As I finished reading, I was waiting for the pop-up screen "April Fool"
I gotta give you credit though for trying to pull one over on an old detective.

Regards,

Roger

Dear Editor,
Oh the agony Joe must be going through not having a column in gram 8-8-8.

Cheers,
Sparky

Dear Sparky,
Is that a complaint hidden in an attempt at humor? Just kidding. Yes, it was poor planning. Joe certainly should have been in 888, but we just had so much breaking news!

YN to Military Money Seminar

from Sparky Watson and Gail Baker

The American Numismatic Association has announced that Elliott Wehner will receive a scholarship to attend the American Numismatic Association summer seminar military numismatics class.

Tech Problems

by Doug Bell, webmaster

The papermoneyworld website has been damaged due to an upgrade from Microsoft. The site is still fully functional and will be in the rebuilding stage.

A new link page to all the information is now available on the main page please give me a few days to get every thing back the way it was.

Editorial

=====

Congratulations to Elliott Wehner AND the American Numismatic Association on the occasion of the award of a scholarship to Elliott Wehner! We look forward to meeting and working with Elliott and we commend the ANA and Gail Baker for creating and administering the seminar AND the scholarship program. Although we are biased, by any and all accounts these are wonderful programs. We are proud to participate. The Masstricht show is underway. The contingent of Festers is somewhat reduced this year, but a few are there and many more Gramsters are there. We look forward to reports from the show. In particular we look forward to learning about great finds that make us jealous.

Fred

How do you really feel?

Dear Editor

It appears Fred will not let go of the April Fools pranks. I noticed in an eBay auction he has run, that he is cleaning out his office and garage.

This should have been the lead story of Gram 888

Registration fees:

$150 for general registration; $200 after 1 May 2003.
(A day fee of $50 per full day, $25 per half day will be accepted at the time of registration as space allows for walk-in registrants to join pre-reg.)
$100 for presenters, uni/college students, senior citizens, veterans of any age, overseas participants. (Registrations must be received by 1 May to qualify.)(Presenters coming for one day may attend half of that day free; if they'd like to attend the entire day they will be asked for a $25 contribution to help defray conference costs. [Basically, all presenters and panelists are being given $50 credit.]

$50 for TRACES donors/non-working TRACES board members.

$50 for Journalists may attend the exhibit opening, 1-5 Saturday afternoon at the Johnson County History Center in Iowa City/Iowa, for free; those wishing to attend the rest of the conference in order to write articles/tape reports may do so at $25 per day. The exhibit itself is free and open to the public. We are very pleased to have, per plan, some half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

Maastericht Slow

by Harold Kroll

The Maastericht paper money show opened with the usual anticipation of a great event and it is. It always is, but by Saturday evening I was actually a bit disapointed. The fact that I was disapointed by no great discoveries/finds testifies to the high expectations that this show has fostered.

I found and bought a few interesting things, but cannot report anything that can be considered really exciting. On the other hand, there is still a day to go and hope doth spring eternal.

Editorial

It is great to get a show report (especially from Europe) while the show is still in progress. It makes us feel like the cable channel of numismatics.

Harold's comment at the end of his report about a day to go makes me reflect on the many shows that I have atteneded over the decades where the biggest and/or best deals were made on the final day--often in the final hours or even minutes.

Memphis 2001 was a case in point. While virtually was either gone or packing, I made one of the biggest deals that I have ever made in terms of cost. Then within minutes I was able to make severl important resales that cinched the deal as a good one. The final plus was that that put me in the mood to beam for the long drive home.

There are probably some reasons that the final hours can be the most important. The end of the show is impending doom for those who want to make deals. They are forced to make moves that they had been unwilling or unable to do before that.

Fred

Dear Gram,

Who will be knowledgable MPC dealers at the Long Beach CALif June show?

unsigned

Dear Editor,

"A few were taken in completely. I'm sorry about that."

SO---- I was one of the gullible ones, but, you know what? I'm kind of glad. My naiveté caused me to write an email I don't regret. All those good things I said deserved to be said, and if you must discount them considering the not-very-bright author, go ahead with the discount, but even after that, you should feel good knowing that one subscriber believes he gets his money's worth.

I do have an excuse. I thought it was Sunday.

Bill Murray

Dear Editor,

Good one Fred, you made a fool out of us all ...
Good April fool joke ,YOU ARE THE BEST.....
Keep up the good work.....

Gary H

Dear Editor (in response to Gram 888),

I appreciate all of your hard work for the hobby throughout the years. It was great to have you and Joe Boling as instructors for the Military class at the ANA last summer.

Sincerely,
F

Dear Editor,

I'm sorry to hear that the gram will cease and the web pages are for sale.

I only hope that the statement on the 888 Gram of April 1 was only an April Fool's prank.

Just in case this was not a prank:

I realize that I have not been able to put anything of value to the gram but I greatly enjoyed reading it and have found myself trying to find the time even for a couple of minutes a day to try and find some items for sale either on the grams, Ebay or other auctions.

I respect your decision since I cannot even begin to fathom the difficulties you must have gone through. It might be an alternative to give it sometime before making your final decision to call it "quits."

I know that I really can't be of much help, due to the distance and let alone my work schedule, but please let me know if there is anything that I can be of assistance.

Best regards,
Winston

Dear Editor,

Nice April Fool's issue. I for one would be interested in liberating some of those saved notes from Japan. Or maybe some of the 711 series as soon as they are ready from the BEP's western office in Las Vegas.

Regards, webfootbob

Dear Editor,

I Truly Hope You Are Not Serious.
This Would Be A Significant...Catastrophic Blow.
As I Sit Here Typing This My Mind Is Wandering Toward The Devilish....Could This Be An April Fools Joke..??

Dear Editor,

Just read your retirement notice and all I can say is, "If it ain't fun no more, quit!" On the other hand, after all these years, I just found you guys recently and have been overjoyed with my new areas of replenishment. I'm 66 now and I started by saving MPC's that cousins gave me when they came home from WWII and, of course, I picked up a few during the Korean conflict. I only started the Vietnam series a year or so ago when I pick up some nice ones at an auction in Maine.

I recently bought some more from Mr. Seelye, in New York, and hopefully can sustain a relationship there and perhaps a few others. I certainly hope you don't lose your desire and curiosity to continue to collect. It would be a shame to see you lose that interest also. Sorry we didn't meet up earlier, although I'm sure the outcome probably would not have changed, I would have enjoyed your knowledge and input to my collection. Sincerely, Gale

Gale B. Davis

Dear Editor,

It is a shame to some that you are leaving and discontinuing the Gram. Not to me. I for one am really happy not to be getting the trash on the computer any longer. Port Clinton is a bad place too and I hope to never have the pleasure of returning.

Instead of selling my collection, I am donating it to my nephews child care center to use as play money. I am sure the 5 notes I got from Marv in the auction and the Leo May notes I have will help the little tykes in learning.

Good luck in your future endeavors.

Bill M

Dear Editor,

Yup, I fell for it and about the most convincing story ever! Glad it's just for fun and will continue to look forward to the gram. My payment for your autographed copy of the MPC book sent via PayPal and my address sent via previous email.

Thanks for the fun & glad that's all it was,

Aubrey

Turner, Fest Featured

The headline and entire front page of the April 2003 Monthly Planchet, the newsletter of the Indianapolis Coin Club, feature a story on MPCFest IV in general and Marcus Turner winning the national collecting championship in particular!

Turner is an active member of the ICC and the club is (obviously) proud of his achievement. The article does not contain much (if any) information that was not published earlier in the Gram, but it does do several useful things. First, it is great to get recognition any and everywhere. Secondly, the article features a photograph of the championship medal. This unique version of the Fest medal has not previously been illustrated in a numismatic publication.

More on Educational Status

by Bill McNease

Here is the scoop on a Non-Profit organization (excerpted) from IRS.

Italics are my comments.

"To be tax-exempt in accordance with IRC Section 501(c)(3), an organization must be organized and operated exclusively for one or more of the following:

The one that applies to us -"educational"

"The term charitable is used in its generally accepted legal sense and includes....advancement of education. To be organized exclusively for a charitable purpose, the organization must be a corporation, community chest, fund or foundation. Assets must be permanently dedicated to an exempt purpose. An organization that will be regarded as 'operated exclusively' for an exempt purpose only if it engages primarily in activities which accomplish an exempt purpose as specified in IRC 501 (c)(3). No part of the net earnings of an organization may inure to the benefit or any private shareholder or individual."

The information goes on to specifically limit political contributions.

I really think that we can qualify as an educational organization. Almost everything we do has to do with the furtherance of history of military money of some sort. The ability to make the scholarships tax deductible, probably attendance at the FEST, the MPC database costs, mpcgram costs are just a few reasons to do this. Heck, all the IRS can say is no. And we have Fred and Joe that have published the guides that we use for the educational purposes.

The complete text of what I excerpted is available on the IRS web site (www.irs.gov) as well as IRS Publication 557 that is a 60 page document that goes into the fine details. More comments from anyone would be helpful.

How wide can we make the circle? In this case I do not mean the circle of MPC collectors. In this case I mean circle of publicity creating itself. The story in the Monthly Planchet (see lead story) was based upon the Fest story that appeared in the Bank Note Reporter. Gail Phillips, editor of MP, asked for permission to make a story from the BNR story. Now we have made a story about Gail making a story. Likely, she can make a story about us making a story of her story made from our story and if she does, we might be able to make a story of that.

Ok, more seriously, be sure to have a look at the MP. It is a very nice local newsletter. Furthermore, I believe that this April issue belongs in serious MPC literature collections!

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

Your e.mail I received from Joe Boling who has been kind enough to help me out with information on some notes I have. He suggested that I can get some information from you on notes and how to find some notes, mainly POW chits from the US and else where, from the WWII era.

If possible, I would like to know how I can get some of them chits, and hope that this request does not cause any inconvenience.

I thank you in advance,

Neil K

Dear Sir,

Thank you for writing. Hopefully, someone will take the hint and list some chits here in the Gram for you. Editor

Dear Editor,

I guess I was one of the lucky ones. I have been out of town since March 26 and got home today, Apr. 3. I had Grms 883-889 on my computer so upon reading Grm 888, I was only sick for about 15 minutes before reading Gram 889. Nice April Fools joke. It takes something like that for us to realize what we have, and what we would be missing, in these daily Grams.

Book Review--Thai notes

Review by Howard A. Daniel III

"Centenary of Thai Banknote: 1902-2002" by a Working Group (under the direction of Bank of Thailand Governor, M.R. Pridiyathorn Devakula), Bank of Thailand, Bangkok, Thailand, Oversized Hardbound, 448 pages, ISBN-974-7341-50-6.

One of the editorial consultants working on this excellent reference was Ron Cristal of Bangkok International Associates (www.bia.co.th) in Thailand, and he recently sent a copy to me.

There is a lot of information and illustrations about the early and most recent issues of Thailand, but what is of most interest to Gramsters is World War II (and the postwar U.S. printed issues in the MPC format), and there are chunks and tidbits of information that has never been published before in English! It is written in Thai and English, so if you cannot read Thai, you can use it, and it is hardbound on very high quality paper and color illustrations. It is a historical reference and not a catalog with id numbers and values, but it is very much worth the price to just read the information and details about each piece!

Some WWII tidbits in it are; When the high quality paper was used up, local paper was embedded with fibers from POW blankets! Wow! There is some information about the Malay provinces 1, 5 and 10 Cents coins and 1 dollar note. There is also information about several thefts of notes that resulted in incomplete notes appearing in circulation. It appears Japanese and Thai were stealing notes and "spending" them into the economy. And much more great information!

If you have any general questions about this reference, please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com, or Ron at bia@cscoms.com for intimate details.

Scott Semans ( ssemans@aol.com ) is the only U.S. dealer with this book on his website at www.coincoin.com. If there is any interest in it, he will ask the publisher for quantity pricing.

Coalition Currency in Iraq Discussed Today by Bush and Blair?

Will the coalition issue money in Iraq? I am confident of one thing: new money has been printed. It is obvious that the coalition would not want Saddam's portrait on money circulating after the liberation. Even more importantly, planners must have anticipated that the current money might become worthless because of inflation, but it could also become worthless as a tactic of the Saddam government. The coalition worried from the beginning about the destruction of the infrastructure. The circulating money is part of the infrastructure.

My guess is that new money for the Central Bank of Iraq has been printed. It probably has generic Iraqi scenes. Probably it does not have any signatures.

Here is an interesting prediction. My guess is that the money was printed by Thomas de la Rue in England.

The notes of the past 20 years in Iraq have been of the TDLR style even if they were printed in Iraq. Because of this TDLR would be well suited to print something that would look good to the Iraqi people with this aspect being very important in this situation.

It is also convenient that the UK is a major coalition partner.

Since the post hostility phase of the operation is likely being discussed by President Bush and PM Blair today, it is very likely that they might discuss the currency issue and even examine some of the money!

Of course we collectors are far more familiar with such matters than the general public and even more so than most of the military planners.

This situation is most similar to France, Denmark, and Korea in World War II. I select those three countries deliberately. In all three cases money was prepared by the Allies for the liberation. In the first case money was necessary or at least issued in large quantities. In the latter cases the money was prepared but unissued or released in very small quantities.

These situations (and Iraq today) are substantially different from the situation in Germany and Japan at the end of the war. The Allied money issued there may have been necessary for commerce and the good of the people, but it was also necessary as a control measure by the Allies.

Dear Gram,

Marcus sent me a copy of the MPC Gram, so I must first thank you! Next, I will ask you why you insist on making me feel as if I am suffering oxygen deficiency to my brain? Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 894 Tuesday April 9, 2003

Finds, hoards, and more

By Joe Boling

Following up on last week's report of ten-yen ro notes starting to appear; there are two in Ponterio's CICF sale later this month. They are numbers ro1-271806 and ro1-271146, in Unc and AU respectively. There are also an Unc 50 sen ro note and an AU 1 yen ro note in this sale.

In response to my column last week, a prominent dealer in Asian material replied: "The 10 Yen Ro notes seem to be everywhere! There is lots of them around. A couple years ago the first Ro notes, the 50 sen came out in fairly big quantities. I have seen at least a dozen 10 Yens in Japan recently. The 5 yen seems to be still rare, none out, yet..."

The 50 sen notes actually began to come out of China about 1990, through stamp auctions. The one-yens followed, in much smaller quantities. But if you look at the numbers in SB for this issue (page 593), you will see that huge quantities were not recovered at the end of the war. Since they were issued in limited areas and numbers, those unissued pieces presumably were still crated at war's end. All it takes is one of those crates to appear and the ro series will become like the local Ba Maw notes of Burma (SB105, page 660). I paid $390 for my first one; then $26.45 for another, and finally $40 for a sheet of four.

More adventures in numismatics (continued from gram 876): Speaking of hoards, here's a story about a different kind of hoard. When I was in Seattle back in the early '70s, there was a local collector who had been in the service in Japan. At one of the monthly bazaars, during which local vendors would bring merchandise on base and set up a glorified flea market, he met an expatriate Chinese man who had two Kirin beer cases full of obsolete paper money of Asia. This was in the '50s or '60s--nobody was collecting paper money back then. But the mass of material was attractive; they negotiated a price based on so many cents per note (or notes per cent?), the serviceman to count them. He "counted" the notes, paid the vendor, and carted the two crates back to the barracks. Sitting on the edge of his bunk, he began to sort through the notes. When he came to his second US $1000 bill, he stopped and packed up the whole mass of notes and sent them home to his mom to safeguard until his tour was over.

At the time I met him, he had not yet brought them to Seattle from his mom's home in Oregon. I was frantic for him to do so, because I anticipated that there would be a lot of MPC in the hoard. There were no catalogs beyond Sten at that time, so he was loathe to allow anyone into the group who had more information than he did. Eventually I left Seattle without ever seeing this group. Now, the story is just weird enough to be credible, but since I never saw the notes, I don't know if his story was embellished or not. But as for finding high-value US notes in the boxes; that seems perfectly feasible to me. The original owner did not suppose that any currencies survived the war unscathed. I wish I had had a chance to see this gold mine.

Doug Bell reports adding the 3700th note to his collection of minor denomination MPC by position number. Yes, 3700 piece in this one collection alone! Doug is collecting every fractional and one dollar note by position number. Just to be sure that we are communicating, that means that for each different fractional note, he needs 84 pieces to complete his collection. His collection is not the most ambitious collection possible, but it is the most ambitious ever attempted!

You can help Doug by searching your duplicates and even your primary collection for pieces that he need in pursuit of this astonishing goal. If you have a piece for him from your main collection, he will attempt to trade to get what he needs. Doug?s check list can be found at papermoneyworld.net.

MAIL CALL

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I just heard a report on Fox News that the Iraqi National Bank in Basrah was in the process of being looted (10AM EST, April 7). Looting is a common practice before law enforcement can be reestablished after combat, so your prediction of new currency for Iraq would be needed, even if they wanted to rid the currency of Saddam's image.

I hope some reporters with photographers are present at the looting of the bank so pictures of it can be seen in the Bank Note Reporter and other media.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Steamed (and pressed) Editor:

A very timely article on the prospect of new currency for Iraq. Good job. I would add an additional thought. This should be a task identified with the new civilian leadership. The desire is to have Iraqi fingerprints on the decision and not be a coalition action. I do not think we want this to be referred to as "coalition currency" which implies it is a tool of foreigners.

When a new currency is introduced, is it feasible to devalue the old currency, much as was done with a C-Day? This would get the old currency out of circulation faster and would penalize those in Saddam's inner circle who have fled the country taking their ill-gotten gains with them.

I can see problems with this in the case of second and third party holders of the current Iraqi currency (like Swiss bankers) getting caught with worthless notes when their only sin was greed. But it is a nice idea.

Warner

Dear Warner,

Pressed? Possibly. Pressured? For sure! It is often said, the market is never wrong. The reason that the Iraqui dinar is as inflated as it is, is that the conversion prospect has certainly been anticipated by money traders in many countries. This is not to say that innocents cannot and will not be hurt by such a conversion. When the deutsch mark was introduced in June 1948, the local population was allowed to convert X amount in cash and Y amount in existing bank accounts. As an added, and interesting, twist, withdrawls from the converted bank accounts were also restricted.

Editor

Dear Editor,

The Maastricht Paper Money Show held in Valkenburg Netherlands date for 2004 is April 23-25, 2004. Sorry, but I have to say that I will be at the Fest!

David

Dear David,

Thanks for the information and vote of confidence, but I am not so sure that we should not revisit the revisited, altered, changed, and revised Fest dates.

My Charlotte ANA Experience

By Howard A. Daniel III

I drove into the Hilton Charlotte & Towers hotel on Thursday afternoon and had to race around to find Joe Boling because he forgot to add me to his room. Then I set up my booth for Numismatics International (NI), Numismatic Bibliomania Society (NBS) and the International Bank Note Society (IBNS). Afterwards, I was told about the free buffet dinner provided by Heritage Auctions near the bourse snack bar. It was good food and I did not have to go looking for a restaurant so I saved time and spent it in the hotel working on emails and other stuff.

On Friday morning, I started receiving a steady line of adults and children. The children must have had a day off from school in that area. It was a great time with the kids because I gave each of them a free NI Coin Pack with nine world coins in it, and a free bank note from IBNS. I asked each child to research the coins and notes and tell their fellow students about them during the next show and tell. A slip with each has the web site for each society and I asked they visit each site to see what we were about.

By closing time on Sunday, I had made over 400 children very happy. I also had some old Pick and Krause catalogs, and gave them away to those who showed a particular interest in numismatics. I ran out of IBNS Journals and Newsletters (and NI Bulletins) but I will hopefully be restocked at Memphis. And I will need to be restocked with NBS flyers, but I can make more copies of membership application blanks. If any of you have "junk" paper, please send it to me and I will give it out to the children. I can create a small flyer for MPCGram and M2C2 (?) so they can contact the lower end of the rung in numismatics. Only kidding.

Leo May and I talked for awhile almost everyday but he did not have anything for me. But we did enjoy a surprisingly good dinner in his hotel restaurant on Saturday night. I bought a couple of Malay tin hat tokens but nothing military from a dealer. But Tom Sheenan brought me a person who had been offered only $20 for an envelope of stuff on the bourse (he did not see Leo!). It had a short snorter in it with mostly Philippine JIM on it, some JIM and Japanese notes, and two surrender leaflets. He really needed some money, so I offered him $100 on spec for it and I thought he would jump over the table for it. I will write more about him and what I bought from him. I visited several other tables but found nothing else to buy. A man came up to my table and told me about his father being in the Army during WWII and being on a detail that packed AMC for Japan. I have written a separate input for you about him. This could be an update to "World War II Remembered"!

The NBS meeting was chaired by Tom Sheenan and not by me as Joe reported. Nancy Green, ANA librarian talked about the library and its activities. It was an excellent meeting. I also attended a meeting by an Indian professor and he and I will get together later when he visits one of his daughters in Virginia. Then an International Primitive Money Society meeting conducted by Chuck Opitz and Kay Lender. It was also jammed with people! Did you know some primitive money like WWII clamshells (and other stuff made for or by the military) are collected by these folks? Then I moderated an NI meeting that was well attended and especially by "chopmark" collectors. The IBNS meeting had only a few of us there but it was a lively session! I was also supposed to attend a YN meeting but got busy and forgot about it. Please do not ask me about sharing a room with Joe Boling. I was always asleep before he returned to the room so he woke me up, and then he worked until 3AM on his laptop to keep me waking up during the night.

I will next be at the IPMS in Memphis and others will be manning booths for most of the societies I represent at the ANAs. My next NI/NBS/IBNS booth will be at the Baltimore ANA from July 30 to August 2. Please be there and especially for the Philippine Collectors Forum, which will have MANY pieces and people of interest to many Gramsters.

FIFTEEN NAMES ON ELECTION BALLOT

FOR ANA BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Fifteen members of the American Numismatic Association (ANA) have accepted their nominations for positions on the 2003-2005 ANA Board of Governors.

The Board consists of a president, vice president and seven governors. All serve two-year terms, and all are elected by the ANA membership on an at-large basis.

More than 1,000 nominations were received; 475 from some 175 member-clubs and more than 430 from individual members.

Candidates were required to receive a minimum of five club and five individual nominations between December 1, 2002, and March 31, 2003. Clubs as well as individual members were limited to nominating no more than seven candidates for governor, and one each for vice president and president.

Patricia Finner of Iola, Wisconsin, and Gary Lewis of Cape Coral, Florida, are vying to be the next president of the 112-year-old Association.

William H. Horton Jr. of Keyport, New Jersey, and Kay Edgerton Lenker of San Diego, California, are running for the ANA vice presidential spot.

Candidates for governor are (alphabetically):

M. Remy Bourne of Vadnais Heights, Minnesota

Michael S. Fey of Morris Plains, New Jersey

Arthur M. Fitts III of Framingham, Massachusetts

Alan Herbert of Belle Fourche, South Dakota

Donald H. Kagin of Tiburon, California

Robert Korver of Carrollton, Texas

Walter A. Ostromecki Jr. of Panorama City, California

Will Rossman of Estes Park, Colorado

Barry S. Stuppler of Woodland Hills, California

Anthony A. Tumonis of Tucson, Arizona

John W. Wilson of Ocala, Florida

Election ballots, as well as a photograph and a biography/platform supplied by each candidate, will be sent by the independent auditing firm of BiggsKofford, P.C., to eligible voting ANA members. Mailed by May 31, the envelope will indicate that a ballot is enclosed. Candidate photographs and biographies/platforms also will be published in the June issue of the ANA's Numismatist magazine.

Ballots must be returned to the auditing firm by July 10. Election results will be announced on or before July 20, and the new Board of Governors will be sworn in at the ANA's 112th Anniversary Convention banquet in Baltimore, Maryland, on August 2.

Editorial

We try not to wander into politics, national or numismatic, but every now and then we just cannot take the pressure. In this case we are mostly motivated by two things. First, since we received the news release only yesterday, we believe that we can provide a service by being the first to publish this information. Secondly, we will make a few comments and at ballot. Two years ago we officially endorsed John Wilson for president and obviously it was our support that won the election for him. Several of the candidates are Gramsters, some are well known paper money enthusiasts, and probably a few others are paper enthusiasts but we do not know about it.

We invite candidates to send us statements regarding their positions that will be of particular interest to Gramsters. Statements that are directed to collectors of round shinny things probably will not be published. Similar statements regarding administration and politics of the ANA probably will not be published. We know that this might be a difficult line to draw, but we will try.

Dear Esteemed Editor,
If I was allowed to prioritize the 2004 Fest against the 2004 Maastricht show, I would definitely place the Fest way above Maastricht. And a late April Fest is much more to my "I hate snow and ice" brain, and I will likely attend my first Fest.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Editor,
I have been wondering where my grams are? I see that you were the pilot of the B1 that dropped the Bomb last night. Lt. colonel in the Air Force. Did you ever run my email about the 692 $1 proof? George

Dear Geroge,
As you can see (this is number 895), we have been chugging along. I am sure that your problem is with AOL. PLEASE get an alternate email address for your Gram. We continue to fight this problem, but cannot guarantee success. Starting with this Gram, your address will be sent out in yet a new alternate way in addition to the way that it has been sent out in the past. However, even if you start getting it regularly (and twice), we are leary of counting on AOL delivery for your Gram.

Editor

Dear Editor,
NO S**T [regarding Fest scheduling]-- As I said before, if it ain't broke don't fix it. ?Ski

Dear Steamed (and pressed) Editor:
Sorry. I guess I made you sound like you had connections to a dry cleaner :-)

W

Dear W,
Why should you be sorry? Truth, is truth.

Editor

Dear Editor,
[MPC] book received and am very pleased. Am looking forward to checking serial #s for printing series when I get some time.
Thanks & best regards,

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

May 30 ? June 1 POW Conference II, Coe College, Cedar Rapids, IA

Registration fees:

$150 for general registration; $200 after 1 May 2003. (A day fee of $50 per full day, $25 per half day will be accepted at the time of registration as space allows for walk-in registrants to join pre-reg.)

$100 for presenters, uni/college students, senior citizens, veterans of any age, overseas participants. (Registrations must be received by 1 May to qualify.)(Presenters coming for one day may attend half of that day free; if they'd like to attend the entire day they will be asked for a $25 contribution to help defray conference costs. [Basically, all presenters and panelists are being given $50 credit.]

$50 for TRACES donors/non-working TRACES board members.

$50 for Journalists may attend the exhibit opening, 1-5 Saturday afternoon at the Johnson County History Center in Iowa City/Iowa, for free; those wishing to attend the rest of the conference in order to write articles/tape reports may do so at $25 per day. The exhibit itself is free and open to the public. We are very pleased to have, per plan, some half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

A forgery that isn't

By Joe Boling

I received a note today advertised as a forgery - Central Reserve Bank of China 1000 yuan 1944, SB1254b, P-J32b, block AWL. Yes, the note looks pretty bad--the face plate is gray instead of gray-blue, and the main plate print quality is dreadful; the pink face tint is very faint; the block letters are ragged; the back is a brighter blue than usual. But the paper is correct; it has silk threads, and the red threads are actually a pinkish orange, the same as on all other notes of this emission; the paper has the same mottled dark brown color when held to the light, with no watermark, and a faint screen pattern. As it happens, I have a reference set of fourteen of these notes extending from block ATG to block AWL (many gaps), which you will note includes the block of the note that I received today. In my opinion, it is NOT a forgery; it merely represents the low ebb of quality as the war progressed. Does anyone have one of these with a block higher than AWL? If so, I'd like to look at it.

The reference set was purchased from Roger Stolberg; anyone know what happened to him? Is he still dealing somewhere?

More followup - now a couple of five-yen ro notes are reported to be available in unc. Unless you absolutely HAVE to have a ro note for an exhibit, illustration, or some other urgent reason, better defer buying any until the market stabilizes. It looks like the hoards I suspected in 1990 are finally beginning to surface. My thanks to the gramster who is making these observations known to me.

An interesting item from one of the scholarship applications: this collector was an MPC user once upon a time, and shortly after the 591 C-day there were no $1 bills available. The finance office or the BX cashiers clipped twenty 5c notes together to be used as dollars; he received such a clip-full at the BX and ended up keeping a few of them. Has anyone else ever heard of this technique for covering shortages?

Yesterday I was reading in the current Numismatic News (cover date uncertain at the moment) a debate on the idea of donating a collection to a museum as opposed to selling it. It seems like an interesting argument. I have some thoughts that I am sending to NN today as a letter to the editor. Possibly this is a subject on which Gramsters would like to comment. I might also ask NN for permission to reprint the pro/con articles that appeared there. In the meantime, we would love to hear from you.

Dear Dick Freyser,

I understand your concern about the error in your possession. And I am prepared to take the heavy responsibility of taking the possession of the note and safe guarding it's future. I am prepared to compensate you for the inconvenience of storing the note in my collection, safe from the potential of confiscation.

Just let me know when the transfer can take place.

David

Dear Editor:

Here is a website that is new to me (at least). You can find pictures of bond advertisements (posters) from throughout WWII. Plus other stuff.

Dear Editor:

Last week I was looking at my MFC 031 notes for the first time since the fest, and I discovered an error note. It is a $5 denomination, serial# F00000089F and position #4. There are 2 errors on this note. It has a $1 back, and to the left of the large #1, has FOUR written from top to bottom as opposed to the $4 denomination that is written bottom to top. The other error is on the front where the note is cut low enough, that a sliver of the note above shows. Also, since it was mis-cut, the serial # just touches the picture. I think that is all the info on this note, but if there is anything else you would like to know please tell me and I'll try to comply.
Bill Haines

Dear Bill,

If you will send the note to Fest Headquarters, it will be replaced by a correct note and then destroyed. Thank you for helping with quality control.

Library Donations

By Howard Daniel

I do believe in museum and library donations, but only duplicates and/or pieces and material that are so fragile, they need professional care. Otherwise, I like to see unique and the rarest pieces in the possession of collectors who will care for them, study them, write about them, and exhibit them at shows and conventions. I have visited one museum with over one million pieces in its collection. Most of them had not been touched, moved or seen by anyone since they were donated, and normally, the vast majority are never seen by the public and/or numismatists. And some museums are also not that friendly to numismatists and other researchers visiting their facilities to look at, study and write about them. This is not all museums, but I have run into enough that I think twice about donating to them.

Frequently we are given some information that does not conform with what we know or at least think we know about MPC or other areas of interest. The question then is do we accept this new view? This is not an easy question. Basically, it is a matter of credibility and sometimes of multiplicity. Often sources get upset with me because I do not accept their recollections as being sufficient to change something in one of the books. Sometimes a collector says that he used MPC in a given country at a given time. That is a recollection that is hard for me to accept without some sort of confirmation. Even though that particular point is not the main point I am driving at, it is a subject worth discussing and I look forward to an comments you might have on it. My point today is sort of the inverse.

I recently chatted with a veteran who had served in Vietnam in the 1970s. He said that he had not recollection of MPC. None. I was surprised. That made me recall another report that I had from an advanced collector who had served in Japan during the MPC period and had no recollection of MPC there. Again, I was amazed. In both cases we are certain enough of MPC use not to even consider additional research, but it does prove the frailty of human memory.

Dear Editor and Bill,

I will make the same offer to you as I did Dick Freyser and your error. In addition I would give to you a note that does not have the printing problem, in addition to other compensation to be determined. I understand your concern about the error in your possession. And I am prepared to take the heavy responsibility of taking the possession of the note and safe guarding it's future. I am prepared to compensate you for the inconvenience of storing the note in my collection, safe from the potential of confiscation. Just let me know when the transfer can take place.

David

Dear David and Bill,

You guys just do not get it. We are talking about defective goods here. Just on principle you should want to get it replaced with standard notes. However, you even run the risk of having the note not honored or even confiscated by an over zealous finance officer. I highly suggest that you take that advice given in Gram 900 and submit the note for replacement.

Editor and finance clerk

Reference the above response to David and Bill about the MFC 031 error note.[similar response appeared yesterday and today] You offered to replace it with a correct note. Does that mean there is an unknown hoard of notes at Fest HQ????

Warner

Dear Warner,
Good try! I get the drift, but there is a difference between this situation and the stored 691/701s. Series 031 is CURRENT. It is necessary to maintain stocks for use in normal commerce.

Finance clerk

Dear Esteemed Editor,
Joe Boling mentioned that MPC was stapled together to assist in financial transactions and asked if anyone else knew about them. In Viet Nam, I just happened to be visiting a friend in a large old hotel on Tran Hung Dao street that had been converted to enlisted quarters sometime in 1966. It was payday night and the several pool tables had about twenty noisy men around each one. I just happened to notice that they had stapled ten $10 MPC to make $100 bets in a game with two small white cubes with dots on them. I could not figure out what they were doing, so, of course, my friend and I went out to his favorite bar and celebrated his DEROS the next day.

Today, I received a package from a dealer in the Upper Michigan Peninsula down of Manistique. The postal cancel on his packet has UPMPC MI 498-499. I think this town needs to be used for an MPC-related postal cover with the "UPMPC" cancellation. What do you think?

My item about a Vietnamese monograph mentioning $2,430 million of MPC issued in Viet Nam had me thinking. Please no nasty comments from the editor. Can we verify from the high blocks and serials of all of the known MPC that number is the total MPC issued during the Vietnam War? Has anyone done any work on the total face value of each issue and the amount issued per person? Is that latter number similar to what the dollars and cents issued in the USA? Does anyone care?

That is all for now,

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Gram,
Another threshold, 900 Grams. Congratulations on a job well done!

More on Museum Donations

by Colin Bruce

One point to bring out with donations of numismatic items to museums is: This has to be followed by cash donations for housing of the material, staffing, insurance, etc. and more mailings for more cash donations. Some museums that have numismatic material in their vaults have never displayed them.

One museum in Western New York had an extensive collection, never on display, poorly put away and nature took it's course.

If a museum doesn't display some of it's numismatic holdings or publishes a monthly journal containing some numismatic articles about their holdings on occasion then they should put their numismatic material into the market and pursue their areas of primary interest.

I am all for numismatic specialty museums and museums that give numismatic items an equal venue to other subjects they also have on display.

Gram 901 got caught in the nether world. Round and round it went, but never came out so it was resent on Thursday morning. The additional day did not allow me enough time to notice that I titled Howard's article as Library Donations instead of museum donations. Oh well. And the AOL problems continue to plague the Gram. Please, someone attack AOL and figure out a solution.

Dear Editor and Bill,

Bill Haines discovery of the second $6 variety (a $5 note printed with a $1 back) of series 031 MFC raises more questions. We have a report of a $1 note printed with a $5 inverted back....another $6 note. Both of these notes are serial number F00000089F. These are the only two denominations that have been reported with a serial number 89. Does anybody out there have an 89 serial number on any of their notes? What is the significance of the $6 value? Bill, does your note have an inverted back?

I want to thank all of you who have been sending in your serial/pos. number reports. This has allowed us to uncover numerous errors. Another variety which needs some clarification is the $4 note with serial numbers 200 and above. Dave Seelye reports the position number under the words series 031 instead of its typical location to the right of the lower serial number. Do these notes have 1 or 2 serial numbers? Could this be a second printing?

Please check your notes with serial numbers 200 and higher on other denominations to see if there are any differences. I traded all my notes away for sn 7 so I need your input on any varieties or anomalies.

Great find Bill.

Regards,
Al

Dear Editor,

I have not read the NN article about donating vs. selling, but one significant factor is timing. If you are talking about lifetime transfers, the determining factor may be taxes. Rare notes that were obtained for little money could lead to a sizeable tax bite in a lifetime sale. On the other hand, the deduction for a charitable gift of property is based on its fair market value.

A post-death sale should not lead to any income tax consequences since the estate or the beneficiary would have a stepped-up tax basis equal to the fair market value at the date of death. The same is true for a post-death donation. If the estate is large enough, however, there may be estate tax consequences which could be avoided by a lifetime transfer, or a partial sale and partial donation.

Even though the federal estate tax exemptions are increasing, it is advisable for those with sizeable collections to seek out professional advice on estate planning issues, especially if they desire to preserve their collections from beyond the grave.

Jim Downey

Hi Fred,
My father in law (WW II vet) was recently located by the Gov't services and awarded two bronze stars if I recall correctly. I will check this out at the end of the month.
Cheers,
Colin
Dear Esteemed Editor,

Joe Boling mentioned that MPC was stapled together to assist in financial transactions and asked if anyone else knew about them. In Viet Nam, I just happened to be visiting a friend in a large old hotel on Tran Hung Dao street that had been converted to enlisted quarters sometime in 1966. It was payday night and the several pool tables had about twenty noisy men around each one. I just happened to notice that they had stapled ten $10 MPC to make $100 bets in a game with two small white cubes with dots on them. I could not figure out what they were doing, so, of course, my friend and I went out to his favorite bar and celebrated his DEROS the next day.

My item about a Vietnamese monograph mentioning $2,430 million of MPC issued in Viet Nam had me thinking. Please no nasty comments from the editor. Can we verify from the high blocks and serials of all of the known MPC that number is the total MPC issued during the Vietnam War?

Has anyone done any work on the total face value of each issue and the amount issued per person? Is that latter number similar to what the dollars and cents issued in the USA? Does anyone care?

That is all for now,

Howard A. Daniel III

Crating of AMC for shipping to Japan

By Howard A. Daniel III

At the Charlotte ANA National Money Show on March 23 (the last day), a man walks up to my NI/NBS/IBNS club table. He asked me if I knew anything about American dollar notes for Japan after World War II. I get some wild questions at the table and this one was starting off to be the best for this show. I started questioning the man by what he meant by dollars for Japan, and I quickly figured out he was talking about Allied Military Currency (AMC), but he insisted they were dollars.

But as I questioned him further, he started to become a little irritated with me. Most of you know me as of diplomat quality, so I could not see why he was getting upset with me. So I stopped telling him they were not dollars and asked him why he was asking me about these notes. He said his father, Albert Nelson Dale Jr. an US Army T2 (Corporal) was on the Army detail packing this paper money at the San Francisco Mint during WWII, and that prisoners were being used as the packers while prison guards closely guarded the whole thing. Wow! This was getting interesting, but I could see he was not into my interrogation, so I asked him if he was interested in purchasing any of the pieces for himself. He replied in the affirmative, so I gave him directions to Leo May.

After about ten minutes, I walked to Leo's table and the man was going through AMC and JIM notes with him. I sat down and decided to start my interrogation again. This time, he was not so upset and was really happy. I guess Leo put him in the right mood. I asked him if he remembered any of the details about what his father said about packing the money. He repeated the location, using prisoners with a small Army detail, and lots of prison guards. Then he added that 10,000 notes were placed in each wooden crate, the wooden lids were pre-holed for screws and they were screw down onto the crates when the packing was completed. Then the top of each screw had plastic seals put over them. This was very interesting but he knew no more about the seals. Do you think they were some form of wax and stamped with seals to easily show that anyone had played with them? Then he said each crate was wrapped in several metal bands.

He could not remember anything else, but his father must have participated in getting the crates to a ship(s) or plane(s). Maybe Fred, Joe or one of you can start corresponding with him and find out more about his father's association with Japan AMC. His name is Albert N. Dale III, and he lives at 9029 Victory Trail, Union Mills, NC 28167, and his father might have left him many WWII photographs and other stuff, so it would be very worthwhile to contact this man. But please handle him gently and not like my old Master Sergeant ways. Good luck!

Our biggest disappointments in Gram publishing--and surprise too--has been the slow use of the for sale section. This section is intended to be a place to buy and sell notes. In spite of the under utilization, the section has worked VERY well. There have been some major sales and many minor sales. Sellers have reported selling out and have reported selling items within minutes of the Gram being published. Nonetheless, the section has been under used. Even though it is extra work for the Gram staff, sales items are good for the Gram and we want to include your for sale items. Send them to the Gram in the body of an e-mail (preferred) or as an attachment (very much less preferred).

Having said all of the above, I can report that people who have continued to check the for sale items over the past few months have found some good items for sale. Congratulations--and thank you--to those buyers and sellers.

Ed Hoffman has provided a nice list of MPC for sale. It will run over the next few days so be sure to have a look. Furthermore, I am going to work up material from the black hole for sale. I will try to have a new item, however insignificant--or significant, every day. Watch the Gram for things to buy and send us lists of items for sale!

Dear Editor:

This afternoon, on eBay, I spied an unusual item. It was a 661 $10 in VF, but was completely missing all of the ink in the color of "10 Dollars." Anything that was supposed to be that color is not there, obverse and reverse. I grew so excited, I purchased the note immediately.

But then I consulted your book. On the error pages I looked at, I saw what you have pictured regarding notes missing colors / printings (and counterfeits). I also saw the unusual, but authentic, 692 $20 that was missing two color printings. My heart sunk when I realized that my haste to find something so rare may, more likely, be a counterfeit. But I have to ask myself two questions: One, could only one color be bleached, when all of the others are in tact no problem? And two, if one is going to counterfeit a note, why would they counterfeit one of the rarest MPCs?

I obviously haven't received the note yet, but I intend to put it under ultraviolet light when I get it. So my question for you is, are any notes known of this type of error, or what are the odds that this could be authentic? Any info would be greatly appreciated. Thanks a bunch!

Matthew J.

Hello Matthew,

Thanks for writing. I found the item on ebay. My preliminary opinion is that the note has been washed and the color (blue in particlar) has washed out. I think some color is missing from both sides which is very damning if I am correct. Also, the note might well have been washed in a uniform pocket in Vietnam. Of course I cannot say this for sure without seeing the note. Examination under sun, incandescent, flourscent, AND UV light will be helpful. I plan on running your letter in the Gram (assume that is ok and also assume that you receive the Gram). I will look forward to your report after receiving the item.

More on Museum donations.

Flemming Lyngbeck Hansen

I have myself thought of the same thing. To ensure that primarily the rare stuff is preserved for the future generations, I have thought of giving at least the most rare items to a worthy museum. (Provided it's better protected than the Baghdad archeological museum....) Because notes in the hand of collectors can get lost, as the following story is an example of. Last month more than 600000 Danish kroner in cash (= about 90000 US dollars) was found in a garbage container. They were picked up by an honest person and handed over to the police. The notes were of the Danish series of 1972 (Pick 48 to 53), but mainly 100 kroner bills (P51). This series is out of daily use, but still valid. The police started investigating, and eventually the owner was found. It was the surviving spouse of a person who over a lifetime had gathered this sum as life savings and kept the notes in the home. Apparently the spouse was not much involved in this, because the explanation given to the police was, that the spouse thought the notes were obsolete and therefore worthless, and this was the reason the notes were thrown out. Now, because of the honest person, the money was recovered.

What can we as collectors learn from this story? I mean, had it been a MPC/AMC collection, the spouse would have been correct; officially the notes would have been worthless. And if they had been valid, they probably would have been spent or handed over to a bank. Face it, people who don't collect, often don't care, unless they have the right information. So, first, involve your spouse (if you have one, otherwise another trustworthy person) in your hobby, at least to the point that the collection needs to be preserved.

Secondly, if you want to be sure that the collection is handed over to the next generation safely, either make a will, or sell off the collection in time. The tricky question here is, when is "in time"? To avoid answering this question, make the will. In there you can include donations to museums, you know will take good care of it, if that is what you wish. But the key thing here is that you have to do "the dirty work" (= deciding the future of your collection) yourself, and not leave that problem to your spouse or others.

Annual World War II Conference at Siena College

By Howard A. Daniel III

In my Summer 2002 issue of the Army Historical Foundation (AHF) "On Point" newsletter, there is an article with the title of "Siena College to Sponsor Annual World War II Conference in 2003". Siena College, in Loudonville, New York, sponsors an annual international and multidisciplinary conference on World War II. The 2003 conference will center on 1943. The person to contact about this conference is Professor Thomas O. Kelly II in the Department of History, Siena College, 515 Loudon Road, Loudonville, NY 12211-1462. His telephone and fax number is 518-786-5052, and his email is legendziejewicz@siena.edu. I am sure that a Gramster can make a presentation every year about MPC and/or military money of World War II, and exhibit pieces too. I am sure information of use to us can be found as a result of these conferences and new collectors are likely to be created after they see what we collect, research and write about. Who lives near this college?

Editorial

Doug "Wiz" Bell has received reports that the Gram has arrived with attachments. He further reports that that is probably because of a virus in the server that his used to deliver Gram subscriptions. He is working to hospitalize that computer. For the foreseeable future, the Gram will not be sent with attachments, so if you receive a Gram with an attachment, DO NOT open the attachment. The Gram itself is probably uninfected, but the attachment could be dangerous.

We continue to have delivery difficulties to AOL addresses and I have complained bitterly about that here (but not to AOL because I am not a customer there, PLEASE call AOL if you ARE an AOL customer). We also continue to fight the problems with work arounds that have not been working around very well. However, now with this virus report, it occurs to me that possibly AOL is doing something good. Possibly AOL is able to detect the virus and not forward the infected Grams. Even if this is so, they are not doing a very good service, because they are not notifying the sender (MPCGram/papermoneyworld) or the intended recipient, so I cannot let them off the hook, but it is interesting.

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram,

Just received the May Bank Note Reporter. On Page 6 there is a picture of Judy and Fred receiving the President's award from John Wilson, Tiffany Bueschel and Joe Boling.

On Page 14 "letters to the Editor" John Wilson writes glowing praise for the FEST and many of the activities.

David

Dear Gram,

Please refer back to MPCGram # 696 about Ray Czahor's report on a visit to the ANS Headquarters and the mess that their accumulation was/is in! I believe just about everybody who has collected for any period of time can relate horror stories about donated items being stored after a short period on display and then disappearing at some future date. I for one will not make donations of anything other than perhaps a buck or two to these folks!

John Glass

Dear John,

Wow, Gram 696! How can you find things in 900 Grams? Smells like a story here to me!

More on "ro" notes

By Joe Boling

A gram reader sent an inquiry about the ro notes that have been discussed in this space the past few weeks. His question points up the hazards of oldtimers using abbreviated descriptions of numismatic items--jargon, if you will. His email reads, in part: "The last few grams you talk about five yen ro notes. I am confused. I always thought that yen and ro(ryo) as I remember were two different kinds of money. Could you explain."

Actually, yen and ryo, although called differently, are more closely related than many would suspect. When originally defined (late 1870 or early 1871), the gold yen was equivalent to the gold ryo; the name was changed to "yen" (or "en"), meaning "round," because of the change in the shape of gold coinage, from oval or rectangular to round.

Which has nothing to do with ro notes. Those are a specialized issue of Japanese military yen, found on pages 593-4 of Schwan-Boling. In the Pick catalog, they are listed under French Indochina (with M numbers, for military). The other military yen notes are listed under China, also with M- prefixed catalog numbers. The term "ro" comes from the syllabary character used as a block prefix on the initial issues of this series (later printings dropped the "ro" character, but retained the distinctive backs, so the later printings are still easily separated from the other military yen notes--not to mention that the late "ro" series printings are lithographed, not engraved).

The "ro" notes are the Japanese equivalent of MPC. They were issued only to the troops garrisoning Hainan Island and later Indochina, and they lack an exchange clause; the anti- counterfeiting clause is redesigned to fill the space that is shared by both exchange and anti- counterfeiting clauses on the other "bird and dragon" military yen issues. The distinction is that the other issues were used by civilians, in tremendous quantities; the "ro" issues were used only by limited numbers of troops, and had no exchange value. We actually have no evidence that civilians were prohibited from using "ro" notes, but lacking an exchange clause, they would have been less welcome.

The notes with the ro character have always been very scarce to rare, until unc notes started trickling, then flowing, out of China.

Formerly, the only frequently seen "ro" series note was the ten-yen brown and blue lithographed piece that lacks the "ro" character in front of the block number. There is a companion lithographed one-yen note for the "ro" series; it was apparently never released. I have never seen one "live." The 100-yen note in the series exists only as a lithographed specimen; there is no 100-yen note with the "ro" block prefix.

And my source for new sightings says that he has seen two more 5-yen "ro" notes, so my cautions of last week are more strongly offered this week.

And speaking of old-timers, I was reading back issues of The Numismatist this weekend, while traveling, and saw that Dr. Harry Watters was reported deceased in the October 2002 issue. He was stationed in Japan during the occupation and was a friend of Francis Sanders (of whom we have written previously). He had an extensive collection of Japanese coins and medals.

The Internet goblins got us yesterday. All day long my computer would run, but when I got on the internet to work on the Gram, it crawled. I tried three different browsers in three different operating systems, of course rebooting for each combination. Usually drinking a cup of coffee and cursing for each combination as well. By late night, I was fried. Then I decided to read the directions so to speak and called the cable company. This was actually easier than I had anticipated. The technician checked my system remotely and gave it a go. Then he told me that the system was just out to get me. No, he did not say that. He reported that there was some sort of major slow down of everything from me to the Atlantic. He did sort of indicate that my house might be the farthest west to have this difficulty so maybe the system WAS out to get me!

Doug Bell reports that he has cleaned, disinfected, washed, replaced, polished and otherwise adjusted, repaired, or replaced the server (whatever that is) so that we should get as good a transmission today as we will ever get. Therefore, hopefully, this Gram will get to some AOL customers who have been having problems. AOL users, please create a new address at hotmail or Yahoo (or other free service if you must) for purpose of receiving your Gram. Then send a subscribe notice to Doug@papermoneyworld.net. Grams will still be sent to your AOL address, but if you do not receive it via AOL, you can check your alternate address.

In going through all of the above, I realized that there may not have been a Gram 903. If one was created and I can find it, I will salvage the editorial material. Otherwise, it just looks like you were cheated out of another Gram. Subscriptions will be extended TWO issues because of this oversight. Hopefully, this will satisfy everyone (but it will not).

Dear Gram,

It would help to place the address to send next FEST reservation money to, if the address was furnished.

Also the cost for a single and a double.

John Cheney

Dear Gram,

Put Joe Bissell and me down for Fest Five. I am going to make him go!

Steve Swoosh

Dear John and Steve,

Great news. I believe that Fest registration is ahead of schedule. It is particularly gratifying to see so many new Festers so soon in the process. We have added some more details in the schedule below and of course there will be plenty more discussion in the coming weeks.

Editor

Hello Fred-

Please explain to me in clear and precise detail how to continue getting the Gram on AOL. I am only getting about one a week.

Thank you.

Dear J,

Please see the editorial above?and please call AOL to complain.

"Rendezvous With Destiny" Notes Come Home

by Harold Kroll

Since the first Fest was held back in 2000, there have been many collectibles generated by various collectors. Autographed items, souvenir cards, magnets quite a few of these items were created specifically for participants, others were items that get generated from leftover happenings. MFC and AFC notes are getting a lot of attention from collectors. For those of you who do not know these terms, here is an explanation. MFC stands for MILITARY FEST CERTIFICATES and AFC stands for ALLIED FEST CERTIFICATES. These were printed in various denominations over the past years and used to reenact the pay process as close to military procedure as was possible, at the Fests, ANA Summer Seminar events, and even Masstricht Netherlands, the Euros were introduced.

From the beginning, Fest one, I had elected to collect the certificates with serial number two along with any other items that were issued with serial numbers at each event. From Fest one, first ANA Seminar and Fest two this was a fairly easy project but then other collectors started taking a fancy to these little pieces of paper and things started to tighten up. Another collector, I won't say his name, but his initials are David Seelye, decided that this was a very good item to collect and he picked serial number one for his project. Problem was he did not stop at collecting, he had a brain cramp and wanted to have all the notes and he set out to do so. David is a close friend and I do pick on him from time to time but he is also a very big supporter of the Fest by doing what he does. I was not able to attend the seminar of 2002 but was fortunate to acquire examples from a few examples of issues there from those who did, Warner Talso, and yes David both worked to get me as many serial number two's of the AFC notes as they could. I ended up buying a few from another student to almost complete the set of serial number two's.

There have been a few other events held, Texfest I, Texfest II and the ANA museum opening, with 3 different denominations being issued for this event.

"Rendezvous With Destiny" was the overprint used on Series 022 from Fest III for these 3 issued notes, 16 sets were printed, that is 48 notes, to be given out at the opening. The suffix letter was changed to a silhouette of a bomber and of course the overprint. As far as we can tell there were only 4 complete sets given out, serial numbers 1, 2, 4, 8, with the rest of the notes being given out in single pieces.

By now you probably can see where this is going, and it gets better. Gail Baker, ANA Educational Director, ended up with the serial number 2 set and was bombarded with phone calls from several people to buy the set as were two out of the other three owners of the sets. Everyone knew that set number 8 would not be for sale as this guy collects eight's so that left three possible sets for a few of us crazies to go after and we did just that with no avail.

After some serious thought Gail Baker decided to put her set up for auction at Fest IV with the proceeds to go to the scholarship fund that we support. She had mailed the set to Fred which almost became a disaster as anything that gets mailed to Fred seems to get lost in the Port Clinton Black Hole, and they did. With help from Larry we found the set among the piles of notes in Fred's office and a sigh of relief was had by all. Up to this point it was not known what was going to happen if the notes were not found. Auction day at the Fest finally became a reality, Sunday morning.

As the auction proceeded with many good items that were donated being sold, the tension was building for the number 2 set of notes. It was listed as lot #142 out of 144 lots. This was because of the trouble locating the notes in Fred's office or they would have been featured sooner in the auction catalog. The auctioneer decided after several queries were made to put lot # 142 up for auction about halfway through the sale and the bidding started.

I really do not remember if there were other bidders at the start but it came down to David and me with David winning the lot. I was number "2" in the bidding, kind of fitting in a way. I also came in number "2" in the March Madness MPC Champion quiz. Being a little disappointed, in fact a great amount of disappointment, I had to come up with an idea to get this set of notes.

I knew David was going to go after the number 1 set, what I did not know at the time was his plan. As it turned out he made a trade with the owner of the number 1 set for the number 2 set, what all was involved I do not know. I knew then that I had to come up with an offer that would make a trade for the set possible.

Larry had decided to ride with me on the return trip to L.A. (lower Alabama). While the company and conversations were great and very enjoyable, all the time I'm thinking how to put a trade together for the number 2 set of notes, and I did just that. The next day after arriving home, I had a priority mail package on the way with an offer for the set. A few days later I made a phone call to see if the package had arrived, it did. This collector was amazed to receive an offer so soon after the Fest and I promptly explained that this set had to come home and be with the rest of the number 2 notes.

He was unsure at the time about what he wanted to do on trading. I told him to take all the time he needed but inside I was saying trade now. Several weeks went by and I was wondering what was going to happen on the trade offer and a week ago this last Saturday I received a phone call and the trade was completed. I picked up the notes at the post office Friday afternoon and when I got home there was a e-mail from the sender stating that he was excessively worried about the US mail, had the notes arrived. I fired off a reply saying that the notes had arrived safe and sound. They were home. This set of notes has quite a pedigree behind them already, but they will not be going anywhere soon. There are times when you think that things do not go your way but eventually things work out for the best in the end. Thanks W.

I should mention that Al Glaser has published a catalog with listings of all known issues of MFC and AFC including replacements, errors, listing of notes by serial numbers, etc. It is a great addition to this area of collecting.

Mel Steinbergs letter below giving us his new phone numbers brought the matter of the Hot Contact List to the front burner. A few days ago, we worked a little on the HCL. It should be coming through more clearly now, but still the multiple computers etc make it difficult to guarantee a nice readable format.

Now, I would like everyone on the list to please check your data. Send us corrections so that we can correct them here AND the other places where the HCL is published. Please do it promptly.

Dear MPCgram,

The article by Joe Boling was fascinating!!! I would like to say that the information there is really interesting and is worth keeping.

I am a collector of WWII currency, but a young one at it. I can just add to Joe Boling's article is that I myself got a ro note, about unc, the 50-sen note, I got it last month here in Beijing, for $125.

Keep sending them interesting articles!!!

Neil Kaplan

Dear Neil,

Thank you. We love praise (even if it is directed at Joe)! What else did you get in Beijing?

Dear MPC GRAM gang:

I am a bit shy to barge into this very interesting and enlightening discussion which I have been watching for months since my friend of long years, Howard Daniel, suggested that I should subscribe to MPC GRAM.

I have to say that I am very impressed with the level of knowledge and expertise that is reflected in virtually all of the contributions from the active participants. This is a truly interesting forum and I am learning a lot from it.

I would like to ask the group if there are any leads that can point me in the direction of Thai medals and rank insignias/uniforms for the Royal Thai Army from 1930 to 1945. Being that I live in Thailand and have been here for the last 17 years, it seems ludicrous that I would ask such a thing. However, even the Thais that I know don't seem to have a clue and the military museums are very difficult to access for civilians.

I am thinking that there may be some folks in this network that have knowledge about this subject which may be a jump start for me.

I am open to any suggestions. Thanks for the read.

Best regards,

John Conrad
Bangkok

Dear John,

What is going on here? So much praise? You guys must be setting us up for a big fall!

?American Red Cross Bankers? Club, Daily Sightseeing Tours, March 30 ? April 5 (1947)? It is a long sheet of paper with mimeographed information about each day?s tour to sites/locations not far from Tokyo. The April 1 date is a ?Silk Mill Tour? and there are another two long sheets of mimeographed paper with a colored in Red Cross describing it. And I have the Katakura & Company Limited 32-pages booklet handed out to each person on the tour of the silk mill. The booklet is interesting in that it is dated 1937 and done on high grade paper with a tied cover, and not postwar. The reason I bought this group is because of the ?Bankers? Club? on the ARC pages. But it might also be connected to chits and/or coupons at that club and this material could be added to a collection and possibly used in an exhibit. The junk store I bought it appears to have pamphlets for all of the other tour dates, if someone is interested in them. I want $5.50 postpaid for the three above items. Please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com.

Editorial/opinion

At least one little problem has been fixed. It is now clear who the editor is. For the past year there has been a little inconsistency. Phil Goldstein was listed as the Gram editor. Back around Gram 700, he took over as editor for a few weeks. Possibly Ed Beaman or someone knows just how long and what numbers. He stopped performing the duties when his father became ill.

One of the things that aggravated me during this editorship was to declare himself editor on the masthead (in our case mastfoot, grin). What upset me was that we had discussed this potential promotion from assistant to full editor. The plan that I explained to him (as publisher) was that when he had completed something on the order of 100 Grams, we not only would promote him, but (and this is the important part) we would do it in a big way. I would write an editorial exclaiming about his good works and wanting to turn over the reigns, etc. Then readers would send in many letters congratulating both of us. In short it would be a newsworthy event. We would also send releases to the print numismatic journals.

He ignored this plan (direction) and simply boosted himself to editor. When he stopped performing the duties and I started again, I did not want to summarily remove him as editor in the same way that he had added himself. I hoped that he would one day understand and at least write a letter resigning. Of course, it was also possible that he would take over again. I wanted him to do it on his own (just as he had elevated himself on his own).

David Klinger was the only person ever to write or inquire about the seeming inconsistency. I did not publish his letter waiting for the right time and way to address this matter.

One of the little necessities of all of this was that, once I started performing duties as editor again, I started signing my editorials with my name. A common practice in newspapers is to have unsigned editorials when they are by the editor, or possibly even by anyone on the editorial staff. When they are by some other person they are signed or at least identified.

Now I will stop signing the editorials. They remain my opinions, but the authorship and ownership of the opinions is meant to be understood since it is under the Editorial banner. Heck, for not a lot more money I can add the word opinion to the banner.

As always, your comments and opinions are very welcome.

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram,

Please tell me this is only another "April Fool" jokes. If it is not, can we give the individual the benefits of doubt? Please be reminded that every one is assumed to be innocent until proven guilty.

Can we have the version of the accused party? Every one has the right to defend himself. Perhaps there are some misunderstanding, forgotten trades, forgotten agreement, etc. If all that fail, can we - the MPC community - forgive one of our own?

I am beyond sad. If the accusation is true, and I am sure there is a logical explanation for it, can you arrange to drop the legal charge so the individual is not in trouble with the law. Whoever it may be already learned the lesson and already paid dearly. We are all human beings with weaknesses and wants and greed.

Best regards,
TN

Dear Sir,

You make some very good points. First, let me say, that I and the others involved would not have taken the actions that we have without careful consideration.

Certainly, the suspect is innocent until proven guilty. Furthermore, he is certainly welcome to space here in the Gram to state his case.

As to forgiveness. I can only speak for myself. Of course there is room for forgiveness. Indeed, there is little or no room for hate, but there is also room for restitution and contriteness. I hope that we see lots of all of these things.

Editor

?American Red Cross Bankers? Club, Daily Sightseeing Tours, March 30 ? April 5 (1947)? It is a long sheet of paper with mimeographed information about each day?s tour to sites/locations not far from Tokyo. The April 1 date is a ?Silk Mill Tour? and there are another two long sheets of mimeographed paper with a colored in Red Cross describing it. And I have the Katakura & Company Limited 32-pages booklet handed out to each person on the tour of the silk mill. The booklet is interesting in that it is dated 1937 and done on high grade paper with a tied cover, and not postwar. The reason I bought this group is because of the ?Bankers? Club? on the ARC pages. But it might also be connected to chits and/or coupons at that club and this material could be added to a collection and possibly used in an exhibit. The junk store I bought it appears to have pamphlets for all of the other tour dates, if someone is interested in them. I want $5.50 postpaid for the three above items. Please contact me

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 910 Monday April 28, 2003

An Open Letter

By Ron Waddell

This summer I will be attending the Military Numismatics seminar at the ANA on a scholarship from the Military Numismatics Scholarship Fund. I first became interested in military numismatics about 10 years ago when I decided to get specimens of Series 481 and 521, the MPC I used during my Army tour in Germany. This led to getting the basic set of MPC and any other military money and related items I could find. The purchase of "World War II Remembered" really got my interests up because I love to collect things with history behind them and there isn't anything with such a wide and fascinating area of history as those created by conflicts and emergencies. But you don't get the full story by reading a book. You need to see the specimens and talk to the experts to really gain the knowledge you need to fully appreciate our hobby. This became very evident when I attended my first Fest (MPC Fest IV). The friendly people I met, the fantastic specimens I saw, and the sharing of information was simply great. I was determined to continue adding to what I was learning and attending the summer seminar has to be the next step. I would like to thank everyone, personally and individually, for the opportunity they have given me; the time and effort they have devoted to the promotion of our hobby; and the financial support they have so generously given - but this is just not possible because there are so many that have played a role. Just look at the list of names in MPCGram 909. To each and everyone of you, please accept my sincere gratitude for this opportunity.

AOL under attack. We have a new approach to fighting the way that AOL kills your daily Gram. If you are an AOL user, hopefully, your Grams have been getting through much more regularly recently. The simple answer is that this is good news, but there is no guarantee that AOL will not figure out another way to get us. I still highly suggest that if you receive your Gram at an AOL address, that you come up with an alternative address for your Gram. Create a new address at Yahoo, Hotmail or some other free service or start a second subscription at a work address, spouse address or whatever.

We are sorry to have to spend so much time on this subject, but we love our AOL subscribers too (even if AOL does not)!

MAIL CALL

Dear Esteemed Editor,

If you go to www.SaigonWarrior.com, you can find a picture of the Free Military Forces (FMF) Headquarters in Saigon during the Vietnam War. There are quite a few flags flying at its entrance and I could not clearly see all of them, so I asked Jim Finnigan, a former CMAC Signal Officer if he could see which flags are in the picture. He wrote that one of them was the Netherlands and he remembers they had a communications team there. If so, are they in THE MPC catalog because all of the FMF had PX privileges and had to have spent MPC in them.

Sincerely,

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Editor,

Remember the old expression, "protect me from my friends as I know who my enemies are"!!!! Next time that you need your office straightened, please call me.

Richard

Dear Editor,

After reading the Grams published just after Fest IV and the stories about the infamous "black hole" I am sure from a personal standpoint you were a lot more than sad by what had occurred. Please take heart in the fact that there were (still are) individuals who take friendship seriously and are there for you when you need it.

Hopefully all will be recovered. I'll see you in Memphis!

Regards,

Roger

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I went to the www.eureree.com site and registered for the auction. I received an email today that a fully illustrated catalogue will be mailed to me on or about May 15. If you or others interested in Thai WWII paper money and postal items want this catalogue, please register as soon as possible because I am sure the number will be limited, especially for mailing overseas. FYI.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,

This sounds great except that I could not get the address to work. Please figure that out and we will publish your third letter on the same sale before it even takes place!

Editor

Dear Editor,

For the third time, please put me down for Fest V ? I am almost getting some type of syndrome that you don?t want me to show up cause you never log my reservation.

I am working on some driver packages that I will send to Judy that will have maps and signs and everything for next years Fest.

Cheers,
Sparky

Dear Sparky,

Oh that Fest. You want to come to the Fest. Now I have it!

Editor

Dear Editor,

Gram delivery has been much better. I just got three in a row.

?American Red Cross Bankers? Club, Daily Sightseeing Tours, March 30 ? April 5 (1947)? It is a long sheet of paper with mimeographed information about each day?s tour to sites/locations not far from Tokyo. The April 1 date is a ?Silk Mill Tour? and there are another two long sheets of mimeographed paper with a colored in Red Cross describing it. And I have the Katakura & Company Limited 32-pages booklet handed out to each person on the tour of the silk mill. The booklet is interesting in that it is dated 1937 and done on high grade paper with a tied cover, and not postwar. The reason I bought this group is because of the ?Bankers? Club? on the ARC pages. But it might also be connected to chits and/or coupons at that club and this material could be added to a collection and possibly used in an exhibit. The junk store I bought it appears to have pamphlets for all of the other tour dates, if someone is interested in them. I want $5.50 postpaid for the three above items. Please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com.

Another Survey

By Joe Boling

Some of you might remember that last year I reported on the cash that was handled following the annual convention of the Pacific NW Numismatic Assn. The convention was this past weekend (conflicting with CICF), and I have just finished the analysis of the cash that came in (and that will be deposited later today (that which was not deposited Saturday)).

Old design notes, and older series, continue to disappear. There was not a single note above $5 in old designs (and only two of the $5 bills). Stars are also not very widely used, amounting to 1.1% of the notes seen.

Of 412 dollar bills being deposited, they break out like this: 1985 1/2% (two notes); 1995 10%; 1999 63%; 2001 27%. Five $1 star notes in 412 pieces.

Of $5 bills (74 notes): 1985 and 1988A, 1.35% each (one note); 1995 2.7% (two notes); 1999 55%; 2001 39%.

Of $10 bills (22 notes): series 1999 82%; 2001 18%. One star note (series 1999).

Of $20 bills (109 notes): series 1996 55%; series 1999 36%; 2001 9%.

In $50 bills (8 notes); all 1996. In $100 bills, 7 pieces, again all 1996.

The $5 turns out to be a larger workhorse than I realized; there was more value circulating in fives than in tens (though the twenties blow them both out of the water).

We also took in twenty dimes. I started the till with Sacagawea dollars and CU 1995 $2 bills; the registration woman said the customers loved them as far as they went.

More next year.

=====

Sorry that I left you Gramless for the past two (nearly three) days. I had to make an unexpected road trip that wore me out. When I got to the destination the telephones in the Holiday Inn did not work (none of them) so I had to look for an internet café or equivalent to put out a Gram. The desk person gave directions. After returning to the Inn twice for clarification, I gave up. There was some sort of reason that we were not to have a Gram. Of course all of my in boxes overflowed from neglect compounding the problems so I am lucky to get this Gram out, but there will be no subscription extensions!

Dear Gram,

I hate to bug you with this, but I can't seem to locate Marcus to bug him. I was able to get a showcase at a local high school for National Coin Week, and Marcus graciously supplied a nice variety of MPC and associated materials to be displayed. When I went to the school yesterday to pick up the materials, the instructor that arranged for our use of the showcase had some occupational pieces. He wanted to know the approximate value of them, so I told him that I would show them to Marcus at our club meeting last night. Unfortunately, Marcus couldn't make it. I emailed the images to Marcus, but haven't heard back from him yet. I need to take these pieces back to the instructor today, so he doesn't think I am a thief. I have attached some small pics of these pieces, because your mailbox can?t take anything too huge (I tried). Can you take a stab at their value? I suspect that they aren?t worth a lot, if the prices at eBay are any indication.

Thanks!

- Gail Phillips

Dear Fred,

Are all things well in Port Clinton? No 'Grams have arrived since Monday (#910)...

Just checkin'

Jay

Dear Gram,

I received my Series 691 $1 note, marked void, in the mail yesterday. I was very pleased with it. It had the VOID stamp on the face and had a USO stamp over the back. Of course the note was in CU otherwise.

William Choate

Dear Esteemed Editor,

I sent an email to friends in Bangkok and they said I had the email address wrong to access the auction there that includes many Thai WWII paper money and postal items. I could not believe I had made a mistake but it appears the address should be <http://www.eurseree.com/>. Again, I would like to suggest that everyone register for their catalogue as soon as possible because the number sent overseas will likely be limited. You can also see an online version of the catalog but some of the lots did not have estimated prices and/or images. Good hunting and good luck.

?American Red Cross Bankers? Club, Daily Sightseeing Tours, March 30 ? April 5 (1947)? It is a long sheet of paper with mimeographed information about each day's tour to sites/locations not far from Tokyo. The April 1 date is a ?Silk Mill Tour? and there are another two long sheets of mimeographed paper with a colored in Red Cross describing it. And I have the Katakura & Company Limited 32-pages booklet handed out to each person on the tour of the silk mill. The booklet is interesting in that it is dated 1937 and done on high grade paper with a tied cover, and not postwar. The reason I bought this group is because of the ?Bankers? Club? on the ARC pages. But it might also be connected to chits and/or coupons at that club and this material could be added to a collection and possibly used in an exhibit. The junk store I bought it appears to have pamphlets for all of the other tour dates, if someone is interested in them. I want $5.50 postpaid for the three above items. Please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com.

Fest Note Update—a weekly column

By Al Glaser

Fellow Fester Russ Walsh made a wonderful discovery as he was looking through his notes listing his serial numbers to send in for the book. The $20 notes have two varieties. Those with one position number and those with two position numbers. Serial number F00000130F has been reported with two position numbers along with F00000153F. Could this be a second printing? Please report in on your $20's, it will be interesting to see if number 100 has one position number and 101 has two numbers. This could be a new way to collect MFC, looking for a "changeover pair" (this is to get David excited). For those of you who might not know, Russ Walsh designed series 031 which is the current MFC used at Fest events. Information regarding series 031 has been leaked which states the dollar denominated issues were printed under Fest HQ control, however, the fractionals were printed by the designer and delivered to Fest HQ just prior to Fest IV. This answers a couple of questions, why there wasn't any bar-coding and micro printing on the fractionals, and why we haven't discovered any errors on the fractionals.

Keep up the serial number reports as this has helped in finding most of the varieties so far. Also, just received my 691 $1 VOID note, Thank you Mr. 691. I believe there are two varieties of the VOID notes as well. Mine had a Red Cross stamp on the back. I wonder if anyone has a USO stamp on the back.

On top of all of the other problems swirling around me right now, my computer died on Friday. The worker operating the back hoe struck the power line while the computer was writing critical files. After many hours of effort I got it (the computer) limping along, but I could not keep it going well enough to work on the Gram much less all of the other projects piled up here. In addition to knocking out my computer, his misdeed delayed the installation of the poison gas module for my new home security system.

We have lots of good information both news and letters backed up so we should be able to get some Grams out regularly for the next few days (poison gas installation permitting).

Dear Editor,
No gram for days!!!!

Nick Schrier

Dear Gram,
Nancy and I truly had a wonderful and great time at MPC Fest IV in Port Clinton, OH. held in late February. Military life begins from the time you check in and are issued your dog tags / individual pay record and subsequent Military Fest Certificates (paper money issued with errors and stars).
You are also given duty assignments and other interesting work which adds to the great flavor of the Fest.

The auction (fund raising for ANA seminar scholarships or to get rid of duplicates), bourse, programs, educational experiences, exhibits, give a-ways (including a reference on all issued Military Fest Certificates compliments of Al Glaser), other souvenirs including a souvenir card, military tokens, awards / honors, other games, hotel accommodations, meals, location, atmosphere and camaraderie with other Festers make this a must attend event - even if you aren't interested in military money. They will even pick you up and take you back to the airport you come into as did David Seelye. Thank you David, and everyone else who picked up and took Festers back to the airports.

The organizers are be commended for a great job in the planning of this event. We were honored to be part of the fabulous weekend called MPC Fest IV. It is very heartwarming to see and experience all that these MPC hobbyists do for our great hobby. Congratulations once again, to Judy (the Boss) and Fred Schwan, as it was my honor to give them a Presidents Award.

Yours in Numismatics, John and Nancy Wilson, Ocala, FL.

Nancy and John Wilson

“American Red Cross Bankers’ Club, Daily Sightseeing Tours, March 30 – April 5 (1947)” It is a long sheet of paper with mimeographed information about each day’s tour to sites/locations not far from Tokyo. The April 1 date is a “Silk Mill Tour” and there are another two long sheets of mimeographed paper with a colored in Red Cross describing it. And I have the Katakura & Company Limited 32-pages booklet handed out to each person on the tour of the silk mill. The booklet is interesting in that it is dated 1937 and done on high grade paper with a tied cover, and not postwar. The reason I bought this group is because of the “Bankers’ Club” on the ARC pages. But it might also be connected to chits and/or coupons at that club and this material could be added to a collection and possibly used in an exhibit. The junk store I bought it appears to have pamphlets for all of the other tour dates, if someone is interested in them. I want $5.50 postpaid for the three above items. Please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com.

Major Collection to the Block

A major collection of military money will be sold by Lyn Knight auctions. Although the collector is well known to old timers, he has asked to remain anonymous.

The collection is extensive in scope and depth. It includes military payment certificates, Allied military currency, and many other issues. Allied military yen was of particular interest to the collector because he used it in Okinawa (a clue to his identity) and the collection includes rare 1000 AM yen notes.

Knight has indicated that the collection will appear (in whole or part) in the August sale in Dallas. Details will of course be published in the Gram as they become available.

PMW Data Base Aids Investigation

By Doug Bell

I have conferred with a detective on the value of having serial numbers in a database like the one at papermoneyworld.net these are his comments.

Having a list of your serial numbers of all items that may be subject to being stolen is very important.

I asked what can be done to improve the information in that database for the user if a theft does accrue. He suggest to have your list printed and notarized.

I then questioned him on the verification of the data in the database indicating that any electronic data can be changed.

His comment is that I as the operator of the database could provide a notary service to users for the information in the database where I could print out there list and verify the data.

We have implemented a function at papermoneyworld.net that now allows you to download a list of your notes to a spread sheet for your personal use. I am also considering archiving the database periodically as a means of establishing when material is entered. This may not be as good as a notarized list, but it might also take care of the entire community at one time!

The data base was important in identifying and recovering material stolen from David Seelye and Fred Schwan. This proves the importance of this approach for law enforcement which is a great bonus because the information is also available for research and other purposes!

I would like your comments on the above.

We are excited to be the first publication to report the forthcoming sale of a major collection of military notes. (I have also started saving money!!) Of course it is also sad to lose a collector from the active ranks. Such is the nature of collecting. This gets back to the issue discussed a few weeks ago about the best disposition of a collection: sale to collectors or turning over to a museum.

I look forward to the entire process ahead of us. Receiving and studying the catalog, attending the auction (and bidding), and finally receiving new prizes?every step of the process is exciting. Most of those steps also will find their way into the Gram. Of course you can count on me to make my comments, but yours are equally welcome and probably more interesting!

MAIL CALL

Dear Editor,

Guy's letter does not sound like one written by a collector. Rather it sounds more like it was written by an investor who is solely interested in profit!!!! I applaud you, Fred, as I am sure all other TRUE collectors do. Let the investors be damned! Collectors first. Investors last.

Ken

Dear Ken,

Thanks for the support. Sometimes I worry about that target painted on my back (not really). I can attest to Guy's credentials as a collector. Investor? That too.

Frankly I like criticism for the Gram and therefore must be ready to accept it about myself. I even like that. What I do not like is mean spirited criticism (of anyone), but I must admit that defining the mean spirited comment is not easy.

Editor

Dear Esteemed Editor,

You know how bad I am at remembering names, so I am not sure if I know this Guy fellow or not, but I am not sure if I do want to know him. His foaming at the mouth about you, or anyone else, working to not have MPC destroyed is way off base in the MPC Gram.

Collecting anything is something a person does because they enjoy doing it and appreciate their beauty, history, topics, colors, etc., etc. Most collectors want the objects of their searches to not grow too much in value because it puts one or more of their pieces out of reach to their incomes. I do not know a true collector who wants to see any of his collectibles destroyed, and all of them I know would love to see more people join them and share the wealth of owning, researching and writing about them. But if they do grow in value and you can sell them for more than you paid for them, that is good, but it is not the goal of a "collector."

Dealers deal in collectibles to make money, but they are often into them because they also enjoy them. Dealers buy a certain number of collectibles and stock enough of them to take care of their customers. They regularly buy at a percentage below the market price and sell at the market price or more to make a living. This regular buying allows them to avoid most great shocks in pricing. So if they stock more than they need for a particular market cycle, their inventory could be worth less than they paid for it. Investors may have some of the above qualities, but they are really a different person than a collector or dealer because they are really, really into them only to make money. But in investing, there is something called risk. The risk means that your investment can also kill you if you go overboard in accumulating something that could go down in value and/or demand. Like when a company decides to issue more stock and dilutes the value of the stock already in the stockholders' hands.

Guy has described himself as a collector and dealer. He might have been a collector once in his life, but if he subscribes to the fact that he wants to see his collectible destroyed because there will be too many of them and their value will go down, he is no longer a collector. He might be a dealer because he is concerned about the value, but if his collectible is destroyed, his future stock will not be restockable and he cannot sell more to his customers at his markup and make a living. So I am thinking he is really just an investor, and when an investor loses, their first inclination is to blame someone else for screwing up their investment, and they have completely forgotten to make a killing, there is always a risk of losing.

I think the MPC Gram is a newsletter which supports the activities of collectors and dealers. If it is an investment newsletter, you had better register it with the SEC because if not, a G-man of some kind will be knocking on your door. I would like to request that the editor establish another editorial policy, and that policy is not to publish anything from anyone who has anything to do with investing because I receive my investment information from CNBC, Barron's and a couple of other source.

Sincerely,
Howard A. Daniel III

Deer Howard,

G-man?! I love it! Gram-man!! I do not know how I did not think of that! Yes, I suppose that we might list a daily disclaimer like: mention of specific numismatic items in the Gram is not an endorsement to buy or sell. Investments go up and down and past performance is not an indicator of future appreciation.

Steamed editor

Dear Editor!

I like the new "Poll" ideas (Gram 913)! Also my #691 $1 is "Red Cross" stamped. (survey info) well till next time.

Best regards
Guy!

Dear Editor,

This [story about your editors run in (twice) with a back hoe] will teach you to go out and get yourself a surge suppressor/battery backup/power supply! They are only about $40 (sometimes less after rebates) and are available at any office supply store or computer store. Save yourself some headaches.

- Gail (ICC editor)

?American Red Cross Bankers? Club, Daily Sightseeing Tours, March 30 ? April 5 (1947)? It is a long sheet of paper with mimeographed information about each day's tour to sites/locations not far from Tokyo. The April 1 date is a "Silk Mill Tour" and there are another two long sheets of mimeographed paper with a colored in Red Cross describing it. And I have the Katakura & Company Limited 32-pages booklet handed out to each person on the tour of the silk mill. The booklet is interesting in that it is dated 1937 and done on high grade paper with a tied cover, and not postwar. The reason I bought this group is because of the "Bankers' Club" on the ARC pages. But it might also be connected to chits and/or coupons at that club and this material could be added to a collection and possibly used in an exhibit. The junk store I bought it appears to have pamphlets for all of the other tour dates, if someone is interested in them. I want $5.50 postpaid for the three above items. Please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com.

West (Mini) Fest I

By Al Glaser

I was disappointed to learn that the mini Fest planned for the 17th in Alabama was in conflict with another event I had already scheduled. My semi-annual miniature golf tournament in Laughlin, Nevada. I called Harold begging to have the date moved, he said no. I asked if I could send an old yearbook picture along with my paybook in order to qualify as a Fester in attendance, he said no. I continued with my plea, mentioning to Harold how I thought this was a great idea. He wouldn't have to make hotel reservations (first floor no smoking) always tough, doesn't have to worry how I was going to get to and from the airport, doesn't have to order in additional food, I wouldn't be keeping anybody up all night talking MPC, but...he said no.

So, if there is a call for pay, I ask one of the participants to take charge of MFC record keeping of serial numbers, replacements, errors, total issued, etc. In the future, I hope we can make every attempt to schedule these events with more lead time. For instance, does anyone have an interest in having a mini West-Fest at Long Beach in I think October? [I think that I found the dates as 19-21 Sep, if that is right and you have West Fest I, get the word out as soon as possible so that we can get it in the Gram and possibly make some travel plans-Ed]

I have enjoyed the discussion about the terminology for the names of the sides of bank notes so I decided to write about another problem word (my opinion) and have altered my own opinion already.

The word is currency. I have studied this word rather extensively. The most widely accepted definitions including several unabridged dictionaries and Black Legal Dictionary define the numismatic aspects of the word to mean then circulating money—paper money AND coins. That definition makes a name like Fred's Coin and Currency Shop redundant at best, stupid at worst. Fred's Currency Shop certainly would not mean a numismatic boutique where a person could find paper money to the exclusion of coins.

However, because the definition does include paper money, there are places where it could be used to good effect. When discussing the paper one which Federal Reserve notes are printed, it would be awkward to insist on paper money paper rather than currency paper. It would also be unambiguous because there is no such thing as coin paper.

I know that this is an inflammatory position because many people and organizations have used the word currency to mean paper money. Because of the possible high emotions on this issue (as opposed to face/back), I decided to check at least a little more.

On the internet, the dictionary definitions that I found were incomplete—even those claiming to be unabridged. In the never ending pursuit of knowledge and flaunting the Gram expense account, I subscribed to the Merriidian-Webster on-line unabridged dictionary. There for the first time I found a definition that supports the currency as paper money definition. I include it below:

2 a :something that is in circulation as a medium of exchange including coin, government notes, and bank notes <the silver currency > <the note currency > <the use of beads as minor currency in Africa -- advt

>b:paper money in circulation <the gift purse contained both coin and currency >

For an old fuddy duddy like me, it is tempting to dismiss this definition as uniformed and/or a dumbing down of the language, but I will resist. Based upon this one source alone, I conclude that it is not incorrect to use the word currency to mean paper money, but I also submit that it is still best to avoid such use.

I expect and certainly look forward to your comments on this.

MAIL CALL

Dear Gram,

I enjoyed the discussion of marginalization. I hadn't thought of it in academic terms before. I have always written in text books, etc. I certainly write in SB and MPC4. But I had not codified the process. In fact, when you announce you were working on a new SB, one of my thoughts was of how to transfer my notes! Warner

Dear Editor,

I looked at the design for the new $20 (Series2004) Federal Reserve note today. I like it, but I must say that my biggest reaction is that it looks like Fest money. More specifically, I think that Bureau people adopted some of the MFC design elements for the new federal money!

C. Tolek

Dear Editor,

You will notice that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing has a photo to look at the new $20.00 color design. They say "Click here to see note front" etc. Interesting!

<http://www.moneyfactory.com/newmoney/>

Don

Dear Don (and C)

Thanks for pointing out the new design for the $20 FRN. You guys are much smarter than I am! (I can almost hear the world-wide applause on that one.) Yesterday I tried to figure out a way to bring the new design into the realm of military money for inclusion in the Gram. I could not do it, but you came up with TWO connections!

Yes, I have to admit that even the BEP is not consistent on the matter of terminology. The biggest problem is that too often these news releases are written by public relations people who are interested in things like not using the word face twice (or more) in the same paragraph/document. At least they did not call it the obverse!

Editor

Dear Editor,

Would marginalia include marmalade stains in my copy of WW II Remembered?

Cheers,
Colin

Dear Colin,

Well, I am not sure. If I drop my toast on my Remembered did I margerinalize it?

Editor,

In regards to the recent poll on what to call the sides of papermoney, I think there was 1 term not applied to the poll or discussion. These terms are widely used in coins. I think all of us have used these terms at one time or another. These terms are used at sport games, bars, back allies: heads and tails!

Obverse.....Reverse should not be used. Collecting paper money to me has always been a different category and as such dose not have to adopt terms used by the coin industry. Paper money is different. Therefore terms used to describe paper money are also different. An example would be "in grading a coin, the coin has a margin tear" obviously this does not fit and neither does using terms based on coins for papermoney.

Wiz

Dear Editor,

There is a reason that paper money is referred to as Obverse/ Reverse. Yes, it is because coins were called as such, with the die standard. Also, as you stated, paper money, including up to date, is referred in the SAME manner. Your fact that in paper money, the plates are referred to as "face"and "back" is correct for U.S. currency, but the FACT remains, paper money has been called in the same fashion as coins for over 100 years now. If you feel that a change in terminology is in order, then make a recommendation to the various numismatic agencies that have abided by this terminology for these past 100 yrs.

Gee, you try to change everything, ABOUT FACE!

Sincerely,
Steve S.

Dear Steve,

Thank you very much for writing. I really mean it. You are the first person I have ever heard who defends using obverse/reverse. However, I believe that there are two serious flaws in your argument.

First, we certainly do not want to do something just because we have always done it that way.

Secondly, and more importantly, you are just mistaken about how it has been done. You were just a coin guy tooooooooooo loooooooooong!

The fact of the matter is that among numismatists who have considered the matter, the overwhelming choice is face/back (with front/back acceptable second).

The following publications/agencies have explicitly accepted face/back as the preferred/correct terms:

Bank Note Reporter

Numismatic News

Coin World

Paper Money

The Numismatist

International Bank Note Society Journal

MPC Gram (grin)

BNR Press

Yes, occasionally, in one of these publications you can find bad terminology sneak in. That happens most often when they take on a new staff member who was exclusively a coin person or was not a numismatist at all and had just learned obverse/reverse vice coins. The other common example is in advertising. Basically, these publications do not change this terminology in an advertisement.

Thanks again for being a target (you KNOW that I know THAT feeling).

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Registration fees:

$150 for general registration; $200 after 1 May 2003. (A day fee of $50 per full day, $25 per half day will be accepted at the time of registration as space allows for walk-in registrants to join pre-reg.) $100 for presenters, uni/college students, senior citizens, veterans of any age, overseas participants. (Registrations must be received by 1 May to qualify.) (Presenters coming for one day may attend half of that day free; if they'd like to attend the entire day they will be asked for a $25 contribution to help defray conference costs. [Basically, all presenters and panelists are being given $50 credit.]) $50 for TRACES donors/non-working TRACES board members.

$50 for Journalists may attend the exhibit opening, 1-5 Saturday afternoon at the Johnson County History Center in Iowa City/Iowa, for free; those wishing to attend the rest of the conference in order to write articles/tape reports may do so at $25 per day. The exhibit itself is free and open to the public. We are very pleased to have, per plan, some half dozen German POWs or their families with us for the exhibit and conference; as much as we would like to waive the conference registration fee, we must ask that they make a one-time $50 contribution to help defray the unavoidable costs of making this conference a reality. Berlin Study Tour participants may attend for free.

Please (!) pass this invitation to anyone you think might be interested in either presenting or attending.

"American Red Cross Bankers' Club, Daily Sightseeing Tours, March 30 – April 5 (1947)" It is a long sheet of paper with mimeographed information about each day's tour to sites/locations not far from Tokyo. The April 1 date is a "Silk Mill Tour" and there are another two long sheets of mimeographed paper with a colored in Red Cross describing it. And I have the Katakura & Company Limited 32-pages booklet handed out to each person on the tour of the silk mill. The booklet is interesting in that it is dated 1937 and done on high grade paper with a tied cover, and not postwar. The reason I bought this group is because of the "Bankers' Club" on the ARC pages. But it might also be connected to chits and/or coupons at that club and this material could be added to a collection and possibly used in an exhibit. The junk store I bought it appears to have pamphlets for all of the other tour dates, if someone is interested in them. I want $5.50 postpaid for the three above items. Please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com.

MINI-FEST UPDATE

Harold Kroll

As I'm finishing up all those little things to get ready for the mini-fest tomorrow, my thoughts have been on the comments that Al Glaser made about the date set being short was something that just worked out that way. Will try to do better next time. His question about sending his paybook with a picture to get paid is out the question. If picture is included, NO WAY AL. After considering the short notice making it impossible for some to attend we are going to make this offer as follows.

A total of twelve sets were made for this event. The notes used for the event are the 681 series reprints put out by Carlson Chambliss, all military theme. The face of the notes have a 3 cent Ruptured Duck stamp affixed with Wilmer, Alabama postmark and 5-17-2003 date stamp. They are also stamped MINI-FEST, Wilmer, Alabama. The backs of the notes have the set number stamped on them. One set is being set back for the Fest Auction next year, five have committed to attendees leaving six sets available to other festers. The following sets are available, 1, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. Here is the deal. The first six e-mails (Harbons@aol.com) requesting a set will reserve a one (set). Requests for specific numbers will be honored subject to availability. You will receive your set for a donation of $50.00 to the Military Money Scholarship Fund along with your paybook will get you one of the remaining sets.

The Alabama Mini Fest is underway as I write this. Indeed, the Boss is on the phone to Alabama as I type this. The group is having a great time down there. I suspect that some notes are trading hands. Possibly at the speed of light!

After I finished with the duel with the back hoe, I had other computer problems which interfered with the Gram yesterday. It was nothing serious, but it was a pain. Now that I have the computer and internet cooperating, I cannot remember all of the things that I wanted to write about. Oh well.

Hello Grammies! I like "Doug's web page!" which I can pull up on Netscape Navigator 4.7, but it won't let me access it to vote or enter in to the data base. Wondering if these "Poll" questions could be posted briefly in the gram? And perhaps I could (others too?) e-mail there votes on such weekly questions directly to the gram in such cases! Also even if not, perhaps post the poll questions and results weekly in the Gram? Just a thought! P.S. I am not very adept on the "pc" actually I can barely e-mail! (you would think my children would come over and help me.....not, too busy!!!! need lessons,

Guy!

Hello! I finally figured out how to access the "MPC site" by using "Internet Explorer!" WHICH I already have on my "desktop" SO please disregard the previous e-mail on this subject. (you don't need to run these letter's') Got some "tech" support. Thanks so much for your help "Doug,"

Thanks again ... Guy!

Dear Gram,

Well, I looked at the new $20 images, and I don't see any place where see-through registration will be used. I had read that we were FINALLY going to get that almost-universally-used anti- counterfeiting device on the new tinted currency, but it looks like we have missed the boat again. When is the stodgy BEP going to catch up with the rest of the world?
Joe

Dear Editor,

Just another thought about terminology.
Even though I agree 100% with, face - back. Mainly out of full respect for the engravers. I find their "craft" amazing!! I think it should be mentioned that the majority of notes, (MPC) are fractional. Especially with the 20 dollar, being introduced only in the last five series. I guess what I'm getting at is, there are times when talking about a "25 cent note", I find myself slipping over into the "round" realm. Maybe I need help here, and at risk of embarrassment...
Is a "25 cent note" ...a quarter of a dollar??.Or "A Quarter" .??.
Or "1/4" .??.Or "One Fourth".??
Or maybe it's always a "25 cent note"

Respect,
Ed

?American Red Cross Bankers? Club, Daily Sightseeing Tours, March 30 ? April 5 (1947)? It is a long sheet of paper with mimeographed information about each day?s tour to sites/locations not far from Tokyo. The April 1 date is a ?Silk Mill Tour? and there are another two long sheets of mimeographed paper with a colored in Red Cross describing it. And I have the Katakura & Company Limited 32-pages booklet handed out to each person on the tour of the silk mill. The booklet is interesting in that it is dated 1937 and done on high grade paper with a tied cover, and not postwar. The reason I bought this group is because of the ?Bankers? Club? on the ARC pages. But it might also be connected to chits and/or coupons at that club and this material could be added to a collection and possibly used in an exhibit. The junk store I bought it appears to have pamphlets for all of the other tour dates, if someone is interested in them. I want $5.50 postpaid for the three above items. Please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com.

MINI FEST IN ALABAMA-FANTASTIC

By Harold Kroll

The dust has settled and all is back to somewhat a normal evening, but I am still excited about today's event. Doug Bell arrived about 9:30 this morning from Franklinton, Louisiana. We chatted and looked at notes for a while and left to go to the post office. Upon return we found that Larry Smulczenski, Leo and Valerie May had arrived for the days festivities.

We all greeted one another and then started discussing paper money. While preparing some goodies on the grill, the three of them were discussing various subjects, date change for Fest V was a hot topic, putting this notice in the gram requesting feedback from anyone who had dealings with Phil Goldstein that are outstanding/unfinished and transacted through the USPS, exhibits and talks that are slated for Memphis and Baltimore, this past Maastricht papermoney show and many other things. I went inside to change my clothes after grilling was finished and returned to the round table to rejoin the discussions. That is when Leo pulled out his challenge coin. I could not invoke the three-step rule to retrieve my coin from inside the house so I GOT BUSTED at my own event. What can I say? It worked out OK as I was providing the soft drinks anyway.

Show and tell started and everyone had brought something of special interest to talk about. Larry had received some new information on the German Lotterie tickets which was great. This new information changed how we thought the system worked, Larry may write an article on this. Another item discussed was the new 691 VOID note that was offered in the gram a few weeks ago. The stamp was the main topic, could it be an original stamp that has made in to states, a new one that has been recently made, or what? We did some comparing with other over stamped notes but no conclusive decisions were made.

Payday took place and all attendees received a set of the Chambliss 681 reprint notes with a 3 cent Ruptured Duck stamp affixed, Wilmer Alabama post mark and dated 5-17-2003 to mark the event. Notes are also stamped with MINI FEST, Wilmer, Alabama with set number on the back of the notes. Doug Bell made up the bands that were put around each set of notes, thanks Doug. A total of twelve sets were produced, 5 going to attendees, one reserved for the Fest V auction and the remaining 6 sets were offered in the gram on a first come basis by e-mail and a donation of $50.00 to the MPC Scholarship Fund. All sets were spoken for within hours. The following Gramsters are making the donations and will receive souvenir sets: David Seelye, Russ Walsh, Al Glaser, Joe Boling, Mark Watson, Warner Talso. Additional collectors also wrote, but were too late. Remember, there will be a set in the Fest auction. Thanks to all!

Time to eat rolled around and everyone dug in and as usual there was more to eat than a platoon could have consumed. Smoked ham, chicken, brats, hot-dogs and all the trimmings, what a feast. I'm going to be eating leftovers for the rest of next week. Doug brought some fresh picked strawberries from his private patch and my daughter prepared home-made strawberry ice cream. This was after the first batch she made and it ended up on the floor of her Yukon bringing it to the house. She was not a happy camper. A vehicle was riding her back bumper when she approached our driveway and she made a fast right turn to avoid being hit and the container full of ice cream slid off the seat to the floor. After everyone ate all they could handle, papermoney again was the subject of discussions until Leo asked about the cake and ice cream, we also celebrated my birthday today. As Larry would say, I'm celebrating my 20th anniversary of my 39th birthday.

Larry brought a set of the BAFSV specimen notes for us to look at and take a scan before delivering them to the owner, second known set, a delight to see and hold in your hands. He still has problems with his computer and cannot get his scanner to work. Doug brought his set of MPC and we all enjoyed looking over his notes and used his VOID overprints to compare the void stamp. Doug is approaching 4,000 notes on his quest to complete a set of notes, 5 cent through 1.00 denominations for all position numbers and series excluding the 651 fractionals. Check out his want list on the PMW website, you may have some duplicates he could use.

I brought out a few specialty items to show and talk about, rubber export coupons, German and Canada war savings certificates, scrip and bonds.

Leo had brought some of his inventory with him and we browsed through his stock. A few notes changed hands and Doug was able to add several pieces to his ongoing master set project. He made a swap with Leo and later looking through the notes Leo got from Doug Larry and I both picked out a note we wanted. Larry got a 471 25 cent note with serial number ending in 39, with 39 position number, and I picked out a 481 25 cent flipper note. Leo has a nice selection of notes, if you get the chance to look through his inventory, do so. Nolan Mims, the president of our local coin club came by for a while and joined in the festivities and enjoyed the food. Larry offered to come over for a future meeting of the coin club and do a show and tell about the use of ultra violet light, (black light) and what can be found on various notes.

The day was running out of time and about 4:00PM Doug had to return to Louisiana to rejoin his wife, Larry, Leo and I continued on until 6:00PM and they had to leave for home also. For being a short notice event we had five attendees which was super, but a better statistic is that we had 1/3, yes 33 1/3 percent of the original 12 festers that attended the first MPC Fest, Port Clinton Ohio, in 2000. Quite a feat if I must say so myself. I cannot end this without saying many thanks to my wife, Bonnie, Connie my daughter and her husband, also a Harold, for their efforts in helping make this event possible. Until the next one.

Last Last Chance

Today is the last opportunity to vote in the weekly poll at papermoneyworld.net. This week's question focuses on the on going discussion on collecting and investing. Go to <http://www.papermoneyworld.net> and place your vote. The participation on this question has surpassed last week so your vote today will extend that record. Furthermore, late today a new question will be posted by project manager Ed Beaman so you can vote twice today (a dream of politicians everywhere) if you did not vote earlier! If you have voted on this question, you can wait for the new question and vote on it. You can also write a letter to the editor about either question.

Editorial/opinion

Harold Kroll sure did a terrific job in organizing South Fest I, and in keeping us informed in the Gram. I am little disappointed in this regard. His confession in the above report that he failed to have his challenge coin kept us from running that as the lead news story because we had all ready received a report of this dreadful failure. Challenge coins are issued at MPCFest for good deeds. After receiving a coin, the holder is required to keep it about his person at all times. All holders can challenge all other holders by simply holding up their challenge coin. This is a tradition that began in the active services and has been adopted by military money collectors.

In an interesting twist of fate, Gram 918 seems to have been distributed best and soonest to AOL users! It seems that the work around that we have been using in an attempt to serve AOLGramsters worked when the main computer server at papermoneyworld might have had a problem. Hopefully, all has been corrected and you received 918 AND 919.

=====

Hi! NO Grams here since #918! Wed! NO response from my e-mails! Hello, anyone out there? Guy!

Dear Editor,

Here is an old quote out of Alan D. Craig's "The Coins of Korea":

My friend doesn't ponder what he paid for them, for he paid what he knew was right; when he thinks of his coins, he chuckles - and the better enjoys and deserves them. Now if that isn't the aim of us all, what is?

Colin Bruce

Dear Steemed Freditor,

Face/back were or should I say ARE the terms used by our own Bureau of Engraving and Printing- which is EXACTLY the reason I started many years ago to use those same terms for the two sides of a note. I figured that if they are good enough for the BEP they are good enough for me. Though I do understand that "front" is perhaps more clearly identifiable as the face, still I have never had any trouble at all in the shortest of explanations telling someone what "face" refers to with note identification.

Neil S.

Dear Editor,

I just visited the BEP site for the new $20.00 due to be released this fall. OUTSTANDING!! Very well done. I can't imagine anyone not being happy with these changes. It is about time that our currency have these updated security features. Look out Euro, the US dollar is back! As far as these designs looking like fest money, I don't know because I have never seen fest money. Have you festers considered posting the fest money on a website to be viewed by MPC collectors who are non-festers? Try Ron Wise's paper money gallery. It is linked to the IBNS site. The address is www.IBNS.it. There are many images of world currency and a section for MPC under the US section. It would be a nice support to the site. One final thought about the new money. Does anyone remember a mock-up similar to this note appearing in Coins or Coinage magazine some twenty years ago? I was in high school and remember seeing a mock-up of a $100.00 note with color. The image of Franklyn was done very similar to the new $20.00, except Franklyn was to the far right of the note. The color was done almost exactly like the new money. Interesting to think that twenty years ago someone had this in mind. Thanks, editor, for all that you do.

ALLIED CONTROL COUNSEL SCRIP

By Mikhail Istomin

After the Allied powers occupied Germany in May 1945 they constituted a government to run the conquered country. This government was named Control Counsel (Kontrolrat). As follows from the information below, a scrip was used in the building of the Control Counsel to pay for.

The Control Counsel scrip (6 pieces 3 Soviet and 3 British) is listed without illustrations in the Ryabchenko catalogue (1995) on page 641, under the #s 27983-27988 as follows:

Soviet:

R. 27 983, 5 cents (1/2 mark), ND
R. 27 984, 10 cents (1 mark), ND
R. 27 985, 20 cents (20 mark), ND

British:

R. 27986, 5 cents, ND
R. 27987, 10 cents, ND
R. 27988, 20 cents, ND

Evidently all the coupons from the same booklet had the same serial number. Usually this number stood also on the cover. There was designation in marks ONLY on the Soviet coupons. There is also a short comment under the listing of the coupons in the Ryabchenko catalogue: The coupons of 5, 10 and 20 cents were in a booklet with the total sum of 60 marks with the text on the cover: Russian element. In front of the # the following letters were used: Br. (England), USA(USA) and Fr.(France)

Under the condition that there were coupons for 60 mark in the booklet there are 3 possible reasonable distributions:

0.5 Marks 40 20 30
1.0 Marks 20 20 15
2.0 Marks 10 15 15

i.e. in the booklet there were from 10 to 15 complete sets. Unfortunately, the author (Ryabchenko) does not remember about the scrip more than it is written in the catalogue.

Availability:

Ukraine (1999) 3 Soviet (# 3597 on all) + 3 British (# 3342 on all) Ukraine (2000) 2 Soviet (20 cents and 5 cents) (# 3597 on all) Moscow (1999 to USA) 3 Soviet (# 3597 on all), no data on the British.

Ukraine 3 Soviet (#3597 on all) and 3 British (# 3342 on all) + 1 non-standard British without nominal value with the words Lunch Coupon, #1063).

Germany 1 British 5 cents # 3342 (illustrated in the catalogue by M. Schoene on p. 218) USA (source # 1) - 3 Soviet (# 3597 on all) and 3 British (# 3342 on all) + 1 non-standard British without nominal value with the words Lunch Coupon, #1063).

USA (source # 2) 1 Soviet (20 cents(2 mark) (#3597) and two British 5 and 20 cents with the same # 3342) USA (source # 3) two Soviets (20 cents(2 mark) (#3597) + (5 cents (1.1/2 mark) (# 3597) and three British 5, 10 and 20 cents with the same # 3342) See article in IBNS Journal vol.29/# 3., p. 3 (question by Mr. Steve Feller and his letter to Mr. M. Schoene with illustrations)

Of special interest are the abbreviations of the Soviet and British issues (SKV) (Soviet)

1) variant Soyuznoye Komandovanie Voisk

- 2) variant Soyuznie Kontrolnie Voiska
- 3) variant -Soyuznoye Kontrolnoye Vedomstvo

ACA (British) -

- 1) variant Allied Command Army(ies)
- 2) variant Allied Control Army (ies)
- 3) variant Allied Control Authority
- 4) variant Allied Control Administration

Apparently the abbreviations must be the same in both languages. One can assume that if the government was called Allied Control Council the abbreviated name on the notes might include the two first words allied, control, both in Russian and English.

Depicted on the scrip is the court building in Berlin at Kleistpark/Potsdamer Str. (city part Schoenenberg) where from 1945 to March 1948 was the seat of the Allied Control Counsel (Allied Government for Germany). Only in 1991 the building was returned to the Berlin justice system. The last meeting of the Allied Control Counsel took place on March 20, 1948 in Berlin.

OBSERVATIONS IN THE GERMAN CATALOG BY M.SCHOENE issued in Germany in 1994 Paper money in the occupied Germany 1945-1949. The script issued for the lounge of the Allied Control Council of the Allied powers (size 92 x 60mm) was printed one-sided in light blue on white paper and numbered with 4 figures. Up to now only issues for Britain (mark: Br #) and USSR (mark: СССР #) are known. The scrip for France and USA have not surfaced. Other denominations are possible. It is not clear in which currency the lounge must be paid cents were written on the coupons, the Russian variant shows also on the face the value in mark- e.g. 20 cents (2 marks). The script was used before June 1948, they have perforation on the left and so it is quite possible that they were built in the booklets.

Editorial/opinion

About five years ago, a collector sent me a copy of an item that he had found at a coin show (Long Beach I think). It is a throw-away item. That is, it had no value even at the time of issue. I really like such items and really wanted this item. I wrote the collector a congratulatory letter. I am sure that my jealousy was showing. I suggested to him that if he ever wanted to put the item up for adoption, I was very interested and would give it a very good home.

About a year ago, the fellow started selling his collection. I could not visit him, but I knew two numismatists who were going to visit him. I asked them both to look for this simply, low (no?) value item for me. They reported that the item was not there.

Imagine my surprise Friday when the item arrived in an envelope with a nice letter from the collector! It is now mine! It is home! I tend not to be patient with acquisitions, but sometimes I do not have a choice and sometimes it pays off.

Obviously, you want to know about the item. I will tell that tomorrow or the next day. I chose to tell this part first for I believe that in numismatics (as in romance and other areas) the pursuit is often as important as the conclusion.

Dear Editor,

As a neophyte in paper money activity, I have followed recent discussions in the GRAM, and offer a couple of comments and a query.

The comments:

First comment. Currency from the Oxford English Dictionary:

"3. Of money: The fact or quality of being current or passing from man to man as a medium of exchange; circulation."

And the Dictionary tells us the first recorded mention in English literature in 1699, "Locke 2nd reply to Bp of Worcester (R.), 'Tis the receiving of them by others, their very passing, that gives them their authority and currency.'"

"4. That which is current as a medium of exchange; the circulating medium (whether coins or notes; the money of a country actually in use." There's more, but you could look it up.

Second comment. Re: Marginalia. I love it; use it, and sometimes when I return to I can read it and may even know why I did it.

The query: Being an old token and medal man, I recognize words of wisdom when I read them in the GRAM, and accept face/back as being most desirable for paper money. BUT, what about the edge?

I learn a lot from reading the GRAM.

Bill Murray

Dear Bill,

You make an interesting point. For paper money we have face, back, and rim. The rim can be plain, reeded, or lettered. These edge devices were created to keep people from shaving silver from the silver and gold certificates. Oops, that does not make much sense does it? As far as I know the four straight outer limits of notes are called edges, but I have to admit that I have not studied this particular issue—thanks for bringing it up.

Editor

Dear Editor,

OK It's been a couple months since I sent in my check for Fest V, BUT, I am still not marked PAID on the Gram list. Please investigate and correct the listing as I am still in the number 2 "position" to attend Fest V. Number 2 still tries harder!!! Thanks,

Dear John,

Banking Without Cash

By Joe Boling

Well, another week, another column. Fred told us his horror story about trying to buy bonds from a local branch. Let me tell you about banks with no money.

My branch recently underwent remodeling. When the work was done, the tellers' counter was gone. Now they have five islands curved around the lobby. At each island a teller takes deposits and handles transfers, but there is no cash drawer. All money is dispensed by an ATM-like machine in the island, bills being dropped into a pick-up basket and coins being dispensed into a cup like the ones that supermarkets have used for some time. If a customer makes a cash deposit, all the cash is placed in an envelope (which is first imprinted with a transaction identifier and the amount of cash contained), the envelope is sealed (they use self-stick #6 3/4 envelopes), and the envelope is dropped into a slot in the top of the island. At the end of the day, the armored courier company comes and empties all the islands (and presumably reloads the cash dispenser), takes all those envelopes back to its counting house, and reconciles each teller's balance from there. The tellers don't count out in the evening, because they have nothing to count.

When I brought in all that cash from the PNNA convention (subject of a column last month), about 300 notes, the teller had to make up over a dozen envelopes to hold it all, and it all went through that 3/4 inch slot in the top of the island. Even though they have two other islands for "business deposits" such as that one, they would rather make a dozen envelopes than move to an island for bulk transactions. I wonder how many trees those envelopes will cost over a year?

What does this mean for me, someone who has been hounding tellers for specific notes for my collection? It means there is no longer a source. Even if a customer brought in some older currency that a teller knew I was looking for, there would be no way to set it aside unless I happened to be standing next in line and the teller told the customer to go sell it to me instead of depositing it. As soon as a teller takes the money, it has to go into that black hole and the Fed (or an insider at the armored courier company) will end up with any old notes that we would like to have stay in collectors hands.

Banking without cash. Grump.

Editorial/opinion

Yesterday I told you about how I obtained my newest prize. What I did not tell you was, what that prize is. It is an end label for Allied military 5 franc notes! As far as I can remember, this is the first AMC end label that I have seen.

The label is full of interesting information like the packaging date (in pencil) 2/17 1944. Here is an interesting question. It was package 1524 packed in case 775 in the serial number range 12184001 – 12192000.

Just about the first thing that I did was go through all of the AM 5 franc notes that I could find looking for one that fit in that range. No luck, but those numbers will be with me for the rest of my collecting career. I hope that you will help me find a 5 franc note in that range! Please find one (some)!!

Heck, the very first line is interesting. INVASION CURRENCY. I am not sure that I have seen that terminology on any Bureau or Forbes documents. That sounds like common use terminology instead of official terminology making it onto an end label.

Can you tell that I am pleased? Here is a link to have a look. I have a few more comments for next time after you have had a chance to look.

=====

Dear Gram,

I am sure that this is a little late but to the guys that are discussing the proper way to call a note I have this to offer! I have just purchased a huge collection of items from the archives of several bank note companies that were affiliated with American Bank Note Co. and its security Printing arms that did work for several Governments around the world including the USA. On all of these documents and proof sheets dating from the 1860s to the 1980s it states and refers to the notes as FACE and BACK so as far as the professionals go that make these notes every one of them on the specimen sheets and the proof sheets hand pulled from the presses state in hand writing several characteristics; Dies-Ink colors-Engravers-and how many plates all refer to them as being FACE and BACK not one out of hundreds spanning over 120 some years refers to it as anything else. One of them even explains why it is called the face stating in engravers Smillies hand writing that it is and has the face of a subject (human) on it! Referring to face plate as a explanation to whom he was corresponding with over this particular proof sheet of notes! This is really neat stuff that I have acquired and I will be selling some of it to some lucky individuals if that is you? call or email me we can talk about some of these items and most are one of a kind items like original Master dies that were used in several Bank notes and stamps These are engraved pieces of art (in printing plate form) by some of the most famous artists that our hobby had to offer! These are real special items and I am selling them at reasonable prices so if you are interested let me know? I hope this brings some light to your discussion Kevin 248-830-6390 call anytime!

Series 031 Research

By David Seelye

I have been studying the current military fest certificates (MFC, Series 031). I think that we have a lot to learn about this series. Does anyone have a Series 031 $10.00 with a serial number F00000101F or lower?

Please do not forget to send your serial number data (position number and location, type of stars on your replacements (that you are holding for me)), error scans and other important information to Al Glaser.

A fair sized contingent of dealers, collectors, those that acknowledge they are both, and those who claim they are one or the other depending on the circumstances, of MPC, AMC and related issues will certainly be at the Memphis Paper Money Show. This is an ideal time to make and renew acquaintances, but it is also an ideal time to further MFC research. I would be delighted to see your MFC there and, of course, you should have your pay book in case headquarters fulfills its duty and pays us! At least be sure to stop by at my table and say hello! One of the reasons to attend shows is to meet the voice at the other end of the telephone, letter, or email, and put a face to the name.

The Monthly Planchet, the newsletter of the Indianapolis Coin Club, is an excellent coin club newsletter. Its main connection with the Gram is a common activist-Marcus Turner. Marcus called our attention to the May 2003 issue. He particularly liked the Planchet editorial quoting the Gram about circular comments Planchet-Gram-Planchet-Gram etc. (see page 5). I noted that the front page has a story about the new MPC collector Madison Turner, but I thought that the most interesting part was the photos from the club recognition of national coin week. Several of these feature MPC! Certainly a small step, but every promotion helps. Please have a look at the Planchet:

Dear editor, I did not get a gram for 2 days. Can you resend any grams I missed (like these past 2 days?)
See you soon-

NS

Dear Editor,

You Said Temporary Tatoos Would Be Permitted. Maybe You Were Kiddin'...??

The Poll Is Fun...There A Few Suggestions Comming In. Your Direction Is Always Welcome & Needed.

ed

Dear Gram,

I received this letter and thought that Gramsters would be interested.

Thanks for the clarification, Mark. I collect Irish banknotes, and in Ireland I have heard the word

"printage" to mean how many notes were printed. I suppose Fred would cringe at that. Gawain

Mark

Dear Gawain and Mark,
I do not know that correct word, but I have an opinion which should surprise no one. I would say that the best term is production as in that note had a production of 10,000,000. However, I am far from certain. Possibly someone knows for sure. If not possibly we can figure it out on the next trip to the BEP.

Editor

Dear Steamed Freditor,
Your French end label is a great find! I will look for a note in your number range- and you also bestirred me to get out my end label which is for German 1-mark notes. It is much the same as yours but the title is Allied Military Mark Currency/Germany, also for 8000 notes, serial number range 58464001 to 58472000. Now I will have to start a search for a note in this range too- never did it before. Help, everyone!! Mine was Pkg. No. 7309, packed in case no. 6893, assembled by group 1, packed by group 1, and dated 3-28-1944.
This label and a number of note bands for AMC Lire (4) and Francs (5) all came from the Jim Wade Collection a long time ago (1968).

Neil S.

Dear Neil,
All I can say is, WOW.

Editor

Hi Fred,

I am in Korea, bought 100 MPC notes yesterday in a deal with some Japanese, nothing great just good stock material....already looked at all the SN's trying to find something but nothing. You know maybe I should sit down and read your book sometime.....I noticed something this morning that I am sure you know, and if you DON'T then you owe me a big write-up, "CUMMINGS DISCOVERS....."
Any the Series number is always is a color that matches the color of the note.....the 591 series is the most obvious as it is often not real plain as it blends in to well.....
Will you be in Baltimore?

Best regards,

Mike
First let me say, it is best that you do not read the book. By not reading it, you might let more goodies get by and have more sales as you get cherry picked. That will make more collectors happy and I know that you are interested in customer service!
I am not certain that I know what you are talking about regarding series color. I think you are talking about the text that says SERIES XXX. Yes, for more series that text is in the basic color of the note because it is printed as part of the tint. There are two exceptions to this. Can someone help us with the exceptions? What are they and why? If no one volunteers, I will explain later in the week.

Editor

PS Well, since the Browns moved to that eastern city, I have more or less pretended that it did not exist. Now I am forced to come to grips with the situation. Yes, I will probably be in Baltimore.

Petrov on Siege Money

By David Klinger (submitted by Howard Daniel)

The following item was in the The E-Sylum, Vol6 #12, March 23, 2003 and it might be of interest to Gramsters;

LEATHER MILITARY SIEGE MONEY David Klinger writes: "I recently acquired an interesting used book from an online bookseller (B&N): "Money and Conquest - Allied Occupation Currencies in World War II", by Vladimir Petrov (1966 - The Johns Hopkins Press). This is from Petrov's introduction: "During the prolonged siege of Tyre in the year 1123, the Doge Domenico Michieli exhausted his treasury chest. Because his brave Venetians clamored for pay and some reportedly contemplated desertion, the resourceful Doge had leather coins struck and issued them to pay his troops. The issue of this "money of necessity" was accompanied by a solemn promise that it would be redeemed at full face value upon the return of the fleet to Venice. Historians did not record the reaction of the crusaders to this early substitute for good gold, or indeed whether Domenico Michieli, noted for his shrewdness as well as his ferocity, actually honored his pledge. But in all probability these leather coins were the first issue of what has eventually come to be called military currency. Although the evidence is meager, it seems that throughout the Middle Ages and on into the modern period, such currencies were used from time to time, serving a single limited purpose, that of paying troops when supplies of regular money were inadequate or non-existent; they bore no relation to the currencies of the occupied enemy territories. In the nineteenth century military currencies assumed a new and important role: they were used not only to pay troops but also as a means of paying the people of an occupied territory for supplies requisitioned by the occupying army. During World War II military currencies were used by all the major powers and to a much greater extent than ever before. In addition to paying the troops and compensating the owners of requisitioned property, military currencies also served as a major means of manipulating the economies of occupied territories."

I wondered if any of these leather "coins" still exist? I never heard of them before this."

Editorial/opinion

It is a pleasure to run David Klingers article above. We (I) are sorry that it is a little confusing about who wrote what between Petrov, Klinger, Daniel, and the Asylum. Thanks to all!

I believe that David also submitted this item to the Gram. Possibly it was before or simultaneously with sending it to the Asylum. I just could not run this item without commenting on Petrov and his book and it seemed that I could never get that done.

It is a great book. It is a fundamental reference for our study, and, as always, I have stories about it!

I first learned of Petrov in the 1970s. It may have been from Mike Cummings that I learned of it. Where do I start with the stories?

The somewhat ugly cover of the book is nevertheless fascinating. It is a simple collection of AMC and MPC in a fanned circle. From the twelve oclock position: 10 am mark replacement, 100 am lire, 10 am francs, 50 am lire, $1 Series 461 MPC (last four being unremarkable), MPC Series 472 $5 replacement, MPC Series 471 $10 expedient specimen (stamped specimen on replacement), 1000 am mark replacement, 100 am mark expedient specimen (stamped specimen on replacement), 5000 fr specimen (no SN)! In addition a Series 1943 1 lire note is off by itself on the back cover. What a remarkable group.

The 1000 mark, 471 and 472 notes would each be unique or one of two notes known in private hands. Private hands, that is one of the critical questions. Where were (and are) the notes?

I had the same questions in the 1970s. According to the biographical information in the book, Petrov was a faculty member at Johns Hopkins University. I called the university and within moments was connected with the gentleman. He was not overly surprised, amused, or otherwise struck by the nature of my call, but he could not remember the source of the notes (or photographs thereof) on the cover of his book. He thought that they MIGHT have been from a government archive, but was completely unsure. I was disappointed then, and am disappointed now.

Now the vast assets of the Internet, I cannot find anything on Vladimir Petrov. I hope that some wizard out there will take the challenge and find some information on Petrov.

The two MPC replacements and 1000 mark replacement are of particular interest with regard to disposition because they are both subject to special studies. Initially, I kept the two MPC replacements in the survey. Heck, the entire survey was only a few hundred pieces at the time. Many replacements that are now relatively common were completely unreported, yet these two were reported. After the MPC survey matured, I wondered about these notes. Finally, I decided to take them out of the survey based on the following theory. First, Petrov himself did not recall where he got the illustrations, much less where the notes were. Therefore, it was possible that they do not even exist anymore! Finally, and most importantly, if they are not included in the survey, it is altogether likely that if they still exist that they will be reported in the future. However, if they have been destroyed in the intervening fifty years, it is unlikely that this fact would every be confirmed and the listings would continue in the survey uncorrected forever.

By the 1980s, I was in the numismatic book business. I routinely purchased a few copies of Money and Conquest and resold them. I bought them for something like $12 and resold them for $15. Some time in the late 1980s I received a flyer from the publisher selling single copies of the books to anyone for something like $6 each. I called the publisher in the hope of buying the entire supply for about $4 or less. I could not get them to budge from the $6 price so I did not buy any! What a mistake, the book has been hard to find for more than 15 years.

About two years ago, I pulled out my copy to find some information. I thought that I was crazy. I could not figure it out. Ultimately, I found that a full section (known as a signature) of 32 pages had been left out and another signature duplicated! Not only had I missed out on getting the mother load of a classic book, but my own reference copy was about worthless.

I started watching for a copy of Petrov. I finally purchased one in a numismatic book auction. It was reasonable. I was pleasantly surprised when it arrived to find the book plate of William Benson in the book. Bill was a past president of the International Bank Note Society and a keen world paper money collector. In fact, I think that I sold this copy to Bill in the 1980s.

I wish that I could tell you that I have a bunch of these books for sale, but I do not. I do, however, recommend it to everyone. If you cannot find a copy to buy, borrow one from your local library (interlibrary loan will probably be necessary).

Dear Esteemed Editor,
I just bought a bronze token that might be a new military token for the Philippines. It is about 21mm in diameter, which is about nickel-sized but it is about half as thick. Both sides have a large "20" in an old font in the center. On one side is "A" at 12, "S" at 9, "C" at 3, and "P.I." at 6. On the other side is "No Cash Value" across the top and a small diamond at 6. I am thinking the "ASC" could be American Service Center or Army Service Center. Does any Gramster have any knowledge of this piece or other guesstimates about it?
